WARNS CITIES TO ECONOMIZE AND CUT DEBTS

Expenses Far Above Possible Revenue.

BY R. D. CAHN.

The program for national rehabilitation, which appears to have rewon jobs for a considerable number, has not relieved American cities of their debts nor balanced their budgets.

Costs of city government in this country exceed the collected or collectable taxes by substantial amounts, thus either piling up the load for the future or making municipal bankruptcy certain. And the situation does not appear to be clearing. For local governments, instead of meeting the situation by reducing their expenditures to the level of income, are striving to avoid that sane solution of their difficulties by new expedients.

Some Cities Look to U. S.

In one group of cities it has become the fashion to look to Washington for the money which cannot be collected from the taxpayers. Having once partaken of what is to be had from RFC, FERA, NRA, and PWA, the mayors are convinced that getting more out of the federal coffers requires only a knowledge of the alphabet and dexterity in putting the letters together in the right combinations. Other burgomasters, credulous of the constancy of Uncle Sammy Claus, have been seeking new sources of local revenue.

Thus, while a western mayor denounces the tightness of one or more of the federal fund administrators, Mayor O'Brien of New York sought his way out by imposing upon the best known industry of that city a tax so high and unfair that the members of the industry elected to move bag and baggage out of the city and state and abandon their fixed invested capital rather than to pay the tax.

Economy Still Necessary.

It will be seen upon examination that neither of the expedients will enable cities to escape the necessity of reducing what they spend to what they can collect, which is very much less than they are spending now.

The first of the alternatives may be disposed of in a few sentences. An indulgent central government for a time may squander enough money in grants, awards, and loans upon local governments to enable them to spend as wastefully as they have been accustomed. But that same indulgent central government cannot do so over any extended period of time, when, as is actually the case, its own sources of revenue have not been adequate, or anywhere near adequate, to meet its own expenditures.

This is the first of a series of articles dealing with other alternative methods of escaping the dilemma. The present article will deal with the prospects of collecting income for municipalities from assessments upon real estate. Succeeding ones will consider other proposed methods of raising city funds.

Supported by Property Tax.

Local governments have been supported from the beginning by revenues derived from the so-called general property tax. The general property tax was general only in name. Actually it was, and is, a tax upon real estate.

With the treasuries running out of money, and the customary lending places saying no, a very large part of the efforts of city officials during the last few years has been devoted to finding ways to get enough out of real estate to support the high level of municipal expenditures of boom times. The efforts have failed and a consideration of real estate and tax history will show that they will continue to fail. That history will now be gone into.

The years from 1921 to 1929 witnessed an unrivaled boom in building construction in the United States, particularly commencing with 1921. In the country as a whole during that period 45 billion dollars was spent for building construction and in Chicago alone over 3 billion dollars.

An Era of Speculation.

This tremendous expenditure on construction brought a phenomenal increase in the demand for building sites. Hectic bidding up of land prices naturally followed. Speculation was wild and turnover very rapid. Great subdivisions were laid out and sold and great new property valuations were manufactured.

The boom in realty prices was justified upon the assumption of a continuing demand for land as great as that experienced during this period of insane building construction.

William H. Malone, chairman of the Illinois tax commission under Govs. Len Small and Emmerson, was indicted yesterday by a special federal grand jury on charges of defrauding the government of $59,.80 in income tax payments for the years 1929 and 1930. The indictment, which followed an investigation of almost three years, was returned before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

If convicted, Malone, who is now traveling in Europe with his wife, faces a possible maximum punishment of ten years' imprisonment and $20,000 fine. United States Attorney Dwight H. Green announced that the state department would be asked to cancel Malone's passport.

Pays Tax of $5.83.

Each of the two counts in the indictment carries a possible punishment of five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000. The first count charges that Malone, owing a tax of $58,478 in 1929, actually paid only $5.83.

His gross income for the year, according to the indictment, was $314,135. Legal deductions of $34,056 left a net income of $280,079. In his return for 1929 Malone reported a gross income of $40,284, deductions of $34,056, and a net income of $6,228, on which he paid the tax of $5.83.

Smaller Income in 1930.

The second count in the indictment alleges that for 1930 Malone had a gross income of $84,417, offset by deductions for legitimate losses of $60,910, and legal deductions of $709. This left Malone a net income of $22,797, on which he should have paid $1,101, the indictment says.

The return for 1930 filed by Malone left him owing nothing to the government. His return stated that he had no income for the year and said that his activities had resulted in a loss of $56,428, plus deductions of $678 allowed him under the law.

It was alleged in the indictment that Malone had "income from other sources" amounting to $269,958 for 1929 and $79,150 for 1930, which he failed to list.

Attorney Sentenced to Jail.

These items recalled the sentencing of Attorney Henry L. Blim by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to serve 90 days in the county jail for contempt of court ten days ago. The government charged that Attorney Blim had given "false, evasive, and misleading testimony" before the grand jury investigating the Malone income.

Attorney John W. Ellis, a former master in chancery of the Circuit and Superior courts; Attorney Frank Tuttle, and William F. McCaughey, a Park Ridge architect, also were ordered to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for evasive testimony. They recanted, however, and apparently gave satisfactory answers to the grand jury questions.

A transcript of the grand jury testimony produced at the contempt hearing showed that the attorneys had received large fees for work done before the state tax commission during the Malone régime.

Charge Fee Splitting.

The transcript of this testimony before the grand jury also showed that the government had sought to prove that the fees had been split with Malone or some other member of the state tax commission.

While United States Attorney Green refused to reveal the nature of the items listed in the Malone indictment as income "from other sources," it was said in the federal building that the government had more work to do to perfect this part of the case. It was indicated that other Chicago attorneys would be called, before the case goes to trial, to explain dealings with Malone.

Malone served on the state tax commission for ten years before his resignation in 1931. He was chairman for the last five years of his term. A candidate for governor in the 1932 spring primaries, Malone was defeated by Len Small.

Fifth Politician Indicted.

The indictment against Malone was the fifth returned by government grand juries against prominent politicians. The others named are Gene Oliver, once a member of the now defunct board of assessors; Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner under a former Republican régime; Moe Rosenberg, Democratic committeeman in the 24th ward, ex-convict

REPAYS $27.60 FOR $5 LOAN HE OBTAINED IN 1898

In 1898 Gustave C. Frick, now president of the Lakeside Supply company at 73 West Van Buren street, rode off to war with the 1st Illinois cavalry.

Accompanying his troop as far as Springfield was a slender youth whose name was George W. Graham. He hoped to be enlisted, but there was a delay and Mr. Frick lent him $5 so he could go home and gather up his belongings.

Graham then was only 16 and he did not get back to the troop. Mr. Frick heard no more from him until Thursday, when he received a letter. In it was a check for $27.60, which Graham, now living in Washington, D. C., said was to repay the loan, with compound interest. He added that his relatives had refused to let him go to the Spanish war and that he had just been able to find his one time benefactor through a Chicago directory.

Kelly Enters Leavenworth at Midnight

Leavenworth, Kas., Oct. 13.—(AP)—George [Machine Gun] Kelly, sentenced to life imprisonment as a kidnaper, arrived by train under armed guard from Oklahoma City late tonight and was hurried inside the walls of the federal penitentiary.

"I'm going to break out as soon as I get to Leavenworth," he had shouted defiantly during a short stop in Kansas City.

Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, Kelly's associates in the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, already are serving life terms at the federal prison annex. They were brought here by airplane last Sunday.

Eight Guards with Him.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Sullenly boasting that he will escape prison, George [Machine Gun] Kelly today was taken to Leavenworth in a barred railway coach to serve a life term for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oil man.

Eight guards, armed with riot guns and submachine guns similar to those with which Kelly earned his nickname, surrounded him as he stared gloomily out of the train window. He was manacled both hand and foot.

As Kelly shuffled his way from an automobile to the train he mumbled something about "Don't worry about me going stir-crazy. I won't be there long."

"I won't be in there very long."

Strangely, the other half of this notorious couple, auburn-haired Kathryn Kelly, had voiced the same defiance of the government's ability to keep her behind bars for the remainder of her life. Still held at the county jail here, awaiting transportation to a federal women's prison in West Virginia, she declared:

"I've got plenty of friends who will get me out if I say the word."

Will Be Separated from Mother.

At the moment she was made reckless in her speech by the information that her mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon, also sentenced to a life term in the case, would probably be placed in a different prison. Mrs. Shannon is also held here in the well fortified county jail. R. G. [Boss] Shannon, owner of the Texas farm on which Urschel was held for a while, was given 60 days in which to conclude his business affairs before he, too, starts serving a life sentence.

Some of his guards today discussed with Kelly the government's plan to make him the first inmate of a proposed American "Devil's Island" prison. The penal colony for 600 prisoners would be the wave-lashed Alcatraz island in San Francisco bay, as announced at Washington.

"How does that sound to you?" one officer asked.

James H. Clark, a buyer for Swift & Co., and his family received a surprise visit from an unexpected caller in their home at 345 North Oak street, Hinsdale, last night.

Mr. Clark, his wife, Ethel, and their children, Robert, 14 years old, and Suzanne, 3, were sitting in the living room of their home shortly after dinner when they saw two glaring automobile headlights approaching toward the house. The lights grew larger and larger without swerving. Mr. Clark shouted a warning. Everybody jumped just in time.

The next instant an eight cylinder car, its lamps still glaring, raced down the pathway, through the front doors and walls and came to an apologetic stop in the Clarks' living room.

Melbourne Thayer, 24 years old, of the Sedgley Guest house, Hinsdale, son of Ralph M. Thayer, owner of several loop restaurants, extricated himself from the driver's seat, unhurt except for minor scratches. Police arrested him. They charged that he had been drinking. Thayer was later arraigned before Justice J. K. Blackman and held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Meanwhile it was decided not to remove his automobile from the Clark home for fear the front of the house would collapse.

THREE RESCUED AS SPEEDBOAT CATCHES FIRE

Coast guards last night rescued two passengers and a pilot after a speedboat in which they were riding caught fire as it was entering the river. A lookout at the guard station saw their plight and a rescue boat reached them in less than two minutes.

Those rescued were Miss Doris Keane, 17 East Goethe street; James Turek Jr., 1241 South 56th avenue, Cicero, and John J. Manley the pilot. They were on their way to the landing stage in the river, coming from the World's Fair.

The fireboat Joseph Medill was summoned and extinguished the flames after the Wisconsin, a Chris Craft speedboat, had suffered severe damage.

Dirigible Macon Turns Back to Avoid Storm

Midland, Tex., Oct. 14 [Saturday.]—(AP)—The navy dirigible Macon encountered thunderheads just west of Midland at 2:30 a. m. today and doubled back on its course, circling over the city again shortly before 3 a. m. It was flying at a height of 2,000 feet when it passed over the city the first time, but had reduced its altitude to about 1,000 feet when it returned. Radio operators here were unable to contact the airship. It is en route from Lakehurst, N. J., to Sunnyvale, Cal.

War Peril Laid to Imperialism by Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said in an address to the nation tonight that "only through constant education and the stressing of the ideals of peace" can those nations threatening the peace of the world by "imperialistic desires" be brought into line with the majority against such a policy.

Addressing the third annual women's conference on current problems in New York from the Oval room on the first floor of the White House, Mr. Roosevelt stressed the need of further reduction in the cost of local government by "good business methods and the elimination of the wrong kind of politics."

Discuss Crisis in History.

Noting the conference was discussing the "crisis in history," the President said there were "two problems which can be helped by public interest and public discussion"—the peace of the world and education as it has been affected by the depression.

"The danger to world peace," he said, "certainly does not come from the United States of America.

"The United States does not seek to annex Canada or any part thereof, to annex Mexico or any part thereof or to annex Cuba or any part thereof.

Declares U. S. Opposes War.

"It is this attitude of the overwhelming majority of our people towards their neighbors—this complete lack of a national desire for territorial expansion—which makes the rest of the world begin to understand that the United States is opposed to war."

The President said a "very great majority of the inhabitants of the world feel the same as we do about territorial expansion or getting rich or powerful at the expense of their neighbors" and that it was "only in the case of such people in the world as still have imperialistic desires for expansion and domination in their minds or in their hearts that threats to world peace lie."

The President's appeal for a better grade of teaching went not only to the New York conference but to colleges throughout the country, federations of women's clubs, and nearly 2,000 organizations interested in education.

Appeals for Help of Women.

"When this fight is won," he asserted, "your problems will be solved. You can help your government—federal, state, and local—and we in the government want your help."

In reducing the cost of local government, he said, "we must at the same time have the definite objective in every state and in every school district of restoring the useful functions of education at least to their predepression level."

"We have today, for example," he added, "a large surplus of so-called qualified teachers—men and women who even if we had full prosperity would and probably should be unable to find work in the field of education.

Turning Out Too Many Teachers.

"Even today we are turning out too many new teachers each year. That is just as much an economic waste as building steel rail plants far beyond the capacity of railroads to use steel rails.

"It goes without saying that we should have enough teachers and not a large excess supply. It goes also without saying that the quality of our teaching in almost every state of which I have knowledge can be definitely and distinctly raised.

"The main point is that we need to make infinitely better the average education which the average child now receives, and that, through this education, we will instill into the coming generation a realization of the part that the coming generation must play in working out what you have called 'this crisis in history.'

"The crisis can be met, but not in a day or a year, and education is a vital factor in the meeting of it."

U. S. Investigator Backs Theory.

The United Air Lines plane which crashed near Chesterton, Ind., Tuesday night, killing seven persons, was literally blown in half by high explosives, D. B. Colyer, vice president of the air line, announced last night. This became known after an investigation was started by department of justice operatives when officials of the air line and inspectors of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce could find no other plausible explanation of the crash.

Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, coroner's chemist and a member of the staff of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university, determined that the crash was caused by high explosives after microscopic examination of particles of metal and cloth found in the debris of the crash, Mr. Colyer said. His report was submitted to the air line, the department of commerce and the department of justice.

Blast in Rear of Plane.

"Consolidation of all available evidence surrounding the accident leads to the conclusion that it was caused by a high explosive, presumably located in the area of the cargo space and toilet section aft of the passenger cabin and ahead of the rear section," Mr. Colyer said.

"The passenger section and the rear section were severed by the explosion. This forced the plane to the ground, where it caught fire. The nature of the container for the explosive will probably never be known, as the container apparently was completely destroyed.

"There is no proof that the explosive was a time bomb. It is impossible to determine whether it was in liquid or a solid form, according to the laboratory of Northwestern university, which made tests on fragments of the plane's metal structure and cabin furnishings damaged by the explosive.

Unable to Explain Its Being There.

"Despite a thorough investigation by the company and interested federal organizations it has not been possible to ascertain as yet why the explosive was on the plane. There is conclusive evidence that there was no gasoline explosion or fire in the air and no structural failure of the airplane until the explosion."

The investigation of the wrecked plane disclosed that the toilet and baggage compartments of the plane were almost entirely destroyed by the explosion. Only small pieces of the two compartments were found. This fact led to the belief that the explosive was placed in one of the two compartments. When they were blown up the tail of the plane was blown off.

Believe Two Blown Out.

The tail of the plane was found in fact one and one-quarter miles from the remainder of the wreckage. Near it were the bodies of two men passengers who are believed to have been blown out of the plane by the explosion that crippled it. With the tail gone, the plane became uncontrollably nose heavy and dived into the ground a few seconds later.

Dr. Muehlberger's findings, according to United Air Lines officials, centered upon a piece of a blanket, part of the plane's equipment, and several pieces of the metal surface of the plane. Both had been pierced many times by small bits of metal. Only a high explosive could produce a force great enough to force metal through metal, Dr. Muehlberger said. He turned down the theory of a gas explosion, because, he said, gas expands comparatively slowly and would not produce such terrific force.

Witnesses Tell of Two Blasts.

The theory that an explosion in the air crippled the plane and caused it to crash was further borne out by the testimony of eyewitnesses that there were two explosions, one in the air and another when the plane hit the ground and broke into flames. There were no flames after the explosion in the air. The tail and the two bodies found nearby were not burned. Investigators held that this proved the plane's gasoline did not catch fire in the air.

Melvin H. Purvis, agent in charge of the division of investigation of the department of justice in Chicago, announced late yesterday afternoon that he believed an explosion had crippled the plane in the air. He based his belief on the findings of three inspectors from his office, who surveyed the wreckage, because Dr. Muehlberger had established the supporting evidence.

Further Inquiry Reported.

It was understood that department of justice operatives have been sent to Newark, N. J., and to the Cleveland airport, the starting point and the only stopping place of the plane en route to Chicago, to investigate the preparation and servicing of the plane for the flight.

Mr. Purvis said that there was evidence of an explosion, but that no plausible motive for placing a bomb in the plane had been found. He dismissed as fantastic both the suicide theory and a theory that the plane had been bombed as sabotage because of labor trouble. Officials of United Air Lines said they could imagine no motive for bombing the plane.

The passengers included an electric refrigerator sales executive, a retired grocer, a girl traveling to her wedding and a radio service man employed by the air line, in addition to the crew of two pilots and a stewardess.

Rear Equipment Incombustible.

No air mail was carried on the plane and the only piece of air express was a package of news photographs. No explosive or combustible material is carried in the rear part of the plane as part of its regular equipment. The baggage of Emil Smith, retired grocer of 5100 Argyle street, one of the passengers, was thought to have contained shotgun or rifle ammunition, but even if it had exploded, which was considered unlikely, investigators said the force would not have been sufficient to cripple the plane.

The plane was a model 247 Boeing all metal low wing monoplane, a new design that was placed in service only last spring. Sixty planes of this type are now in use on United Air Lines. The plane is said to have greater strength factors than many other planes now in use and for that reason both company officials and inspectors of the department of commerce were incredulous from the start of their inquiry that the plane's structure had failed.

Terrific Blast Indicated.

The strength factors of the plane's tail construction are unusually high, indicating that only a terrific blast could have torn the tail loose. Also, the plane was carrying a load 1,500 pounds lighter than the maximum allowed for its type when the crash occurred. The weather was good.

All the facilities of United Air Lines were focused on solving the cause of this crash, officials said, because of their record of having carried more than 325,000 passengers over a six year period in multimotored planes without a single passenger fatality.

HUNT FOR GOLD ON MOUNTAIN IN HUDSON VALLEY

Veteran sourdoughs from Delancey street and Park avenue are washing the streams up there and hacking so furiously at the mountainside that, if they don't stop, vacationists are likely to find a prairie where once the Hudson river flowed through the hills.

News of the Bear mountain gold hunt was brought today to the American Museum of Natural History by William H. Carr, assistant curator, who has charge of the museum's outdoor exhibit near the western approach of Bear mountain bridge.

"Many visitors, as well as many local residents, are bringing me samples of stone that hold the glint of gold and believing it to be the precious metal," Mr. Carr said today.

He added, sighing, "But all isn't gold that glitters. To each of these hopeful prospectors tramping the Bear mountain region I've had to say: "Thar's no gold in them thar hills!"

Jane Addams Is "Much Better," Doctors Report

Miss Jane Addams, who has been ill of bronchitis in her home at 12 West Walton place for the last two weeks, was reported "very much better" yesterday. Physicians said that Miss Addams would be able to leave within a few days for Bryn Mawr college to deliver a series of lectures.

U. S. FOILS PLOT AGAINST SUSPECT IN MAIL ROBBERY

Drive Off Suspicious Car on Trail of Sans.

What appears to have been an attempt to kidnap or kill Joseph Sans, who is named in an indictment in the $250,000 mail robbery case along with his employer, Edgar Lebensberger, who committed suicide, and John J. "Boss" McLaughlin, was reported yesterday by deputy United States marshals.

One government witness in the mail robbery investigation has already been slain. Gus Winkler, public enemy and north side gang leader, was assassinated earlier in the week, presumably because he had commuicated important information regarding the robbers to federal investigators. In court yesterday morning Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher opposed a reduction of the $50,000 bail set for Sans on the plea that the defendant might be slain or kidnaped if he were released.

Sees Safety Box Opened.

Deputy marshals had brought Sans to the National Builders' bank at La Salle street and Wacker drive to have him present when a safety box rented by him and Lebensberger was opened. After it was found that the box was empty Sans was ordered returned to his cell in the county jail.

The defendant was placed in a government patrol car used by the United States marshal to transport prisoners. Deputy Marshals Roy Holcomb and O. Smith were with him in the patrol.

Behind the patrol, in another car, rode Deputies Joseph O'Neill and Al Johnson with Detective John J. Walsh. Their car acted as a convoy in the trip to the county jail.

Green Car Leaves Curb.

Going west in Jackson boulevard at Franklin street a small green coupé containing a large man and a small man pulled from the curb as the patrol passed. It was apparent to the three in the convoy car that the occupants of the coupé were trying to drive in front of the patrol.

At Halsted street the men in the coupé became aware of the two deputies and the policeman in the convoy car. Deputy O'Neill said he saw one of the men reach over and put something down on the floor of their car. He said it might have been a machine gun.

The green coupé then ran through a red light and across Halsted street, turning north in Morgan street. The men in the convoy car dared not leave the patrol and chase the green coupé, but they obtained its license number. Arriving at the county jail, they telephoned United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer. The license number had been issued for a car of different make.

Search for Owner.

Marshal Laubenheimer withheld the number and the name of the person to whom it had been issued. Detectives were ordered to search for the owner.

The government's apprehension for the safety of Sans became known when Attorney William F. Waugh appeared before Federal Judge Charles W. Woodward with a motion to reduce Sans' $50,000 bond to $20,000. Prosecutor Fisher admitted that the government at one time had agreed to a reduction of the bond to $25,000.

Since the murder of Winkler and the supposed suicide of Lebensberger, however, postal inspectors believe that Sans "might run afoul of something," if he were freed on bond, Mr. Fisher informed the court.

Offers to Surrender Sans.

"I offered to surrender Sans the day before he was indicted," said Attorney Waugh, "but I was told the government did not know him and did not want him."

The indictment naming Sans, Lebensberger and McLaughlin as having in their possession some of the bonds taken in the robbery of mail being delivered to the First National bank on Dec. 6, 1932, had been suppressed. It was returned in court the day Lebensberger's body was found.

McLaughlin and Sans were arrested the same day. Winkler, partner of Lebensberger, was shot to death three days later.

"Sans, like Lebensberger, and McLaughlin, was one of the prime movers in the disposition of the stolen bonds," Fisher told the court. He added that a new indictment would be voted naming Sans and others.

"The death of Sans would be a catastrophe to the government's case," the prosecutor declared, "and the government feels it should keep him in jail."

The federal prosecutor also informed the court that McLaughlin, a former legislator and politician, who became prominent in the gambling world, had abandoned his efforts to have his bail reduced, feeling safer in jail.

Bank Produces Key.

State and federal authorities had hoped to find in the Lebensberger safety box records that might prove helpful in tracing the stolen bonds. After three days of delay bank officials produced a key yesterday morning. Coroner Frank J. Walsh, Jack Rubens, representing the public administrator, and other officials were present when Sans was brought there by deputy marshals. The box was opened.

"Not even a postage stamp," remarked Walsh.

Joseph Bergl, partner of Winkler in the ownership of a garage where gangsters' cars were armored, was rearrested late yesterday by federal authorities. Bergl ordered bullet proof glass, police lights, a siren and a short wave radio set installed on the car used in the mail robbery of last Sept. 22. So far he has not been accused in connection with the Dec. 6, 1932, robbery. He was taken to the office of Melvin Purvis, chief of the U. S. bureau of investigation, who has been in charge of the investigation of the September mail robbery.

Another man questioned yesterday was Maurice "Mossy" Joy, a bondsman. After being held for two hours at the United States courthouse he was released.

WINKLER'S ST. LOUIS FUNERAL ATTENDED BY SMALL CROWDS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Gus Winkler, a St. Louis hoodlum who rose to power in the Chicago underworld, was buried in Park Lawn cemetery here today after services at the Church of St. George.

His widow, other relatives, and a few spectators were on hand. The church services were by special permission, it was explained by an attaché of the church, which Winkler used to attend before he went to Chicago. Winkler received absolution just before he died.

The Rev. Joseph A. Siebert, pastor of St. George's, who was Winkler's pastor when he was a boy, said a low mass. The burial was in the nonsectarian cemetery where his father and mother are buried.

The widow, Mrs. Georgette Winkler, sat at the head of the casket. Occasionally she put her head down on the casket and sobbed.

POLICE SLAYER SENTENCED TO 199 YEAR TERM

Another Murderer Nears Death in Chair.

Peter [Piccolo Pete] Pace, 21 years old, was sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Charles P. Molthrop for the murder of Policeman Patrick J. Ryan. A jury found Pace guilty a month ago after hearing testimony that the hoodlum shot the policeman because the latter refused to drink a glass of wine in the saloon of Edward Bergman at 3328 Armitage avenue.

Judge Molthrop imposed sentence after overruling a motion for a new trial. The judge said he did not believe the point raised by the defense as to the constitutionality of the 199 year sentence sufficient for a new hearing.

As sentence was passed on Pace all obstacles to the execution of a second police killer, Ross King, alias Kenneth Smith, apparently had been removed. King is to die in the electric chair at 12:01 a. m. Monday for the murder of Policeman Harry Redlich in an attempted robbery.

Clemency Plea Denied.

King has been refused a rehearing by the state Supreme court and the governor has denied a plea for executive clemency. Defense Attorney William Scott Stewart said yesterday that he would make no effort to file an insanity petition in behalf of King, who has been examined by alienists.

Asked if the examining alienist had found that King was sane, the defense attorney refused to answer, but he countered with the remark that he "would not file such a petition unless it had a basis in fact."

The execution of King will be the second of a police killer in three days. Morris Cohen, 38 years old, went to his death in the electric chair at the county jail early yesterday.

Cohen was executed for the murder of Policeman Joseph Hastings during a robbery on Navy pier on Aug. 14. His last minute plea for executive clemency was not denied by Gov. Horner until 11 o'clock Thursday night.

Gets Life Imprisonment.

Richard Basile, alleged member of the 42 gang, was found guilty of complicity in the murder of Policeman Maurice Marcusson yesterday by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller. His punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

A motion for a new trial was set for hearing next Wednesday. Basile was the driver of the car for the holdup gang who shot the policeman in a robbery in a dress shop at 323 West Jackson boulevard.

Another member of the gang, Tony Rocco, previously had been sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary after he had obtained a separate trial. George Chevas, whose car was used in the robbery, was found not guilty yesterday by the jury.

Comments on Long Sentence.

Judge Molthrop in ruling on the motion for a new trial in behalf of Pace commented at length on the 199 year sentence, first used by jurors of Cook county during the first month of the war on crime.

"The only point that you have raised is that the 199 year sentence is unconstitutional," the judge told defense attorneys. "I must confess that I have some curiosity as to what the state Supreme court will say about the sentence. The sentence was designed by the jurors to prevent parole and to defeat possible action by the board of pardons and paroles to release the defendant."

Defense attorneys indicated that an appeal would be taken to the Supreme court. The sentence, if upheld, assures that the prisoner must spend 66 2-3 years in the penitentiary before he can be paroled, as the state law calls for the serving of one-third of such a sentence. Under a life sentence a criminal is eligible for parole in 20 years.

Sentenced for Extortion.

Philip Denenza, 25 years old, 1819 South Laflin street, was convicted of extortion by a jury in the court of Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday. Judge McKinlay almost immediately sentenced the defendant to one to 20 years in the penitentiary.

Denenza was sentenced for sending a letter demanding $5,000 from James Isodoro, owner of a delicatessen store at 1010 South Western avenue, on July 1.

Eight Others Sentenced.

These sentences and eight others yesterday brought to 421 the number of criminals sentenced since the beginning of the Criminal court war on crime. The others sentenced are:

LUCCA DI MONTE, 33 years old, sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge James F. Fardy for the murder of his wife, Nella, 22 years old, on June 17, 1933.

JOHN STEWART, 40 years old, sentenced to one year to life by Judge Benjamin Epstein for the burglary of the basement flat of Junius Welsh, 5329 Hyde Park boulevard.

PAUL BATTAGLIA, 19 years old, sentenced to one year to life by Judge Benjamin Epstein for the robbery of Leroy Jones, 5704 North Maplewood avenue.

JOSEPH STEWART, 35 years old, sentenced to one to 20 years by Judge Francis Allegretti for taking indecent liberties with a 7 year old girl.

BERNARD WILSON, 20 years old, colored, sentenced to 20 years for the rape of a 13 year old colored girl.

VICTOR MANFRE, 18 years old, sentenced by Judge Benjamin Epstein to 1 to 20 years for the robbery on Feb. 16 of Milo Nordress, a laundry wagon driver.

ROBERT ANDERSON, 26 years old, sentenced to one to 20 years by Judge Thomas J. Lynch for the theft of an automobile from Robert Specht, 6214 Dorchester avenue.

SAM M'GUFF, 34 years old, sentenced to one to five years by Judge Walter P. Steffen for the attempted theft of an automobile of Louis E. Collins, 4145 Broadway, on Aug. 19, 1932.

State Gets Seventh Delay for Trio Accused of Murder

Three gunmen who are charged with the murder of a bank cashier won the seventh continuance of their trial yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers on the motion of the state. The defendants are John Scheck, already under sentence to die in the electric chair for the courtroom murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, and Carl Grundhoefer and Frank Keglovitz.

The defendants were indicted last May on the charge that they shot and killed Cashier Harry Mueller in a robbery of a Niles Center bank. Mueller, according to testimony, was murdered when he returned from lunch and interrupted the robbery.

The seventh delay in the case gave support to a rumor that a powerful figure in Cook county politics is seeking leniency for Grundhoefer, said to have been the actual killer.

Further indication of such a move was seen in the fact that the name of Grundhoefer has been submitted to the defense as one of the state witnesses in the case.

"Does this mean that Grundhoefer is going to be given leniency for testimony given for the state?" Attorney Emmett Byrne, representing Scheck, asked the court.

There was no answer, and the question was put to Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, who was appointed to defend Grundhoefer.

"I do not know what the state is going to do," the public defender answered. "My client has admitted to the state that he fired the shot and this ruins my case."

Attorneys James M. Burke and George Crane, representing Keglovitz, had opened the hearing with a request for a change of venue from Cook county. The attorneys argued that their client would not get a fair trial because of the recent action of Judge Benjamin Epstein and Judge Thomas A. Green in reprimanding juries for alleged leniency to criminals.

Judge Brothers overruled the motion and Attorney Burke asked a severance for his client. Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan asked a recess in order that he might confer with others in the prosecutor's office.

State Asks Continuance.

He returned to the courtroom with the announcement that the state "would like the motion continued until Monday."

"If we go to trial Monday we'll need a special venire," Judge Brothers told the attorneys. "Will we go to trial?"

"I think we will go to trial," Prosecutor Coghlan replied.

Judge Brothers continued the case until Monday with the announcement that he would call a special venire for Tuesday. In case the trial was started Monday, he said, the regular venire could be used for the first day.

Inmate of Relief Shelter Is Arrested as Burglar

Desplaines street police were notified early yesterday that burglars were in a second hand store at 1051 Lake street. Policemen James Sheehan, James Lockington, and Charles Gross went to the store and captured Leo Chops, 29 years old, who gave his address as the relief shelter at 116 South Green street. Chops directed the police to 1033 Lake street, where an accomplice, Anthony Tolbeck, 34 years old, was arrested.

VAN LOON GETS BACK HIS PANTS; WANTS APOLOGY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 13.—With his pants and other clothing attached as security for sundry dental work and his temper frayed at the cuffs, Hendrik Willem van Loon, the writer, spent the day scurrying around town trying to get his assorted articles of clothing free from court attachment and missed the boat he was supposed to take to America.

He relieved his feelings by telling the world in general what he thought of Dr. Daniel Hally-Smith, American dentist in Paris, who had outstanding a bill of about $700 for work on five of Van Loon's teeth.

"When anybody attaches my pants they have attached something more than they can handle," the noted writer gritted. He added that he was going to sue Dr. Hally-Smith.

After much ado, Dr. Hally-Smith released Van Loon's pants and other belongings, but the injured author is still insisting on an apology.

BERMUDA BARS ITALIAN FRIEND OF ASTOR WIDOW

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Refused permission to land in Bermuda, Enzo Fiermonte, Italian boxer, who is reported to be seeking the hand of the wealthy Mrs. Madeline Dick, widow of John Jacob Astor, will return to New York tomorrow. He arrived today on the liner Queen of Bermuda and will return on the same vessel.

Fiermonte was detained aboard the ship. Immigration authorities refused to divulge the reason for his detention. It was said he came to Bermuda in answer to a cable advising him that his mother was very ill.

BIN BREAKS; CORN ON TRACKS.

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A grain elevator bin burst open today and gave the United States conservation corps a new job. A thousand bushels of corn spilled out of the bin to the Rock Island railroad tracks, tying up traffic until the conservation squad cleared it away.

Bead Dancer at World Fair Freed of Indecency Charge

Miss Eleanor Jones, who under the name of "Little Egypt" does a bead dance in the Oriental theater at the World's Fair, was freed yesterday of a charge of indecent exposure before Judge Erwin J. Hasten in the Woman's court. Another dancer, Miss Rosita Carmen, who does a fan dance at the Palm Gardens, 4753 Broadway, fared differently. She was fined $25 on a charge of indecent dancing.

DODD PROTESTS NAZI ASSAULTS ON AMERICANS

Sees Foreign Chief After Waiting for Hours.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Ambassador William E. Dodd of the United States began a long deferred conference with Foreign Minister Konstantine von Neurath at 8 o'clock tonight regarding Nazi assaults on Americans. The session lasted half an hour. Upon emerging from the foreign ministry Mr. Dodd said:

"The matter is in progress of solution which I think will be satisfactory."

The ambassador declined to discuss any other development. Mr. Dodd had been kept waiting at the American embassy for his interview with the foreign minister from 11:30 o'clock this morning because Baron von Neurath was engaged in a lengthy cabinet session on disarmament.

Three Others Protest.

The United States had no corner on the protests. The Dutch, British, and Spanish embassies joined in.

Mr. Dodd's plain spoken and direct manner at the conclusion of the interview left the impression that he had forcefully told the representative of the German government how urgently America wants to know what has been done to punish the German attackers.

Since April 4 Dodd was prepared to tell the baron 27 Americans have filed affidavits claiming molestation by Germans. However, records showed that only two suspects had been apprehended. One was fined.

Dodd's frank public addresses hitherto have led members of the American colony to believe that he couples with a genuine appreciation for Germany's contributions to civilization an unflinching firmness in protecting American interests.

At the American embassy it was learned that Mr. Dodd will have further conferences with Baron von Neurath until the situation is cleared up.

Germany Prepares Reply.

From a reliable German source it was learned that the German ministry of the interior was preparing information asked by Secretary Hull. This, it was said, will include evidence that several assailants of Americans have been sent to concentration camps.

Chancellor Hitler also was reported to be pressing the huge apparatus of the propaganda ministry into service to acquaint every German in Germany, even those in the smallest hamlets, with orders that foreigners, irrespective of race or creed, must not be molested, and especially that foreigners cannot be expected to raise their hands in the Nazi salute.

Comments on Dodd's Speech.

Commenting on Dodd's statement, "it would be no sin if statesmen learned enough history to realize no system implying control of society by privileged seekers ever ended in any other way than a collapse," Der Tag said:

"Such, too, was the end of the parliamentary plutocratic Weimar system" [the German constitutional system].

It similarly interjects, "that is probably why we are denied colonies," after quoting Dodd's speech: "Statesmen today must learn how to develop in a friendly spirit the resources of the undeveloped regions of the world."

KAVANAGH LAYS CRIME TO PUBLIC TOLERANCE OF IT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Tolerance of the American people tonight was called by Judge Marcus Kavanagh of Illinois the main ally of the criminal in the United States.

Addressing the national anti-crime conference the Cook county judge advocated reform of the courts, changing of prisons from "club houses" to real penal institutions, eradication of political influence over justice and "return to the old time reverence of Almighty God" as the answer to the crime situation.

He also expressed belief that, where flogging of prisoners is permitted, physical pain punishment is the greatest deterrent. A few hours before, the first of the conference's committees to submit a report had recommended flogging for those convicted "of more serious crimes."

"The verdict of 'not guilty' satisfies the American subconscious mind," he said. "The first and greatest effort of this association will be to awaken the American conscience; to make the American citizen angry at the commission of a crime; to cause him to demand of the public officials a stern and wise enforcement of the law, and, above all, that he shall go into the jury box in a Criminal court with a mind hardened as to the comfort of the prisoner.

"The prisons of the country need a checking up, the wardens, who themselves are faddists, or who have come under the control of faddists, need to be removed, and the prison turned into what a prison should be, a place of confinement and punishment."

1 DEAD IN BLAZE IN OIL PLANT; 5 ARE MISSING

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP)—One man is dead, another is in a critical condition in Bayonne General hospital, and five others were still unaccounted for early today after a fire that swept the waterfront of the Standard Oil company's Lower Hook plant, damaged two concrete piers and four lighters, destroyed the fuel supply launch where it originated, and for a time threatened the whole plant.

The blazing piers and launch were visible for miles along the New York, Brooklyn, Staen Island and Jersey shores, and lighted the stack of the Jacob Ruppert, flagship of the Byrd antarctic expedition, moored a mile away at Constable Hook with steam up for a midnight departure. She was never in danger, however.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO VISIT FAIR AS GUEST OF WOMEN

Plan Great Reception for Oct. 31.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will come to Chicago the latter part of this month to be the guest of all the women of the city at a gala program at A Century of Progress on Oct. 31. Announcement that the President's wife had accepted the invitation was made by Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, at a tea yesterday in federation headquarters in the Republic building.

The invitation was extended by letter, Mrs. Hardy said, in the name of all Chicago women without respect to organization affiliations. Mrs. Roosevelt replied that she would be in the city on Oct. 30 to preside over a national meeting of women chairmen of the Mobilization for Human Needs conference. That gathering is scheduled to last one day and her program will permit her to remain over for the celebration at the Fair, she wrote.

Plan Program Today.

Plans for the women's day fête will be made this morning at a meeting of the heads of the largest feminine organizations, called into conference by Mrs. Hardy. The meeting is scheduled for 11 o'clock at federation headquarters. It is expected that Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, wife of the president of the Exposition, will be made honorary chairman of the day and that a committee of prominent women will be named to handle the arrangements.

Invitations to President and Mrs. Roosevelt to view the 1933 World's Fair found the chief executive of the nation too occupied to make the trip until the American Legion convention. The fleeting visit they were able to make to the grounds on that occasion was a source of regret to city and Fair officials. Mrs. Roosevelt's decision to devote another day to the Exposition is expected to inspire an enthusiastic reception.

Represent Many Cities.

Women chairmen of the Mobilization for Human Needs conference, who will be in Chicago on Oct. 30, represent many of the large cities of the country. Their discussions will center on the financial drives of the private charitable institutions of their communities. Welfare work done by these agencies takes a considerable load off the governmental relief rolls.

Mother Is Named

Pawhuska, Okla., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Norma Smallwood of Tulsa, who won the "Miss America" contest in Atlantic City in 1926, and her husband, Tom Gilcrease, Creek Indian, are the principals in an unusual divorce action filed here.

Gilcrease named the blue eyed beauty's mother, Mrs. Mahala Smallwood, as a co-defendant in the first petition, in which he seeks custody of the 4 year old son. The Gilcreases were married in 1928, when Norma was 20.

In a cross petition, Mrs. Gilcrease likewise asks for the boy, and also $500 a month temporary alimony until a property settlement can be reached.

Gilcrease has been married twice. His first wife was an Osage Indian.

HOLC PAYS SKM, WHILE COD-VOH WAIT FOR THEIRS

A Story of Tax Troubles in Du Page County.

The destinies of the RFC and HOLC seem to be getting themselves all entangled with the destinies of the COD and VOH.

S. K. MARKMAN.

RFC means Reconstruction Finance corporation, a large source of government easy money. HOLC means Home Owners' Loan corporation, for which the capital was furnished by RFC, and which has the avowed purpose of throwing out the life line to home possessors whose mortgages are about to sink them.

In this lexicon of abbreviations COD represents the county of Du Page and VOH the village of Hinsdale. Another legend, SKM, means Samuel K. Markman, who is the Chicago area counsel for HOLC and a resident of COD and VOH.

SKM Draws a Salary.

From HOLC, which is supported by TAXES—this needs no explanation—SKM draws a salary of $350 a month. He was appointed to his post on July 20.

The financial condition of COD and VOH is somewhat strained because TAXES are slow in coming in. Yesterday Mrs. Retta K. Martin, county treasurer, made public a delinquency list showing that only 65 per cent of the real estate levy for 1932 had been collected. The total as extended was $4,193,000; the total collected to the penalty date, Aug. 1, was $2,700,000.

In the VOH, long considered one of the wealthiest of Chicago suburbs, there are many delinquencies in special assessments and general taxation. The number of homes delinquent in COD in the matter of payment was estimated at 1,500, and the amount due on them at $700,000.

Ten Years of Arrears.

One of the citizens listed as delinquent in his payments was SKM. From year to year, according to Mrs. Martin, for a full ten years SKM'S indebtedness to COD and VOH has been growing until now the total of delinquency on his home stands at $8,233, a large proportion of this being for accrued penalties. SKM has, however, paid one-half the 1932 bill.

The attorney for HOLC admitted that he was a delinquent. But, he added, he had not paid because he had had a dispute with a tax buyer who held a lien on the property. A settlement, he said, would soon be reached and he would then pay his TAXES in the old home county.

MAJ. GEN. PARKER'S WORK HERE PRAISED BY DEFENSE COUNCIL

A resolution praising Maj. Gen. Frank Parker for his work as commander of the 6th corps army area was adopted yesterday at a special meeting of the National Defense council in the Great Northern hotel. Gen. Parker soon is to leave Chicago to take command of the army forces in the Philippines.

The council also adopted a resolution paying tribute to the memory of the late Capt. William P. Wright, former national commander of the G. A. R. Capt. Wright was general chairman and Gen. Parker has been military adviser of the council, which is made up of representatives of patriotic groups.

"KISS OF DEATH" GIRL ARRAIGNED AS A VAGABOND

Margaret Mary Collins, known as the "kiss of death" girl because of the death of seven of her gangster sweethearts, stifled a yawn when she appeared before Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten yesterday—Friday, the 13th—as the first woman to be arraigned on a vagrancy charge under the new criminal reputation law. When Judge Hasten asked her if she were worried because it was Friday, the 13th, she said that she wasn't a bit superstitious.

ONCE NOTORIOUS HOODLUM GUILTY ON 'VAG' CHARGE

Garfield Sullivan, once notorious in Chicago crime annals, was found guilty of vagrancy yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green and sentenced to serve six months in the Bridewell. The trial took five minutes.

Sullivan's hair, once a flaming red, had been dyed black when he appeared in court. Under the alias of Red O'Brien, the defendant once terrorized Chicago by stealing an automobile outside the Boys' court and committing 38 robberies in a little more than an hour.

One of his companions in that exploit was Virgil Litsinger. Young Litsinger is now serving a sentence for mail robbery. The criminal record of Sullivan, who is 34 years old, dates back to 1915. He has served numerous terms in Pontiac, one of them for the $22,000 robbery of the Downers Grove State bank in 1921.

Sullivan was arrested on the vagrancy warrant on Oct. 6 as he sat in a car with two other men at Polk and Wood streets. Two revolvers were found in the automobile. Sullivan could not be tried on a gun charge as the automobile was not his.

GERMANY FIRM IN DEMAND FOR EQUALITY IN ARMS

Cabinet Ponders Crisis at All Day Session.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The German cabinet remained in session all day today and far into the night as Chancellor Hitler's government faced what was considered the greatest crisis in the history of disarmament.

No communique was issued after the cabinet session, but instructions issued to Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, are most likely to insist that the powers recognize Germany's equality claims as emphatically and repeatedly set forth on behalf of the Hitler government.

Germany Warns Powers.

Discussing Nadolny's arrival from Geneva, an inspired press said a "new situation confronts Germany." The newspaper Der Reichsbote undisguisedly warned:

"If a covenant is drawn up that brings for Germany no equality and for others no disarmament, then foreign nations need not wonder that such a document will not be taken seriously by Germany. Those powers responsible for making recognition of Germany's claims impossible must suffer the consequences."

It was semi-officially announced that Nadolny will remain in Berlin probably until Monday instead of returning to Geneva tomorrow as previously contemplated. The cabinet did not finish its deliberations on disarmament tonight and will resume them tomorrow.

Demands "Free and Equal" Deal.

The arms impasse arose from Germany's determination to be granted the right to free and equal arms negotiations at Geneva in the face of a reported resolution that Germany must not be allowed to rearm.

The semi-official diplomatische korrespondenz branded the disarmament convention proposal at "withdrawal from the principle of equality as fixed in a five power agreement" and asserted:

"It is incompatible with the principle of international politics if, as certain powers are openly attempting, they want to effect a 'disarmament covenant' which with many words seeks to veil the obvious fact that the highest armed powers refuse to undertake even the slightest step toward disarmament.

"With grave apprehension Germany observes these methods which already have led to an intensification of the situation.

"A prolonging of this state is most likely to jeopardize the cause of disarmament."

Secretaries of states and departmental chiefs were not present at today's cabinet session, a so-called chiefs' meeting which is convoked only when matters of the greatest delicacy are considered.

Threatens to Bolt Parley.

GENEVA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A threat that Germany will withdraw from the disarmament conference and perhaps from the league of nations if she is not permitted to negotiate freely tightened today the arms knot with which world statesmen are struggling.

The German spokesman who issued this warning maintained his government wants the same measure of initiative accorded other nations, and claims, not rearmament, but defensive weapons for equipping the standing army.

"We do not want to rearm," he insisted. "We merely want some weapons, the number of which is to be negotiated. While other nations have been arming up to the strength authorized by treaty, it has even been hinted to us that we can have the full number of arms of the type authorized by the Versailles treaty."

Steering Committee Meets Today.

The only way to get a saving compromise on disarmament, the spokesman added, is to negotiate on the basis of Germany's defense needs which, he emphasized, are not "rearmament needs."

In the absence of Rudolf Nadolny, chief German delegate, Baron von Rheinbaden, a former Prussian minister of state and finance, will represent Germany at tomorrow's meeting of the conference steering committee, when the British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, will report on the status of political negotiations.

Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, played golf today with the Briton, and between shots tried to think of new ways and means of keeping the conference going constructively. One indication of the probable nature of these plans lay in a report that Mr. Davis had tried to get other delegations to drop the fensive armament resolution.

He remained firm in a conviction that a convention must not be forced on Germany, but co-workers believed with the French and British that there should be no German rearmament in a proposed four or five year arms truce period.

New Zealand Orders Defenses Strengthened

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Prime Minister Forbes announced sweeping changes today in New Zealand's defenses. They provide for naval replacements, augmentation of the dominion's air arm and more modern equipment for coastal defenses. Personnel of the defense forces, the premier said, will be interchanged with that of Australia to develop a liaison between the two countries. He said the plan had been decided upon after consultation with authorities of the United Kingdom.

Testimony in Reichstag Fire Trial Favors Red Leader

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Ernst Torgler smiled happily tonight as he was led back to jail because he considered today's testimony in the trial of himself and four others for burning the reichstag building definitely in his favor.

The erstwhile floor leader of the communist section of parliament dropped his usually tense look when one reichstag inspector described him as an unusually industrious man who worked late.

Therefore, the watchman said, Torgler's presence in the building shortly before 9 o'clock on the night of Feb. 27 when the blaze broke out was not at all surprising.

Another inspector testified before the six red robed Supreme court judges that Torgler, when he did leave, was not in undue haste, as German newspapers asserted, but left calmly as always after chatting with the inspector and telephoning to a friend to meet him in a nearby restaurant.

A third bit of testimony adding to Torgler's satisfaction was that of a police sergeant who arrested the young Dutchman, Marinus van der Lubbe, and who declared he found neither a communist membership booklet nor a communist leaflet on the Dutch brickmason, who is another defendant.

The sergeant testified he found only a Dutch passport on Van Der Lubbe. The press alleged communist leader literature was carried by Van Der Lubbe.

For the other accused men, three Bulgarian political refugees and alleged communists, a better break also seemed in store.

Paul Teichert, a defense lawyer, presented a long list of requests for summoning as witnesses waiters and Moscow residents whose testimony, in Teichert's opinion, is calculated to dissociate the Bulgarians with the incendiarism.

As witness after witness described details of the fire and the arrest of Van Der Lubbe, that young man sat for hours with his head almost touching his feet.

Testimony today was interesting in that differing versions of the nature and number of burning places was given, but witnesses agreed that no storm troopers entered the burning building or roped off spectators and that no unusual leaves of absence were granted watchmen or other reichstag functionaries.

They were unanimous also in testimony that there was no unusual odor about the burning material.

Allegations that guards were withdrawn and that gasoline might have been sprayed about the building have been made previously.

Claims Seeing 25 Fires.

Alexander Scranowitz, a house inspector, said on the stand that he saw at least 25 small fires in the reichstag plenary hall besides the large blaze at the speaker's stand and that these appeared to have been placed at regular intervals.

"I was under the impression it took at least eight persons to start such a fire," he testified.

Van Der Lubbe confessed setting the blaze, but has consistently refused to answer questions whether he had assistance.

The witness said Van Der Lubbe appeared bewildered after his arrest and, in reply to questions as to why he had set the fire, declared only "Protest, protest."

NORTH IRELAND STAGES RAIDS ON REPUBLICAN ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 13.—The Ulster government is taking strong measures to round up suspected members of the Irish Republican army. In Belfast and elsewhere in the province dramatic raids are being made by police in armored cars.

Thirty-four arrests were made early this morning in Belfast when police threw cordons around certain areas and peremptorily entered houses in a search for men whose names were on lists of suspects. The men were taken from their beds, shoved into armored cars, and rushed to the central police station.

The government is using the powers of the civil authorities act, under which it can detain men without bringing them before a court. Further raids are expected. Fourteen arrests were made at Dungannon.

The murder of a constable in a Belfast street was attributed to the Irish Republican army and led to the action of the authorities. Sir Dawson Bates, home minister, said he will ask parliament for further powers if necessary to maintain law and order.

Rumanians Riot; Smash Jewish Shop Windows

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 13.—Anti-Semitic disorders occurred last night in Braila during which the local police president was beaten unconscious by demonstrators. The disorders began when a procession of the "Iron Guards" of Prof. Cuza marched through the streets singing anti-Semitic songs and smashing the windows of Jewish shops.

FINNISH NOVELIST, TWO POETS MENTIONED FOR NOBEL LITERARY PRIZE

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13.—(AP)—A proposal to honor the national literature of Finland in the award Oct. 20 of this year's Nobel prize for literature is understood to be under serious consideration.

In this connection the names of the novelist F. E. Sillanpaeae, and the poets Bertel Gripenberg and Arvid Moerne are mentioned. The novelist writes in Finnish, the poets in Swedish. Among the candidates most favored to win the prize in medicine is Dr. Constadin Levaditi, Rumanian born bacteriologist of Paris.

Sillanpaeae has written several collections of short stories dealing with peasant life and one novel dealing with the time of the Red insurrection in Finland which is regarded as an important document of social history. Gripenberg is regarded as the chief master of form among poets writing in Swedish. Moerne is a dramatist and novelist as well as a poet.

IMPORTERS CUT NAZI LABELS TO AVOID BOYCOTT

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—In their desire to prevent America from boycotting Nazi merchandise, German importers, working with merchants in this country, have been removing labels from goods shipped to the United States, it was revealed today.

As a result of the practice, which is a violation of the tariff act of 1930, George Z. Medalie, United States attorney, has ordered an inquiry.

Complaint, it was revealed, came to the Federal building from Peter Sullivan, customs agent in charge of complaints, who has received protests from all parts of the country.

Trade Body Declares There's Persecution.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Tossing aside precedent because of "dangerous tendencies in continental Europe and Asia," the American Federation of Labor convention today shouted its indorsement of a boycott of Germany and "any other" country that denies the right of free trade union organization.

Never before had the A. F. of L. taken such a step. But today, as it neared the end of its 53d annual convention, pleas from President William Green and a woman delegate brought the boycott.

A committee report held it would "seem unwise" to take action of that sort against one nation—Germany—without including other countries in which it said workers were denied free organization rights, or where "any people are being persecuted because of race, religious belief or political affiliations."

Such other nations, the report added, were "Italy, with its Fascism, Russia with its communism and China with its chaos."

Green Shows Feeling.

Green, speaking with great fervor, said the strong German trade union movement had been "destroyed overnight" by the Nazi, and asked for a "ringing declaration" that would "hearten our comrades overseas."

The convention arose and cheered. Then Selma M. Borchardt of the American Federation of Teachers, told of her recent visit to Germany.

"I saw a 5 year old girl with a six inch placard around her neck," she reported. "It said: 'My father sinned.' His sin had been that of marrying a Jewish woman."

She told other stories, said she was pleading for "the real Germany," and begged the convention to approve the committee report.

Once more the convention stood and cheered.

The vote was unanimous except for one man—Andrew Furuseth of the Seamen's union, who expressed fear that such action might bring internal dissension in the United States.

Criticize Some NRA Plans.

The convention's closing sessions voted to protest to the administration against "some officials of the NRA" who are attempting to undermine living standards under the cloak of an argument that such action would stimulate building construction."

It blamed delay in the public works program upon the "apparent laxity of local and state public officials in presenting authorization and plans for local public works" and added an appeal to President Roosevelt, the public works administration and state and local officials to expedite the work.

It said "violations of the codes in the textile industry are becoming more pronounced." The convention indorsed the fur workers' campaign against communism and rejected a proposal for a constitutional amendment calling for the retirement from business of all persons who have $150,000 or more.

ROYALIST PARTY DEMANDS END OF HAPSBURG EXILE

Austrian Monarchist Factions Split.

VIENNA, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Austria's only monarchist party, the Kaisertreue Volkspartei, outlined its aims and demands in a press conference today.

Rival monarchists, however, immediately challenged its right to speak for Archduke Otto, son of former Empress Zita and claimant to the throne, or for the monarchist movement.

The principal demands laid down by the party include revocation of the Hapsburg exile law and party representation in the cabinet.

Socialists urged a general strike and revolution as an answer to Fascist control of the nation. The Socialists made their demands in Die Wahrheit, a new and uncensored tabloid newspaper distributed through the mails. The paper said that unless Socialists were willing to risk their lives in a revolt against Premier Mussolini of Italy, "who is ruling Austria through his minister in Vienna," they might as well abandon hopes of repelling the Nazis.

7 HURT AS ARABS BATTLE POLICE IN JERUSALEM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Oct. 13.—Arab demonstrators today clashed with British police at the Damascus gate to the old city. Six Arabs and one policeman were injured.

The demonstration was in protest against the increase of Jewish immigration to Palestine, which is under a British mandate. Authorities had indicated that a strong hand would be used in putting down any disorder. This morning leaders of the demonstration marched to the gate, where they defied police orders to disperse. The police charged with batons and the gathering was scattered.

Arab-Jewish tension is acute throughout Palestine. All troops and police are mobilized and are patrolling the streets of the principal towns. All Jewish shops in the old city of Jerusalem are closed, a precaution taken through fear that a mass demonstration at the Mosque of Omar will break through the police guard.

FRENCH PREMIER PLANS 'DICTATOR' BUDGET MEASURE

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Premier Daladier will declare a state of emergency when parliament reconvenes Tuesday, it was learned officially tonight, in an effort to push through a gold franc program in whirlwind fashion.

The premier, following tactics which Raymond Poincare used when he saved the franc in 1926, will ask the chamber of deputies to adopt a procedure labeled "exceptional urgency" in the hope that a bill to balance the budget will be voted and fears of inflation will be allayed by the end of the week.

Daladier, who says he will stake the life of his cabinet on the proposal, must marshal a two-thirds majority on the emergency project. Salary reductions, increases in taxes, and heavy penalties for tax evaders are said to be included in the Daladier measure.

and junk dealer, and Lawrence C. O'Brien, once a member of the state legislature.

O'Brien and Oliver have served their terms, Paschen's case is now before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Rosenberg is awaiting trial.

Others sent to federal prisons in income tax cases are Al Capone, who long held the title of public enemy No. 1; his brother Ralph, Jack Guzik, Frank Nitti, and Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, once partners in the prohibition beer business in Chicago. The government has never failed to win a conviction in an income tax case in the Chicago district.

Evidence against Malone, as in the other cases, was gathered by special intelligence agents of the bureau of investigation, headed locally by A. P. Madden. The evidence was presented to the grand jury by United States Attorney Green and two special assistants, E. Riley Campbell and Leslie E. Salter.

U. S. JURY INDICTS NINE

John W. Fowler, chairman of the executive committee of the U. S. Gypsum company, and eight others were named yesterday in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury which charged use of the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Fowler, who is 67 years old and lives at 73 East Elm street, was formerly a banker in the east, having been vice president of the Lackawanna Trust and Safe Deposit company for seventeen years. He came to Chicago in 1912 as president of the Lake and State Savings bank and has held high positions with several other banks and corporations.

Among the other defendants named was Walter I. Beam of Wilmette, treasurer of the Farmers' National Grain corporation and vice president of the grain stabilization commission. From 1905 to 1913 Beam was prominently connected with the engineering corps working on the Panama canal. From 1917 to 1921 he was auditor of the U. S. Grain corporation.

Andrew C. Thompson of Elmhurst, president of the defunct Continental Mortgage Bond company, was another named in the indictment. He is already charged in another federal indictment with using the mails to defraud investors of more than $1,000,000.

Bonds of $10,000 were set for these three defendants. Bonds of $5,000 were set for the other six defendants, who are Lawrence Fowler of Scranton, Pa., brother of John W. Fowler; Howard S. Ivie, 920 Argyle street; John S. Duckworth, 7754 Chappel avenue, son-in-law of John W. Fowler; J. Stanley Conroy, 37 Madison avenue, New York City; Edward M. Miller, 5640 Perry avenue, and Albert O. Smith, Hotel Hamilton, New York City.

All the defendants were officials or employés of the Securities Investment Trust, an organization with offices at 20 West Jackson boulevard, or one of its subsidiaries.

Own Stock in Four Properties.

According to Assistant United States District Attorney James C. Leaton, who obtained the indictments after several months of investigation, the defendants owned a majority of stock in four properties—the North Park hotel, the Sutherland hotel, the Geneva Terrace apartments, and the Regal apartments. Prior to Nov. 1, 1930, they floated two bond issues totaling $5,000,000 on the properties and also sold $330,000 worth of stock to investors.

In the sale of this stock the Securities Investment Trust was advertised as a "going concern," according to Prosecutor Leaton, and the revenues were exaggerated 50 per cent while the operating expenses were understated by 50 per cent. The proceeds from the $330,000 sale of stock were pocketed by the defendants, Prosecutor Leaton declared.

The four properties went into receivership after November, 1930, Mr. Leaton declared, and the Securities Investment Trust folded up.

SIAMESE TROOPS OPEN ARTILLERY FIRE ON REBELS

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The artillery of government troops were turned tonight on two provincial rebel forces that were moving on this capital. Many feared the fighting would spread within the city. A number of business and commercial houses were closed. Foreign banks and legations were closely guarded.

Suburban residents were asked by the government to leave their homes when it was learned that the rebels, one group of which was commanded by a member of the royal family, were within eight miles of the city.

King Prajadhipok has been greatly alarmed recently over the growth of communistic tendencies and the government placed high prices on the heads of leaders of the revolt, including Prince Bovaradej, who once was Siam's defense minister. Minor clashes that presaged the advance of the rebels resulted this morning in injuries to many persons, it was feared.

R. F. C. MEMBER LOANED $300,000 BY DILLON, READ

Couch Got Money Before His Appointment.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The disclosure of a loan of $300,000 b yDillon, Read & Co. of New York to Harvey C. Couch, director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, was made today in the senate stock market inquiry.

The name of Mr. Couch did not figure in the day's testimony but was listed in a mass of statistical data of the New York banking house placed in the record by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, after it had been furnished by Dillon, Read & Co. in response to a dragnet committee questionnaire concerning the firm's operations.

The record showed that the $300,000 advance to Mr. Couch was made on Jan. 16, 1928, and that he had repaid $150,000 by July 16, 1931. It indicated that on Dec. 31, 1931 the balance of $150,000 still was due. Whether it has since been repaid was not revealed. Mr. Couch did not become a member of the board of the RFC until February, 1932, nearly four years after he obtained the loan. He was appointed by President Hoover.

Participate in $10,000,000 Pool.

The questionnaire data spread on the record today also directed that Mr. Couch and unnamed associates participated to the extent of 35 per cent in a so-called $10,000,000 "pool," or joint account, formed Oct. 8, 1927, to deal in securities of the Louisiana and Arkansas railway, of which Mr. Couch is president.

Dillon, Read & Co. had a 30 per cent participation in this transaction, one-third of which was later reallocated to Seligman & Co. The other participants in this so-called "pool" and their respective percentages were: P. G. Pack, 7½ per cent; C. S. McCain, 6½ per cent; Coverdale & Colpitts, 2½ per cent; J. A. Moffett, 10 per cent, and Rogers Caldwell, 8½ per cent. Mr. Caldwell withdrew from the account on June 8, 1931.

Profits 23 Million in 5 Years.

Aside from a full disclosure of the financial condition and operations of Dillon, Read & Co. for the five year period from Jan. 1, 1927, to Dec. 31, 1931, during which total profits by the firm or its agencies were $23,835,197.63 on stock and bond flotations totaling $6,261,464,000, there was another outstanding development.

This was the revelation by James V. Forrestal, member of Dillon, Read, that he had escaped the payment of at least $95,000 in federal income taxes in 1929 through the formation of two personally owned corporations, one in Canada and the other in Delaware. Through this dual corporation plan for legal escape of tax payment, he testified, he paid no income tax in 1929 on a stock profit of $864,000.

Mr. Pecora developed that his failure to pay American income taxes is now being dealt with by the internal revenue bureau, to which Mr. Forrestal several months ago filed a return covering 1929 and 1932 stock profits. He admitted that this return was filed as a result of income tax evasion disclosures made by the senate banking and currency committee in May, 1933.

Names Banks Dealt With.

The Dillon, Read statistical data furnished by that firm to Mr. Pecora in response to 23 questions covering the five year 1927-'31 period included the firm's consolidated balance sheet, the names of all banks and trust companies in which it maintained deposits, names of officers and directors of trust companies to which the firm made personal loans, details respecting all loan flotations in which the firm participated whether managed by itself or others, and a transcript of all loan accounts in the names of any persons in which collateral pledged consisted of securities in which the firm participated as a member of any bankers' group or others. It was in this latter transcript that the $300,000 loan to Mr. Couch was listed.

Lists Its Total Assets.

The consolidated balance sheets of Dillon, Read & Co., a New York joint stock association, and Dillon, Read & Co., its Delaware corporation, listed its total assets, and also its capital accounts liabilities for Dec. 31 of each of the five years as follows:

Year—	Total assets.	Capital accounts.
1931	25,780,753.05	9,332,009.77

Under the heading of liabilities the consolidated balance showed that on Dec. 31 of each of these years the "credit balances" of the firm were:

1927	$44,686,227.29
1929	33,460,222.66
1930	9,501,412.24

Represents Bond Issues.

The total amount of the bond issues in which Dillon, Read & Co. or their agencies participated to the extent of $250,000 or more per issue between Jan. 1, 1927, and Dec. 31, 1931, was given in the firm's voluminous response to Mr. Pecora's questionnaire as $6,261,464,000, of which $1,146,627,500 represents bond issues managed by Dillon, Read and $5,114,464,000 bond issues managed by others but in which Dillon, Read participated.

In addition, Dillon, Read, in the same five year period, participated in stock issues totaling 31,896,426 shares, of which they themselves managed 9,875,788.

The total profits of Dillon, Read or their agencies on the stock and bond issues was given as $23,835,197.63.

NIXON OF TAX BOARD ILL OF TYPHOID FEVER

George F. Nixon, one of the two members of the tax board of appeals, is in St. Luke's hospital with a mild attack of typhoid fever, it was learned yesterday. He became ill in his office in the county building Tuesday and was taken to the hospital Thursday, where his physician, Dr. Arthur R. Elliott, declared the patient was resting easily.

Because the law requires that both members of the board hear complaints on assessments, it was reported that Fred Brummel, the other member of the board of appeals, contemplated asking Gov. Horner to urge legislation permitting the appointment of a third member.

However, Otto Woerter, chief clerk of the board, pointed out that the first hearing on complaints has been set for Oct. 26.

Link Bridge Repairs to Be Finished Wednesday

Repairs to the Michigan avenue bridge will be completed by next Wednesday, Thomas Philfeldt, city bridge engineer, estimated yesterday. After this the east traffic lane will be opened to a full flow of traffic. The bridge was damaged on Oct. 3 when it was struck by the steamship Theodore Roosevelt. One girder was severed and several were bent in the collision, which prevented the two spans from closing completely on the east side of the bridge.

ACTRESS TELLS OF BEATING AT HANDS OF ACTOR

Struck, Then Sat on Her, Alice White Charges.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Alice White's story of a terrific beating at the hands of John Warburton, movie actor from England, was told in a transcript of the blonde actress' recent testimony before the grand jury, released today.

At the same time there was made public the testimony of Martin Block that he and Russell Brown had been induced by Sidney Bartlett, movie writer and friend of Miss White, to attempt to disfigure Warburton in retaliation for the latter's beating of the actress.

Block and Brown were indicted recently for robbing and beating Warburton, but the grand jury took no action against Bartlett, who refused to testify.

Miss White testified Warburton beat her so at her home after a Beverly Hills party that her face was "frightfully disfigured," her eyes swollen until she could not see, and that she had to have a plastic surgeon work on her nose.

Warburton, she said, struck her without warning, then threw her down in front of her house and sat on her.

"He beat me up all over the street and grabbed me by my hair," she said. "It's a wonder I didn't die."

She testified she was ill in bed four days and was away from work at her studio five days.

She denied Bartlett had ever told her of any plan to gain revenge on Warburton, except to say that he would like to "sock" the Englishman.

The trouble started, she said, at the Beverly Hills party when Warburton got into an argument with some one and strode off in a huff for her home, after she had told him to "calm down."

Miss White said she refused to leave the party with Warburton and that when she went home some hours later he met her at the door and "smacked" her in the face.

The blow that started the beating she constantly described in her testimony as a "smack," but at one point she said: "Yes, sir, it was pretty brutal."

Wore Dark Glasses.

She said she wore dark glasses in efforts to hide her injuries, but that Bartlett, whom she had known five years, finally drew the story from her. She was reticent, she said, because she did not want Bartlett to know that she had been going about with Warburton. She said she had known the latter only a short time, but she had not seen Bartlett for some weeks at the time of the beating.

Miss White quoted Bartlett as saying "Mr. Warburton seems to like to hit women" and then she added the remark: "You see he had blacked both of Miss Taylor's eyes previously."

She did not further identify "Miss Taylor."

Finnegan Named Racket Trial Judge After "Veiled Threats"

Judge Philip J. Finnegan, newly appointed to sit in the Criminal court, was assigned yesterday to hear the case in which 24 defendants are charged with conspiracy to terrorize Chicago business men. Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan of the Criminal court indicated that he had assigned the case to Judge Finnegan in defiance of "veiled threats" and "scurrilous charges."

The defendants and their attorneys had trooped into the court of the chief justice after a change of venue had been granted by Judge Walter P. Steffen. Chief Justice Sullivan mounted the bench and displayed a copy of Federation News, which is described on the front page as the official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

The chief justice, who was red of face and apparently angry, addressed the defendants: 'Last night I was awakened from my sleep by a special delivery letter. The letter contained a copy of the Federation News which has a marked article full of scurrilous charges. I consider the article as a veiled threat and am forced by it to assign Judge Finnegan to hear the case."

The article in question, marked with blue pencil, was headed "Hot Question for Courtney—Conspiracy to Handpick Judge." The article, addressed to State's Attorney Courtney, asked why the case had been continued by Judge Steffen instead of being sent back to the chief justice for reassignment after 17 defendants had asked changes of venue.

"Is it not a fact," the article asked, "that in the normal course of events a case is transferred for reassignment the minute a change of venue is asked? Why did your employers' association special prosecutor, Mr. Raber, induce Judge Steffen to continue the case?

"Did you get any influence in motion to induce the executive committee of the Circuit court to assign Judge Finnegan from the Circuit to the Criminal court at almost the same hour and moment when Special Prosecutor Raber was successful in having the case continued?

"Why should not this case be assigned to one of the judges regularly sitting in the Criminal court and hearing criminal cases?"

Defense Attorneys Benedict J. Short and Joseph Harrington protested vigorously to the assignment of Judge Finnegan and said that it was not fair to their clients who had nothing to do with the newspaper.

"I have announced my order," Judge Sullivan said." You will appear before Judge Finnegan on Monday."

Judge Finnegan had been made eligible to hear the case by a surprise move on the part of Prosecutor Raber in asking that a nol pros be entered in the case of Sam Feldman, head of the Cook County Hand Laundry association, one of the defendants. This action was taken.

Feldman was the only defendant who had named Judge Finnegan as prejudiced in his petition for a change of venue.

governments, and cities helped the great real estate boom along by buying new sites for schools, playgrounds, and parks and rights of way for boulevards. An encouragement to do this was the almost insatiable demand by investors for the obligations of cities. Municipal bonds were exempt from the federal income tax. The higher income taxes went, the more people were driven to seek exemption from them in municipal bonds.

Easy Borrowing the Rule.

Municipal borrowing became so easy that any city could borrow any amount for any purpose. Following are the facts about municipal and state indebtedness:

Year.	Amount of net debt of cities.
1912	$ 3,822,000,000
1922	8,696,000,000
1932	16,576,000,000

This thirteen billion dollars borrowed by states and cities since the war and the eight billion dollars borrowed since 1922 were strong contributing factors in advancing the price of real estate during the period shown.

These publicly borrowed funds were not the only funds nor the principal money which served to run up the prices of real estate to fantastic heights in the boom. Real estate mortgage bond companies, insurance companies, banks, and mortgage brokers made loans on the basis of the rising valuations, resulting in the situation shown by the following figures:

[Loans Outstanding on Urban Real Estate in the United States.]

Year.	Amount.
1913	$ 5,151,000,000
1921	8,968,000,000
1930	28,040,000,000

This twenty-three billion dollar increase in borrowed money, plus whatever funds were invested by the equity owners of the real estate were the principal factors resulting in the sensational real estate boom of the '20s. The eight billions borrowed by the cities just helped the cause along.

Came the dawn! Stocks fell, firms went out of business, families doubled up and rents fell. Here is how the government says the rentals of workingmen's dwellings went up and then down in Chicago:

Year.	Rentals.
1920	135
1933	109

Office buildings, particularly the older ones, have suffered severely. In one older building in Chicago rents are down 45 per cent since 1929 and occupancy is reduced one-third. This would indicate that income is now about 36 per cent of what it was in 1929.

Real Estate Market Dead.

Naturally the real estate market has been dead. Estimates are that the better grade of real estate is now valued at less than 60 per cent of what it was four years ago. For other types prices are off as much as 75 per cent.

The usual method of holding real estate is with a mortgage. It has been argued that mortgaged property could be more readily sold since it would take less money to swing a deal in case of sale. Financing with a loan of 60 per cent of fair market value was considered conservative. Many loans were made on the basis of 75 per cent of fair market value and not a few on a much higher basis.

With the decline in real estate valuations amounting to 40 per cent and more, the interest of most of the so-called owners of the property, that is, the owners of the equities over and above the mortgages, has been wiped out.

By foreclosures and the deeding of property by mortgagors to mortgagees much of the real estate difficulties are being cleared up. A very large part of the billions of excess value added by the 23 billion dollars of real estate loans and the 8 billion dollars of public loans has been squeezed out.

The Situation in Taxes.

But in one respect there has not been adequate recognition of the new conditions. That is as regards taxation. The tax assessors recorded the increase in the value of real estate on their books. To municipal authorities these higher valuations meant the opportunity to enter upon permanently larger activities.

Now the tax bill is the product of the base and the rate. Tremendous building operations and gigantic real estate loans shot upward the base, but at the same time the rate was increasing. It had been the practice of governments for years to raise the tax rate a little each year over the preceding year. The following table shows the tax levy in Chicago for corporate purposes and schools only:

Year.	Amount.
1920	64,703,260
1925	112,810,090
1930	168,606,590

Thus governments adopted a scale of spending commensurate with the higher rate and higher valuation. The fallacy consisted in assuming that the higher valuations were permanent. It has already been shown that they were not.

Back to Pre-War Levels.

Real estate valuations are now back to pre-war levels. If we may judge by experience, to run the prices back to where they were in 1928 it would be necessary to have 31 billion dollars invested in real estate and something to engender a high state of anticipation about further increases. By no stretch of the imagination can it be conceived that any such result will come about at any dependably early date.

Since 31 billion dollars is not waiting to be plunged into real estate it is necessary for the municipalities to adjust their expenditures to a scale which accords with what may be taken from real estate on the present deflated values. The cities cannot collect from real estate anything like the amount required to pay for what is being currently spent.

But isn't there some other way of raising money? Let's take from others what the real estate owners can't or won't pay. Those prospects will be considered in subsequent installments.

SEABURY ATTACK ON LEHMAN SEEN AS AID TO M'KEE

La Guardia's Friends Fear Reprisals.

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Chief interest in the torrid mayoralty campaign centered tonight in what effect the attack of Samuel Seabury upon Gov. Herbert H. Lehman will have on the electorate.

Seabury, the sponsor of the so-called fusion ticket, led by F. H. La Guardia, assailed the governor for not taking some action on the evidence turned up by the Hofstadter commission.

The governor, like President Roosevelt, has been holding aloof from personal participation in the campaign, but the fear was expressed that Lehman's friends will now start reprisals against La Guardia.

Close Friend of Roosevelt.

Without an open attack upon the governor, it was anticipated that he would remain silent, and would do nothing to help either the Tammany ticket, nor the rival Democratic ticket of Joseph V. McKee. Lehman is not only a close friend of President Roosevelt, but also of Postmaster General James A. Farley, who is quietly supporting McKee.

It is assumed that if Gov. Lehman and his friends are aroused to action, either openly or on the quiet they also will line up behind McKee, as Tammany hall fought Lehman's nomination for governor.

While none of the fusion leaders would comment upon Seabury's outburst against the governor, it was admitted that they are worried. There is particular concern because of the fact that Seabury picked upon the governor in the course of a speech in the Bronx, which is heavily populated by Jews. There also is fear that the attack will be resented throughout the city.

Remarks of Seabury.

The remarks of Seabury in reference to the governor and the misuse of city relief funds, were as follows:

"If we had a governor of the state who was determined to enforce the law as it should have been enforced, these criminals that stole a good part of $10,000,000, would have been arraigned at the bar of criminal justice and some of them now would be in Sing Sing."

Mr. McKee was quick to seize upon Seabury's remarks. His comment was short but incisive:

"Judge Seabury is not a candidate. His attack on Gov. Lehman is the key to the man's character and what he is trying to do in this campaign. The people will resent any attack on a man who is one of the greatest governors this state has had.

"It is a compliment to me that I've been put in a class with Gov. Lehman. The campaign on the other side has been characterized by some pretty cheap and shoddy stuff."

McKee for Lehman Again.

Mr. McKee's political backers strongly favor the renomination of Col. Lehman for governor next year, and Mr. Seabury's criticism of the governor, which they declared to be wholly unjustified, came in for unfavorable comment by other leaders of the McKee campaign.

Tammany continued its reprisals against its leaders who have bolted to the McKee bandwagon. Kenneth F. Sutherland, Democratic leader of Coney Island, was removed from his post as assistant to the aldermanic president. Aldermanic President Dennis J. Mahon, acting under orders from Tammany Hall, announced that he had dismissed Mr. Sutherland for being absent from duty for two weeks without leave.

Police Stop Al Smith.

A flurry was caused in political circles when it became known that state police stopped former Gov. Alfred E. Smith at White Plains on his way from Albany to New York by automobile to tell him that George V. McLaughlin, chairman of the citizens' committee supporting Mr. McKee, wished to speak to him.

Mr. Smith, although a member of Tammany, has taken no position in the mayoralty fight. Mr. McLaughlin said his desire to communicate with the former governor had nothing to do with politics, but concerned business. The usual rally in Tammany Hall will take place next Tuesday night. Mr. Smith will leave that afternoon for Chicago to attend "Al Smith" day at A Century of Progress exposition.

100 Police Candidates Take Physical Tests

One hundred men who have passed the examination for city patrolmen underwent physical examination by police physicians yesterday preparatory to being certified to Police Commissioner Allman as probationary policemen. After the physical examination the men were taken through the bureau of identification to determine if any had police records. They will take a course in the police school, after which they will be added to the force to fill vacancies and bring the strength of the uniformed force to 5,374 men.

PRESIDENT INSISTS HE'LL NOT MOVE UP THANKSGIVING DATE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Pleas to President Roosevelt on the part of retail merchants and other trade organizations to have him change the date of Thanksgiving day this year have fallen on deaf ears.

President Roosevelt, it was announced at the White House today, has no intention of moving up Thanksgiving day one week in order that a week's more time may be had for the promotion of Christmas sales and thus boost national recovery.

The proposal has been both promoted and opposed by numerous retailers and commercial organizations throughout the country, but it was explained at the White House that to advance the date of Thanksgiving a week would cause considerable confusion, due to the fact that in many states the legislatures have, by statutes, fixed the date for Thanksgiving.

It was stated further that Thanksgiving day, which falls this year on Nov. 30, has never been changed and that to do so now would result in confusion. It would also disarrange football games which are scheduled for Thanksgiving and interfere with railroad excursions at that time.

Tax Claim Filed Against Edith McCormick Estate

A claim for income taxes totaling $92,829 was filed in the Probate court yesterday against the estate of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, asserted in the claim that no income taxes had been paid by Mrs. McCormick for the 18 months before her death on Aug. 25, 1932.

BOWLER MAKES THREAT OF 5C TRACTION FARE

Demands Action on Some Unification Plan.

Ald. James B. Bowler, chairman of the local transportation committee of the city council, declared yesterday that he will demand a revaluation of the street car and rapid transit properties with a view of instituting a five cent fare if a plan unifying both systems is not worked out and the city consolidation franchise ordinance accepted by Jan. 31, 1934.

Bowler's threat was made after a letter from Attorney Walter L. Fisher, traction expert, was read stating that progress was being made toward reorganization. Attorney Fisher was recently appointed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to coördinate the views of bondholders' committees for the exchange of securities.

Tired of Procrastination.

"I am glad to know that something is being done at last," said Ald. Bowler. "But we do not intend to allow any more procrastination. The city has been patient long enough. We will coöperate so long as something is being accomplished. But if the plan isn't in promising shape by Jan. 31, and the city 1930 merger ordinance is not accepted, there will be no more jockeying.

"I will urge our committee to recommend to the mayor and the city council a demand for the revaluation. Since the summer of 1930, when the ordinance was passed by the council and approved by the voters, there's been a big change in the value of the physical properties of the lines. They have dropped to a point warranting a lower fare than the seven cents and ten cents now being charged. It ought to be five cents.

"The revaluation threat is a big club, and there is every intention to use it."

In his letter, which was sent in response to a request for a report by Chairman Bowler, Attorney Fisher stated that substantial progress was being made toward a financial agreement. The lawyer said he expected to have definite suggestions for a revised reorganization plan within a few days.

Postpone Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the local transportation committee which had been set for next Wednesday to hear reports from the receivers of surface and "L" companies was postponed, subject to the call of the chairman, in view of the reported progress being made by Mr. Fisher.

D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store and chairman of the elevated lines bondholders' committee, appealed yesterday to the security holders, who have not yet done so, to deposit their bonds.

$115,000,000 FOR ILLINOIS RELIEF IN THREE YEARS

A total of $115,000,000 has been spent for emergency relief in Illinois since October, 1930, Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois emergency relief commission, told the National Conference on Rehabilitation of Disabled Persons yesterday at the closing session in the Hotel Sherman. About $16,000,000 of that total was privately donated, he said. The entire fund was given out either in work relief or cash.

Setting 1,500,000 as the number of persons aided, Mr. Reynolds asserted that from March to August of this year those on the relief rolls diminished from 322,000 to 225,000, with a corresponding drop in expenses from $7,500,000 to $5,500,000. In Chicago alone, 75,000 persons have been taken off the rolls since March, due to the NRA and A Century of Progress, he said.

William H. Stead, associate director of the United States Public Employment service, told the conference that with an unemployment insurance program near, an adequate, well organized public employment service will become a necessity. He proposed that state and local governments operate public employment offices.

GETS 60 DAYS IN CELL.

STEVENS TRIAL TO GO TO JURY THIS AFTERNOON

Prosecutor Attacks Loans to Hotel.

The Ernest J. Stevens embezzlement case, which has been on trial in Judge Michael Feinberg's court since Sept. 25 will be given to the jury early this afternoon. Closing arguments will be made this morning by Attorney Franklin J. Stransky for the defense and Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hara. Instructions will be read to the jurors about 1 o'clock.

A verdict of guilty was asked by Assistant State's Attorney Earle Hurley last night. The evidence was sufficient, he said, to determine the amount of the embezzlement. With some question about other sums he indicated that the proper amount would be $700,000. The penalty in the event of conviction is one to ten years' imprisonment. The defendant and members of his family feel confident of an acquittal.

Charge by Prosecutor.

Prosecutor Hurley asserted that the defendant and his father and brother, owners of 75 per cent of the stock of the Illinois Life Insurance company and all of the stock of the Stevens hotel, "shoveled money out of the insurance company down Michigan avenue to save their primary interest, the hotel."

"These were the acts of desperate men," the prosecutor shouted. "They had to have the money to save the hotel. They refused warnings. They didn't care what happened to the Illinois Life. They took the money when they knew the hotel would never be able to repay it."

All this produced a wintry smile on the face of the Stevens group. They appeared to feel they had met all these arguments and crushed them.

A little matter of half a million dollars was cleared up by the last witness to go on the stand, George F. Raymer, former secretary to James W. Stevens, the father of the defendant and president of the insurance company, who is now seriously ill. Mr. Raymer, as a witness for the prosecution, had testified that James W. Stevens had borrowed large sums from the insurance company in 1931 and had loaned the money to the hotel.

He now wished to correct this testimoney, he said. The loans amounted to $42,000, instead of the "more than half a million" of his previous recollection, he asserted, and this money did not go to the hotel company. During that year, however, the elder Stevens did loan $522,000 of his own money to the hotel, according to Raymer.

Defendant on Witness Stand.

Ernest Stevens was on the stand most of the day. On cross-examination by Assistant State's Attorney O'Hara the defendant resisted every charge that there had been any wrongful intent in loaning funds of the Illinois Life Insurance company to the Hotel Stevens in 1931, the acts upon which the state bases its case of embezzlement. Stevens was vice president of the insurance company and managing director of the hotel.

These loans, the witness insisted during many clashes with the prosecutor, were made with the sole purpose of protecting the previous investments of the insurance company in the great hotel project. This investment at one time was $3,900,000.

The insurance company failed, Stevens said, not because of these loans but because of the panic of 1932.

"The policy holders rushed to the insurance company for loans when the banks closed," he said. "The insurance moratorium was all that saved all other companies."

Stevens was in frequent argument with the prosecutor.

"Why ask me these things—you know," he said during a series of questions which showed that the hotel had operated at a loss from the start, when payment of capital charges was included.

Stevens made it emphatic that he never owed the insurance company a cent.

80,000 Policy Holders.

For the first time in the case the 80,000 policy holders were mentioned. Stevens said their interest in the company was small in comparison with that of his own family. He had previously testified that the family holdings in Illinois Life approximated fifteen millions of dollars in 1931.

"Would I defraud my own family?" he asked in response to the suggestion that the loans were in favor of the hotel and detrimental to insurance company interests.

The prosecutor in his questions charged that $600,000 in Liberty bonds did "double service," and the books were "juggled," showing bonds in the hotel accounts and cash from the same bonds to the credit of the insurance company.

Stevens did not know of the insurance company bookkeeping, but said "there was no fraud in our way of keeping books."

He explained this transaction as occurring between Dec. 31, 1931, and Jan. 4, 1932, a customary manner of ending the year's accounts.

The future of the Stevens hotel was assured for at least 50 profitable years, the witness asserted. He estimated that the repeal of prohibition would bring an added $1,500,000 a year in food revenues to the hotel.

$3,900,000 Investment in Hotel.

At the beginning of his testimony yesterday Stevens said that at one time the Illinois Life Insurance company had an investment of $3,900,000 in the general bonds of the Stevens hotel. When the hotel project was launched, he said, it was figured that it would take from three to five years before it would cover operating and capital expenses. In 1928, he said, he invested $250,000 of his own money in the enterprise. The hotel cost about $22,000,000. Land bought at $2,500,000 was later appraised at $6,500,000 and $2,000,000 more in common stock was issued. The Stevens family held it.

"It was not on the market," said the witness. "People wanted to buy it, but we refused to sell."

"Did you at all times have faith in the Stevens hotel?" asked Mr. Stransky.

"I certainly did," was the reply. "I still have. I know it is going to be the greatest hotel in the world, although it is having temporary interference."

He was asked about the other depressions that he had seen as a hotel man and what he thought about the depression which began in 1929.

"I didn't think it could possibly last more than two or three years" he said.

"Was that belief fortified by financial journals?"

"Yes, there were many optimistic articles about things coming back. Hoover was talking about organizing a finance corporation and a concerted movement of recovery. There was much optimism. I was optimistic, too."

"Was this thought in your mind when the loans were made in 1931 by the Illinois Life to the hotel?"

Aim to Prevent Defaults.

"Yes, the Illinois Life had a large investment there. We figured that the sane, sensible, honorable thing to do was to maintain the character of that investment, so the bonds would not default. We felt the hotel would come back and everything would be O. K. Then, between Dec. 31 and July, 1932, 100 banks closed in this city. There was crash after crash that we had not anticipated. No one did."

"Did you ever have the slightest thought of doing anything wrongful?"

"My sole object was to preserve these properties. It was my duty. I had nothing to gain by wrecking the Illinois Life, for that was our principle source of income."

His own investment in Illinois Life, Stevens said, was 5,480 shares. His brother, Raymond, had the same. His father, James W., had 20,000 shares. This was figured at $500 a share in 1931, the witness said, making a total family holding of $15,000,000.

"We would not sell for that," the defendant said. "We even had offers of $20,000,000."

"Did you ever intend to defraud the Illinois Life?"

"Would I want to defraud my own family?"

Salary $72,000 a Year.

Stevens testified that his salary in 1931 as managing director of the Stevens hotel was $72,000 a year, out of which he paid promotion and personal expenses.

He said that under the Stevens hotel receivership "they are paying now $7,900 a month for what I used to do for $6,000." Stevens is now manager for the hotel under the receiver.

He received no salary as vice president of the insurance company and did little there, he said, except serve on the finance committee. His father was head of the company and was on the job every day. His brother was active manager.

"Is there any intention of casting any blame on them?" asked Attorney Stransky.

"No, I want to assume any responsibility there is for anything that I have done or that the family did."

The profitable economic life of the Stevens hotel, he said, was at least 50 years from the present time.

Stevens was asked about the effect of prohibition repeal on hotel revenues. This would be chiefly reflected, he testified, in increased food revenues, which had decreased steadily under prohibition.

"Trade Diverted to Speakeasies."

"There are 5,000 speakeasies in Chicago," he said. "They take in an average of $100 a night for food. There is $500,000 a day in food revenues that belongs to the hotels. That is what will come back. Banquets were killed by prohibition. Smart dancing clubs left us. People are going to places where they can have a cocktail without fear.

"It is not the liquor that we will sell that will count, but the food revenue. They will come back to the hotels and dine properly instead of in some old barn made into a speakeasy. This will mean about a million and a half a year in increased food revenue, if we get it back where it belongs in relation to room revenue."

The Stevens hotel, he said, has saved $1,400,000 to pay back taxes when adjustments are settled, and has made this out of revenue.

Business Men Testify.

Stevens' direct testimony was concluded at the morning session. He was preceded on the witness stand by an impressive parade of Chicago business and professional men, who testified that the reputation of the defendant for "honesty, integrity, and fair dealing" was good. The courtroom took on a social atmosphere as old friends greeted each other and remarked cheerfully about the weather.

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, coming in ruddy and smiling from his farm at Oregon, boomed out from the witness stand that he had come in at some sacrifice, because "I never saw such a beautiful October morning." He was one of the first counsel for the Illinois Life, he said.

George W. Dixon took the oath as a character witness and remarked after the clerk, "So help me God, I do," in promising to tell the truth.

Isaac Miller Hamilton, president of the Federal Life Insurance company, stopped on his way from the stand to whisper an encouraging word to Stevens, whose head was bowed and who seemed affected by the sight of all these friends coming to his aid. Church, bar, business, medicine, publishing, insurance, and politics were represented in this group.

Total, including Oct. 12, 1893 [165 days].....17,402,950

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Labor today will be thanked for the part it has had in the building and the presentation of the World's Fair. In a program in the lounge of the federal building Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair; Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, and union officials will give brief addresses during a four hour radio program.

Time for the program was donated by WCFL, the Chicago Federation of Labor station, with Phil Friedlander as master of ceremonies. The radio division of the Fair has coöperated to present the leading musical organizations from the various shows and concessions at the Fair.

Speaking for labor, James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, will discuss the relationship of labor and the musicians at the Fair, pointing out that the Fair has given Chicago one of the most extensive and varied musical programs in history.

Only 18 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

Included in the radio program to be broadcast over the public address system at the Fair, as well as through the regular channels, will be orchestra presentations, drama, speeches, and acts of radio stars.

Women's Clubs Offer Music.

Filling out a day of music, the third day of the autumn festival of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, with organizations representing all sections of the state, will include programs at various hours throughout the grounds. In addition, musical programs will be given at 8 p. m. in the Court of States by several state exhibits. Among those represented are the Chicago Daughters, a chorus of 400 voices, representing Illinois, and the Central chorus of Cincinnati, a chorus of 110 voices, representing Ohio.

Two events featured yesterday at the Fair. In the afternoon the second radio revue, a two hour show with a majority of the Chicago radio stars, was given in the Court of States. The day was also 41st ward day, with that sector of Chicago presenting its own program at the Fair.

41st Ward Groups Give Program.

The 41st ward program opened with a parade from the Court of Honor, with the army band and troops from Camp Whistler leading the procession. Included in the parade were Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops, bands from St. Mary's Training school at Des Plaines and from Hedwig's orphanage at Niles. Speakers at the program in the court of the Hall of Science included Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district; Ald. James C. Moreland [41st], and J. W. Molay, chairman of the day. More than five hundred visitors from the 41st ward gathered for the program.

After a week of high attendance figures paid admissions at the Fair yesterday slumped to some extent. At 11:30 p. m. the official reading was 134,478.

CHICAGO PLANS FOR NAVY DAY ARE OUTLINED

Plans for Chicago's celebration of the national Navy day on Oct. 27 were mapped out yesterday at a meeting of representatives of patriotic groups at the United States naval armory. The activities will be concentrated in the World's Fair grounds.

The chief speaker will be Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations. Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, will act as master of ceremonies at a luncheon for 400 guests in the Trustees' lounge of the Fair.

In the afternoon there will be a sham battle on the north lagoon. Two hundred members of the naval and marine reserves will take part in this. Half of them will defend a sandbag fort on the east shore of the lagoon from attack by the other half, who will move across the lagoon in a fleet of ten cutters. Field pieces, machine guns and rifles will be used in the mock engagement.

After the battle a program of music and speeches will be given on the floating theater.

Change Is Announced in Shedd Aquarium's Hours

The Shedd aquarium in Grant park is now open daily until 5 p. m. instead of 7 p. m. Walter H. Chute, director, announced a change in the hours yesterday. The new hours are 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The old hours were from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m., the extended time being for the convenience of World's Fair and other visitors who could not see the aquarium during the day. After the Fair ends it is expected the morning opening hour will be 10 instead of 9 a. m. The closing hour will stand at 5 p. m. Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays are free days. Children under 16 years of age and students at Illinois schools will be admitted free at all times.

Bomb Found Unexploded Before Currency Exchange

A dynamite bomb was found yesterday with the fuse burned out in the doorway of the Beverly Currency exchange at 1715 West 95th street. D. N. Lane, manager of the exchange, said he was at a loss to explain the bomb. He told police he had received no threats and had no labor troubles.

One of the attractions at Hollywood-at-Fair is the impersonation of gorillas by three brothers, Emil, Robert and Bud Vanhorn. With suits made of the hair of yaks they have performed in several motion pictures made in Hollywood, Cal., including "Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "So This Is Africa."

A party of 50 representatives of the Murphy Wholesale Hardwood company, Green Bay, Wis., will arrive in Chicago tomorrow over the Milwaukee road to spend three days visiting the Fair. A party of more than 150 students from the University of Wisconsin, accompanied by faculty members, will arrive Monday and remain until Thursday to visit the Fair.

The folk, romantic songs and dances of the Negro will be presented tomorrow evening between 7:30 and 8:30 o'clock at the Hall of Science by Duke Odzikurow Kwesi Kuntu of Gold Coast, West Africa, and his Ashanti warrior dancers, drummers, and singers. The program will be given under the sponsorship of the Renaissance club of the University of Chicago as an international goodwill presentation. The interpreter and narrator, F. H. Hammurabi Robb, author, graduate of the University of London, will explain the meaning of the ceremonies.

More than 500 members of the Massachusetts farm bureau will arrive on special trains over the New York Central tomorrow for a three day visit to the Fair.

Representatives of the automotive and transportation group of Fair exhibits, including General Motors, Chrysler Motors, and the Travel and Transport building, and people from the various concessions south of the transportation group will have a party at Old Mexico Monday night beginning at 10 p. m. It will be in the nature of a farewell party preceding the close of the Fair. More than 1,000 tickets have already been sold.

NOTRE DAME WILL GIVE DEGREE TO MARCONI TODAY

Special Convocation to Be Held.

Marchese Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy and a senator of Italy, will be given an honorary law degree by Notre Dame university this afternoon at a special convocation in Washington hall of the university at South Bend. The Rev. John F. O'Hara, vice president of the university, said yesterday that Marconi was to have received the degree during his visit to A Century of Progress two weeks ago, but other matters caused the postponement of the Notre Dame trip.

Marconi with the marchesa arrived in Chicago yesterday. As they wished to spend their short time here incognito their stopping place was not disclosed, although it was learned a suite had been reserved for them at the Drake hotel. They attended a round of entertainments planned by the Fair officials, society, Italian and other groups during the five days of their first trip.

Will Motor to South Bend.

Father O'Hara said the Marconis will motor to Notre Dame today, arriving at noon. In the party will be Vice Consul Giuseppe Dall'Agnol and his wife. They will be guests at a luncheon in the president's dining room. The convocation ceremony will be at 1:30 p. m. In the event that the Rev. C. L. O'Donnell, president of the university, who is ill, cannot be present, Father O'Hara will make the presentation.

After the presentation the party will tour the university's art gallery, which contains many fine Italian paintings, and the library, in which is a rare Dante collection. The Marconis are to return to Chicago at 3 p. m. and may depart from here tonight.

On only one other occasion in the history of Notre Dame university has a special convocation been called to present an honorary degree. That was to Gilbert K. Chesterton, English writer, in November, 1930. Degrees are customarily presented at the June graduation exercises.

Marconi Visit Significant.

The visit of Marconi to the Notre Dame campus is significant, Father O'Hara said, because Prof. Jerome Green, head of the physics department in 1899, sent wireless messages across the campus in that year. It was in March, 1899, that Marconi transmitted wireless messages across the English channel.

Files of THE TRIBUNE relate that Prof. Green was brought to Chicago in 1899 by this newspaper to demonstrate his broadcasting. Prof. Green is now a teacher in the Moorpark Union High school, Moorpark, Cal.

The Michaus were struck by shotgun slugs fired from Penava's automobile in front of 9136 Commercial avenue. Penava asserted he had been hunting and that his shotgun was discharged accidentally as it lay in the seat of his car. He will be arraigned in court on Oct. 20 on a charge of discharging a weapon within the city limits.

NRA SHOWDOWN IN HIGH COURT SEEN IN OFFING

Once in Fold, Must Stay, Johnson Repeats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Employers may squirm and try to escape, but once inside the NRA stockade there is no exit, except at the will of congress or the President.

This is the law and goes without saying, but the insistence today of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, upon the inescapibility of the rule of the NRA was looked upon as pointing to a showdown in the near future. It constituted another sign post indicating the necessity of a Supreme court test of the constitutionality of the recovery act.

Once an employer agrees to board and keep a Blue Eagle, the bird is his until the recovery act is repealed or modified or goes out of existence automatically on June 1, 1935.

Cannot Be Surrendered.

A Blue Eagle, Gen. Johnson declared today, cannot be surrendered.

The President may withdraw a Blue Eagle for cause. This has been done, with some show of authority, in the case of a Gary roadhouse keeper and of a beauty parlor operator and a market man in New Rochelle.

As Gen. Johnson explained today: "The authority for withdrawing the Blue Eagle is that the President has authority to make rules and regulations and it is up to him to act. I do not think there is a question of the violation being determined by the courts. The President can modify or cancel any agreement under this law at any time, and he can make regulations and enforce them, and make public the name of the individual."

Holds It's Legal Contract.

"But the individual employer, once under obligation of the President's agreement, cannot get out from under. The general went on:

"What I mean about a man not being able to give up the Blue Eagle is this—a man need not display it, but he made an agreement with the President, effective until Dec. 31. It is a legal contract; the law provides for it specifically. Under the statute, the President can amend, nullify or modify; but there is no provision that an individual can do that. As to how much of it can be enforced in the courts, I do not know."

"Can an employer withdraw from a permanent code, once he has signed it?" the administrator was asked.

"It does not make any difference whether he signs it or not," was Gen. Johnson's retort. "After a permanent code has been adopted and approved by the President, a substantial majority having proposed it, it is the law of that industry."

Doubtful on License Power.

But as Gen. Johnson indicated, the enforceability of the act is yet to be determined. With the question of constitutionality still to be settled, the NRA has admittedly been going slow. With complaints coming in of flagrant and wholesale violations, the three cases of lifted Blue Eagles have been so far the NRA's only punitive acts. The power to license employers has virtually been surrendered, so doubtful are NRA officials of the constitutionality of that section of the act.

Meantime, labor disputes continued today to add to the troubles of the recovery administrators. A jammed schedule of hearings was announced by Senator F. Wagner, chairman of the mediation committee, who recently established the number of NRA code employés out on strike at more than 200,000.

The hearings will begin with consideration of the Weirton Steel company strike next Monday. On Wednesday the committee will hear testimony on the strike situation in Detroit, Flint, and Pontiac, where 10,000 auto workers are out. Other hearings will follow.

ROB DRUG COMPANY MANAGER.

MRS. G. M. COX GETS ALIMONY, $1,000 MONTH

New Orleans, La., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. George M. Cox, whose husband recently offered $25,000 for her safe return after he reported she had been kidnaped, was awarded $1,000 a month alimony today pending disposition of her petition for a divorce.

Cox, shipbuilder, testified that although he is worth "more than $2,000,000," he cannot place his hands on a dollar in cash, because Mrs. Cox "cleaned him out" before filing suit for divorce.

Mrs. Cox admitted on the stand that she had taken available stocks and securities several weeks ago when she disappeared from her home, and had converted them into $6,200, of which she had only $900 left.

Mrs. Cox said she had gone to Chicago to obtain evidence against her husband for a divorce suit. The petition charge infidelity, naming several Chicago women.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.] — Developments today indicated that President Roosevelt is maturing a monetary policy, the disclosure of which may be expected at no distant date.

At the request of the President, it became known, the federal reserve board and treasury officials have completed a report outlining a monetary program which is to be submitted to him within a few days.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed monetary policies at luncheon today with Adolph C. Miller, member of the federal reserve board, who is known to be opposed to inflation and to experimenting with the "commodity" or "compensated" dollar at this time and to favor adoption of a policy looking to early stabilization of the dollar and return to the gold standard.

Treasury Recommendations.

The recommendations contained in the treasury report called for by the President are understood to be the following:

1. That inflation of the currency be avoided.

2. That steps be taken at once to stabilize the dollar through foreign exchange control.

3. That the value of the dollar be fixed some time next year and the gold standard restored.

4. That congress determine whether the treasury or the federal reserve banks is to derive the profit that will accrue in the event of devaluation of the dollar.

In the report the federal reserve and treasury officials take the position that devaluation of the dollar at this time would be extremely unwise. To the extent that the rise of prices has been caused by anticipation of a radical devaluation of the dollar a moderate devaluation would set in motion another deflationary movement which would carry prices downward precipitately and disastrously.

Want Several Months' Delay.

In fact, any attempt to fix the value of the dollar under the provisions of the act authorizing the President to reduce the gold content a maximum of 50 per cent would be impracticable for several months, in the opinion of the authors of the report. During these months the dollar should be pegged within a narrow range of value variation in foreign exchange while the manipulation of prices upward proceeds. Eventually, when a balance of prices, wages, and production is achieved, the dollar will reach a natural level, at which its value can be fixed.

What that value may be the experts do not attempt to forecast. For some time the dollar value in foreign exchange has been around 65 cents. Its natural value eventually might be found to be the 50 cents to which the President is authorized to devalue it, or it might be above 65 cents. In fact, one or two members of the federal reserve board are of the opinion that the dollar is likely to go back pretty close to par by next spring.

May Let Congress Do It.

There is also understood to be a suggestion in the report that it might be well for the President to waive his authority to devalue the dollar and let congress do it.

In the event of devaluation of the dollar there will be an enormous profit for the owners of gold. Whatever gold they possess will be worth more dollars. With the anti-hoarding rigidly enforced there will be few individual owners of gold. Practically all of it will be in the possession of the treasury and the federal reserve banks. The latter now have about 3½ billion dollars in gold.

If the gold content of the dollar were reduced 50 per cent there would be a profit of 1¾ billions. The reserve banks regard themselves clearly entitled to that profit. The report suggests that congress should decide where the profit should go.

The plan for stabilization of the dollar pending the fixation of its value calls for the establishment of an equalization fund of 300 or 400 million dollars to be employed in buying and selling dollars on the foreign exchange market.

Policeman Michael Wnek of the West North avenue station was given a 50-50 chance of recovering yesterday at St. Mary's hospital, where he is suffering from three gunshot wounds incurred early yesterday when he surprised a gang of window smashers who had just wrecked a window at the delicatessen of Abe Gurevitz at 2701 West Division street.

Wnek was patrolling near by when he heard the crash of glass and ran toward Gurevitz's place. There he saw a man running for an automobile parked in front. The policeman opened fire as the car started away. The occupants of the machine returned the fire and Wnek fell wounded in the left lung, left ear, and left shoulder.

Louis Frank, another policeman hearing the shots, ran up and emptied his gun at the automobile disappearing down Division street. Witnesses said three men were in the car. According to Lieut. William Knowles, who is investigating the shooting, the men were bent solely on smashing the windows and made no attempt to rob the place. Gurevitz said, however, that he knew of no reason for smashing his windows.

Wnek, who is 24 years old, is married and has two children, Michael Jr., 3, and Richard, 2. He lives at 1110 North Hermitage avenue.

Lincoln Park Zoo Feeds Wild Ducks Moving South

Thousands of wild ducks, migrating southward, are stopping for a rest momentarily in Lincoln park, Floyd Young, director of the park zoo, reported yesterday. The zoo authorities are feeding the ducks, some of which remain in the park permanently.

NRA Considers Code Forcing Industry to Provide Medical Care for Workers

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

NRA officials at Washington now have a proposed code for industrial medicine in their possession which would request or require the industries of the country to make available to employés and their families the full benefits of modern medicine and surgery through industrial clinics, laboratories, hospitals, and periodical health audits.

This was announced yesterday by Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the American College of Surgeons, at the meeting of the college's board of industrial medicine and traumatic surgery [surgery of injuries] at the Stevens hotel. A code similar in general detail to that on file in Washington was made public by Dr. Frederic A. Besley of Waukegan, who has been chairman of the board for six years.

Throughout the sessions of the congress this week, the surgeons have sounded often this slogan: "See your physician. Consult him in health that you may not have to go to him in sickness."

Sees Average Worker Barred.

But Dr. Besley is convinced that the average working man, even if he budgets his medical and hospital expenses, which not one in a hundred families does, is economically barred from the full benefit of the wonders of modern surgery and medicine as they have been described by the surgeons during their current session.

There is another solution offered for this problem, but one which virtually every member of organized medicine both hates and fears. That is socialized medicine, the furnishing by the government of medical and hospital care to all its citizens who join a mutual insurance plan.

To the unspoken question of industry, "Why should we assume this burden?" he replies in substance as follows:

First, it is to the selfish interest of industry to do so. Not only will more adequate health supervision of employés save enormous payments of compensation for industrial injuries, but good health will increase greatly the efficiency and productivity of workers.

Moreover, it is to industry's economic benefit to improve the social condition of the consumers of its goods.

Offers Tentative Code.

A tentative code which Dr. Besley suggested and which he made plain is to be considered as his personal proposal and not an official one by the college has as its principal provisions the following.

1. Industrial medical clinics shall be required to conform to the standards of the College of Surgeons or of organized medicine, which generally parallel the college's requirements for approval of hospitals. Employers shall be requested or required to give all workers a thorough physical examination upon employment, and to follow this up, at least once a year, by a health audit conducted by company physicians and surgeons.

2. Industry shall be requested or required to maintain adequate pathological and X-Ray laboratories, individually for plants of 1,000 or more workers, cooperatively for smaller concerns. Physical defects revealed by examination shall be cared for by the industry so long as they come under workmen's compensation laws. If the defects fall outside the provisions of those laws, the workman shall be sent to his family physician, and that physician shall be furnished the facilities of the industrial laboratories at minimum cost.

3. Insofar as is practical, the facilities of the laboratories should be made available to the family physician for the service of the employe's family, and the company physician should assist him in diagnosing cases. The industry should use properly equipped and standardized hospitals, and these hospitals should be used.

That his goal is a distant one, Dr. Besley admitted when he said:

"There is a vast amount of convincing and compelling evidence that a large number of employers have little conception of what the program of the board of industrial medicine and traumatic surgery is all about."

Dr. Besley mentioned a recent survey made of an industrial plant where it was found that of 550 employés, 25 suffered from hernia, and were working without the protection of a truss. In the same plant 25 per cent of the employés had defects of vision, and many of these workers were employed at machines where they fed material into scrapers, rollers, and other mechanical devices.

"It is not necessary," he added, "to present statistics of the large number of lost fingers and arms in this one plant during the last few years, or the reason why such loss has occurred."

Tells of Washington Parley.

Regarding the conference with NRA officials on the code, Dr. Martin reported:

"The chairman of your board, Dr. Besley, and I presented in detail the findings and accomplishments of our board on industrial medicine and traumatic surgery to the head of the NRA, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, and presented an outline of a suggested code. His deputy administrator, Mr. W. L. Allen, in charge of hearings under the NRA, read our suggestions, accepted them as a basis for action, and immediately in our presence dictated a code covering our suggestions, then placing the code on file for future reference.

"We have every reason to believe, from our very sympathetic contact, that when the time comes undoubtedly our suggestions for the medical and surgical care of men and women in industry will form the basis of information to guide the NRA in its plans."

TRIBUTE TO HEROIC PATIENT

A heroic patient received her share of homage last evening in the address of William D. Haggard of Nashville, president of the American College of Surgeons, at the convocation at the Stevens hotel at which the college admitted 622 surgeons to fellowship.

Dr. Haggard's subject was "Surgeon of the Wilderness—Ephraim McDowell." The patient was a frontier housewife, Mrs. Crawford—even her first name is lost to history—on whom Dr. McDowell performed the first operation for the removal of an ovarian tumor. It was probably also the first case in which a surgeon invaded successfully the abdominal cavity.

"I gave the unhappy woman information of her dangerous condition"—Dr. Haggard quoted Dr. McDowell's own words. "She appeared willing to undergo an experiment, which I promised to perform if she would come to Danville, Ky., a distance of sixty miles. This appeared almost impracticable by any, even the most favorable conveyance, but she performed the journey in a few days on horseback."

Endures Pain by Repeating Psalms.

That was in 1809, decades before the discovery of anesthesia. Dr. McDowell performed his revolutionary operation, removing a seven and a half pound tumor in 25 minutes. As he cut, Mrs. Crawford repeated the Psalms of David.

"In five days," Dr. McDowell wrote later, "I visited her and, to my astonishment, found her engaged in making her bed. I gave her particular caution for the future, and in 25 days she returned home as she came, in good health, which she continues to enjoy."

Mrs. Crawford lived 32 years more, dying at the age of 78.

"The fact that McDowell lived in the wilderness and has been referred to as a backwoods surgeon perhaps was a blessing," said Dr. Haggard. "He was unriveted from the domination of universities, from the mandates of seniors, from the precedents of colleagues."

Four Honorary Fellowships.

In addition to the 622 fellows admitted last evening by the college, four honorary fellowships were bestowed. The recipients were Dr. Robert Marshall Allan, professor of obstetrics at the University of Melbourne, Australia; Rear Admiral Percival Sherer, surgeon general of the navy; Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, surgeon general of the army, and Dr. H. Beckwith Whitehouse, professor of gynecology and obstetrics at the University of Birmingham, England.

In the list of those admitted to fellowship were Drs. Frank A. Anderson, William J. Baker, Frederick O. Bowe, Emmett P. Carroll, Rocco De Rosa, Morris E. Finsky, James L. Fleming, Edward F. Fox, John G. Frost, Earl Garside, William H. Hazlett, Adolph Kraft, Paul E. Lawler, Edward James Lewis, Robert B. Malcolm, Frank G. Murphy, Benjamin H. Orndoff, Michael J. Purcell, Herman Reinsch, Fredrick A. Rettig, Leander W. Riba, Roland D. Russell, Clarence C. Saelhof, Frederick W. Slobe, Louis D. Smith, Harold P. Sullivan, Ralph C. Sullivan, Harry H. L. Timm, J. Daniel Willems, Paul J. Wolf, and Gustav L. Zechel of Chicago, Dr. Martin D. Jones of Oak Park, and Drs. Charles E. Pope and Philip Hamblin Smith of Evanston.

President Robert M. Hutchins of the university, the guest speaker of the convocation, took as his subject "Back to Galen," and urged that by following the precepts of the great Greek physician modern medical men refrain from specialization to the point where they lose sight of the problems of the body as a whole.

JANITORS' UNION LAWYER DENIES THREAT CHARGE

A denial that Jerry J. Horan, president of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, has any gangster connections or that the union has been misusing funds or intimidating its members was made in a statement issued yesterday by Attorney Joseph A. Ricker, representing the union.

Five janitors obtained a temporary injunction from Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan several days ago, asserting that the union was collecting $100,000 a year from the members but was refusing to pay death claims. The order restrained the disposition of any funds pending a hearing.

Attorney Ricker's statement also denied the truth of the charge by Sven Hakanson, one of the complainants, that the union had paid him a $1,500 death benefit while he was still alive. This report came about through a similarity of names, the benefit having been paid to the estate of one Swan Hockinson, the statement declared.

FINISH JOBS FOR 8 MILLION, CANAL BOARD IS WARNED

Joshua D'Esposito, chief engineer for the state advisory board on public works, said yesterday that the Chicago sanitary district would get a loan of approximately $8,000,000 on the basis of the original contracts for five construction projects and not a penny more. If costs have been increased the sanitary district will have to foot the difference, he declared.

The contracts were let in 1931 and trustees of the district contend that the cost of labor and materials has risen sharply in recent months through the operations of the NRA.

Asked what would happen if the contractors refused to go ahead with the construction, Mr. D'Esposito answered:

"In that case, I shall recommend that the federal government cancel their contracts and advertise for new bids."

The $8,000,000 grant announced early this week by Public Works Administrator Ickes is a part of the $120,000,000 needed by the district to build the sewage plants required by the United States Supreme court's order that diversion of water from Lake Michigan be reduced to 1,500 cubic feet a second by the end of 1938. The district has applied for a grant to cover the entire amount.

Officials of the district, including Trustee Rose A. Woodhull, expressed fear yesterday that the 25 per cent reduction in the assessed valuation of real estate in Cook county announced this week will endanger the application. The assessment reduction cut the total amount of bonds the district may issue from $39,838,632 to $8,659,732. The district had planned to offer its bonds as collateral for the federal loan.

Seize 10 More Polls Aids on False Report Charges

Ten more judges and clerks of election were arrested yesterday on warrants issued by County Judge Jarecki charging them with making a false canvass of the votes in the election contest between Samuel Heller and Judge Irwin J. Hasten for the latter's place on the Municipal court bench. Twenty were arrested early in the week. Trial of those arrested yesterday was set for Oct. 17.

STATE STREET DAY ATTRACTS BUYING THRONG

Bargain seekers from throughout Chicago and Chicagoland availed themselves of merchandise values offered on State Street day yesterday and filled the stores. State Street day was part of the week's observance of State street's 100th anniversary. The week's activities will end today, which has been designated "Men's Apparel day."

Winter underwear for children, school shoes, overcoats, sweaters, women's dresses and coats and fall millinery, with other accessories for winter wardrobes, were in demand.

DEMANDS LAW PROTECT "TIPS" TO REPORTERS

U. of I. Professor Stresses Service to Public.

Legal immunity from divulging news sources should be granted to newspaper men, Prof. F. S. Siebert of the University of Illinois school of journalism, declared yesterday before members of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, in convention in the Levere Memorial temple in Evanston. He urged general adoption of Maryland and New Jersey statutes recognizing the right of the press to protect news sources.

"Inviolability of confidence is part of the ethics of journalism," said Prof. Siebert. "If it is good ethics, it is good law. It is in the public interest that a free flow of news be maintained, since the press constitutes a check on governmental offices such as no constitution has ever been able to provide. It is necessary for all newspaper men to protect news sources, which are important to them, if they are to serve the public adequately."

Other Professions Protected.

Prof. Siebert, who is a member of the Illinois bar, explained that there is adequate precedent for such a protective law in the statutes protecting communications between lawyer and client, physician and patient, priest and penitent. The press, he said, is the protector, confessor, and advisor in matters of public interest.

The speaker analyzed instances of the arrest of newspaper men for refusing to reveal news sources or being forced to break confidences. In each case, he held, the public interest would have been better served had the news source been protected.

Contempt in Exposing Officials.

"It is for the benefit of the public to keep the news channels open," he said. "In almost every instance in which newspaper men have been charged with contempt, they have unearthed some irregularities in official circles, which the community had a right to know. Newspaper men are actuated by public spirited motives when they print a story from a secret source.

"Yet the community is fully protected by existing libel laws from any reckless publication which might harm it.

"In order adequately to protect the newspaper and its relations with its news sources it is necessary that all organizations intent upon better civic conditions support bills for such protection in state and federal legislatures."

ILLINOIS PARKS CONVENTION HITS CONSOLIDATION

Members of the Illinois Association of Park Districts in convention at Joliet yesterday adopted a resolution condemning the Chicago park consolidation bill passed at the last session of the legislature.

The resolution demanded that the governor pave the way for reconsideration of the bill as soon as possible, with a view toward its repeal or amendment. According to the resolution the consolidation is illegal and contrary to the best interests of the people living within the small park district areas.

Fifty-eight park districts in all parts of the state, fourteen of them in Cook county, were represented at the meeting. The big parks were not represented. The delegates reelected James B. Kenny of Peoria as president.

Vera Brittain Shows Youth in War Havoc

Pens Moving Tale of Girl and Four Men.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Testament of Youth," by Vera Brittain. [Macmillan.]

WITH more, and more deeply moved and sincere acclaim than any book of the year, Vera Brittain's "Testament of Youth" comes to us from England. It is difficult to imagine that it will also find here anything but the most intense and whole hearted praise.

"Testament of Youth" is literally that—the statement of the last will, the covenant, the bequeathing of the youth of England to what it believed to be a righteous cause, the world war. It is the simple [terribly uprootingly simple] record of four boys and a girl, just old enough in 1914 to be entering college, already determined to be a poet, a musician, writers, a minister in a slum parish. They are not fictional characters. They were Vera Brittain, her brother and his three most intimate friends.

Between them all there was the close bond of young things who have grown up together, who come from the same sort of upper middle class, permanently rooted families.

They all seemed destined to become fine citizens and unquestionably at least two creative artists of power would have flowered in the group.

When the war came, the boys joined up immediately. By that time Vera Brittain had fallen in love with Roland, the poet, and he with her [and the beauty of their young love thrills through the pages of the early part of the book]. Because those she loved were in the war college became impossible to her and she joined the V. A. D.'s. For the entire four years of war she served almost frenziedly, and the description of her life in hospitals and dressing stations is unforgettable.

Between the author and her brother there was that deep tie which is one of the rare loves of a lifetime. With him and Roland, his best friend, they were a triangle of rich devotion. For almost three years they each worked separately at their joint war buoyed by their mutual affection and their constant letters. Miss Brittain's unadorned record of the horrors encountered in her work as a nurse's aid is no more moving than her simple descriptions of the horror of waiting for news.

News finally came and in a peculiarly tragic manner. She had obtained leave from the hospital to spend his brief leave with Roland and his family. He was arriving on Christmas morning. She went home [she lived in one of the "Five Towns" made famous by Arnold Bennett] to wait for his summoning voice over the telephone. They heard nothing all day. Finally late Christmas night his sister's voice answered her joyous greeting and told her that they had just had a wire saying that Roland had been killed.

Even more for his sake dead than alive the author went into the most arduous nursing service. Another of the "Three Musketeers" was killed. Her brother was wounded and miraculously came to her own hospital. The fourth was blinded. In a tragic hope that she might serve her dead love by caring for his living, but helpless friend, she went home from Malta, where she was stationed, determined, if he wanted her to, to marry the blind boy. She arrived only in time to see him die in delirium. She felt her brother, however, miraculously safe [after his recovery] in Italy.

An Austrian attack and there lay dead the young musician and the gallant captain, the sole remnant of the fine pattern which she had hoped to make of her own life and the lives of those she loved best.

Bright youth . . . all in its early twenties dimmed forever. She writes soon after telling of the death of Roland "at that stage of the war mercifully preserved from knowing of a world seventeen years older, in which second rate musculine ability would struggle helplessly with almost insoluble problems because the first rate were gone from a whole generation, we were still able to believe that a country which laid down the best of its life would somehow surely find it."

Bitterness, justifiable and profound, is in that sentence, but "Testament of Youth" is not a bitter book except as it stirs the reader into a violence of hatred against the whole useless waste of youth.

Vera Brittain has written a book which has the statelines and dignity and crushing tragedy of the great Greeks, a book which you can never forget. It is a supreme emotional experience in itself for the reader as well as a moving record of the generation which was in bitter truth "lost."

After the war Vera Brittain, because there was nothing else to do with her life, went back to Oxford. The latter part of the book tells of her gradual coming back to life. It ends with her marriage to a college professor and she speaks in the book of her two children. The high courage with which she gave herself back to life when only death seemed to offer her companionship is a record of power.

But I think that "The Testament of Youth" artistically ends in the moment when she realized that life was worth the effort of trying to live. "The fact that within ten years I lost one world, and after a time rose again, as it were from spiritual death, to find another, seems to be one of the strongest arguments against suicide that life can provide."

The book would have been to me even more powerful if it had ended with that paragraph. Unlike any autobiography I have ever read it seemed to me to have—for its first three-fourths, every quality of a perfect work of tragic fiction and it moved me as greatly critically as it did tragically.

"Testament of Youth" is tragedy made with superb art, infinitely moving.

Book by Wells Big Feature of British Season

But Two First Novels Also Deserve Attention.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—While the greater novels of the new season are being ushered into the world with pomp—Mr. Well's super-novel and marvelous prophecy of the future, "The Shape of Things to Come," being easily at the head of them—lesser novels continue to appear with modest excellence. The conclusion of Mr. Walpole's tetralogy is welcomed; Miss Helen Simpson's "The Woman on the Beast" promises to give this talented writer the popular success to which she has for some years appeared destined; Warwick Deeping's "Two Black Sheep" may repeat, or almost repeat, the success of "Sorrell and Son."

H. G. WELLS.

Besides these, a novel by a writer hitherto hardly known, Miss Ethel Boileau, called "Turnip Tops," is, I am told, achieving steadily a wide popularity such as is reserved only for authentic best sellers.

But these are leaders. Those who desire to hear of first novels of merit should be made aware of two that seem exceptional. The first of these is "The Echoing Man," by Sybil Fountain. It is light, demure, and very engaging in style, the tale of a young woman who fascinates without meaning to fascinate, and who marries a colorless young man because he is less tiresome than some others. There is much excellent dialogue in a book that entertains throughout, and if the author's lightness of touch falls short of wit she has such spirit and charm that she deserves encouragement.

The second first novel which I commend is by a young Irishman, Rearden Conner, who as a boy lived in Dublin through the troubles of 1918-1920, and who has now made a novel out of his bitter memories and imaginings of that time. The book is called "Shake Hands with the Devil." It is less a novel than a dark and dramatic picture of violence and suffering, but the talent which has gone to the writing of it is unquestionable.

So that Ireland shall not be alone in the new type of panoramic history—to which, in a sense, Mr. Walpole's "Vanessa" belongs—a young mystery story writer, T. H. White, who wrote a very good detective novel entitled "Darkness at Pemberley," has written a book called "Farewell Victoria." This is a novel, but it is candidly described as the equivalent in fiction form of Noel Coward's "Cavalcade." A single character, once a child in rural England, then a soldier, and then a coachman, gives cohesion to the various episodes, and the tone of the book is critical of those politicians who have spoiled the countryside and ruined the English farmer.

Meanwhile the originator of the modern panorama, Mr. Coward himself, is said to be writing his autobiography. I wonder if that is true. If so, the book should be very much to the taste of those who love a bright array of names, fun, and the activity of a typically modern mind.

Walpole Terms Novels a Curse in London Talk

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Novels are the curse of England, Hugh Walpole—who has written many of them himself—today told the Oxford Luncheon club.

"If we could prevent publishers from publishing novels we might be the happiest land in the world," he said.

"The public knows nothing about taste. All that remains is to sicken the public of novels and I think that is being done very quickly."

Walpole, nevertheless, confessed that he wanted to write a novel in which the hero dashed up to a church on a horse and rescued the heroine at the altar.

Novelists, he went on, loathe the work of every other novelist.

Esquire, the new magazine is called. It is published in Chicago and it has coralled the most exclusive American pens, pencils, and brushes for that gentleman.

Look at the table of contents and you'll look again to make sure you've seen aright. Even in the heydays when have you ever before met between two covers Ernest Hemingway, John Dos Passos, William McFee, Dashiell Hammett, Bobby Jones, George Ade, Joseph Auslander, Nicholas Murray Butler, Gilbert Seldes, Charles Hanson Towne, Manuel Komroff, Morley Callaghan, Erskine Caldwell, Gene Tunney, Charley Paddock, Benny Leonard, Montague Glass, George S. Chappell? The glitter of the stars almost makes you dizzy.

Modestly the subcaption declares Esquire to be devoted to "fiction, sports, humor, clothes, art cartoons" . . . and what clothes! In full color, suggested sartorial combinations as meticulously "styled" as any exclusive couturier's sketches of Esquire's bride's Paris trousseau.

Rehearse: "to harrow again"

The farmer, after plowing his field, goes over it with a harrow to break up the clods and level the ground. Sometimes, in order to make the field still smoother, he harrows it over again. In Old French, herce meant "a harrow," hercier meant "to harrow," and rehercier meant "to harrow over again." This word was borrowed in Middle English as rehercen and came into Modern English as rehearse. Meanwhile the meaning has shifted from the literal to the metaphorical. Now we rehearse, not the plowed field, but a speech, a play, or the like.

Long Pennant

By OLIVER LA FARGE
A gorgeous tale of sea and jungle and lusty ports, by the author of the Pulitzer Prize novel, "Laughing Boy."
As privateer, he has heard cannon shot slash the rigging and seen the decks run dark with blood. Wrecked on treacherous Yucatan, he has made himself chief of an Indian tribe and led them in jungle warfare against their enemies. In a boat hewed with his own hands, he has flouted hurricanes and sailed the seas for New Orleans. And now he's homeward bound; home to Chog's Cove, that rock bound village on Narragansett Bay, where stranger adventures still await him.
There's a gusto in this book, a sense of stir and life, of simple men and salty humor. Read it and you step back a century into a heroic new world. $2.50

NO MORE RELIEF TO STRIKERS IN 'UNJUST STRIKE'

Department of Labor to Make the Decision.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration was disclosed tonight to be preparing to halt the distribution of federal relief to strikers if department of labor investigators reported their strike unjustified.

An agreement has been reached with Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, it was stated upon high authority, whereby, if the department of labor informs him that a strike lacks justification or is led by irresponsible parties, federal relief could be withheld from those joining the strike.

It was said that federal investigators and conciliators are now looking into all major strikes in this light.

No Instances Thus Far.

An administration official said he knew of no instances thus far where Hopkins had ordered relief held up or withdrawn, but that there would be no hesitation if it was shown definitely that a strike was without proper basis.

In some instances, it was disclosed, department of labor conciliators actually have taken a hand in helping distribute federal food and clothing to men and women made destitute by strikes.

Rumors that President Roosevelt had telephoned Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania that federal relief might be held up in that state unless there was improvement in the strike situation were met at the White House tonight with statements from presidential secretaries that they had no knowledge of Mr. Roosevelt calling the Pennsylvania governor about any matter.

Think Pinchot Can Control.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Coal operators and high union leaders joined tonight in expressing the belief that a "request" by Gov. Pinchot to idle western Pennsylvania miners to return to work will break up the three weeks' walkout of coal diggers.

State troopers distributed the message to more than 100 "insurgent" union leaders of Fayette county, birthplace of the strike movement, where the battlecry has been "Not an ounce of coal moves until Frick signs the union."

"He means this!" was the only comment made by the troopers.

Pinchot told the men they had won a great victory, forcing the "steel trust" to agree to check weighmen, mine committees, and finally the check-off system for union dues, but warned that "roving picketing by thousands of persons to prevent union miners from going back to work under the NRA and under union agreements has ceased to be peaceful picketing. I appeal to you to give up voluntarily this roving picketing."

COURT UPHOLDS RECOVERY ACT LABOR CLAUSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Upholding the right of labor to collective bargaining under the terms of the NRA, Circuit Judge John J. Gregory today ruled that the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and the International Boot and Shoe Workers' union, co-plaintiffs, are entitled to a temporary injunction restraining the Simplex Shoe Manufacturing company, the defendant, from alleged interference with unionization.

The decision was hailed by labor leaders as a victory of wide significance. They said it clarifies and approves the provisions relating to labor in the national industrial recovery act.

Attorney Leon B. Lamfrom, attorney for the Simplex company, tonight said that an appeal to the Supreme court is contemplated. The defense, he indicated, intends to contest every issue in the trial in Circuit court.

Judge Gregory, in a decision of 26 pages that covered every point raised during the trial, held that the Simplex company was in violation of the principles of the NRA when A. S. Weyenberg, vice president and general manager of the plant, refused to deal with C. J. McMorrow, Boston, vice president and organizer of the International Boot and Shoe Workers' union, a co-plaintiff in the action.

MAYOR APPEALS TO CHICAGO TO SUPPORT TAG DAY

Mayor Kelly yesterday issued a proclamation seeting aside Monday as the tag day for the Children's Benefit league and urging Chicago citizens to support the charity, which helps children who are orphaned, ill, or handicapped.

The mayor called attention to the membership of the league, declaring each organization worthy of support. He pointed out that the league carries the indorsement of the Chicago Association of Commerce. He suggested that the city contribute generously and instructed the police and other city employés to show the women who will sell tags every possible courtesy.

The Children's Benefit league is composed of 50 charities who minister to youngsters in hospital wards, in orphan asylums, nurseries, children's homes, and schools for the deaf, and to crippled children. All races and creeds are represented in the membership and each group depends in great part upon the fund raised in the annual tag day.

County Without Stamps; Teachers Call for Pay

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Friday the thirteenth took a strange turn today for the 1,300 school teachers in Kanawha county, the richest of the state's 55 counties. County Superintendent Elizabeth Goodall announced that $108,000 in state aid funds, for the payment of basis salaries, had been received, but that the teachers would have to come to her office in Charleston to get the checks. The reason, Miss Goodall said, was that the county was so broke it didn't have enough money for stamps.

ARREST 11 IN INDIANA MINE STRIKE AREA; TROOPS IN CHARGE

Sullivan, Ind., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Sheriff Cleve Lewellyn of Sullivan county, where national guardsmen have been in control for five days since disorders occurred at a coöperative coal mine, tonight began a roundup of persons named in 15 indictments returned by the county grand jury.

Early tonight 11 men had been arrested, and the sheriff said he would wait until tomorrow to locate the others. All were charged with rioting.

It was reported the jury's inquiry covered the death of Frank Stalder, run down by an automobile at the Starburn Coöperative mine, and an explosion at the home of Charles Fox Sunday night.

Streets of downtown Sullivan were virtually deserted today except for the national guardsmen, some with fixed bayonets, who patrolled the district to prevent any assemblages in violation of the military orders imposed on the county.

Union sympathizers have objected to the plan of operation of the coöperative mines on the ground they do not conform to union wage agreements.

Troops stood guard tonight at a football game between Sullivan High school and Clinton High school teams, and the contest was begun early so it could be completed by 9 o'clock, in accordance with military curfew regulations.

MOB OF 4,000 BATTLES POLICE IN NRA ATTACK

Blocks Traffic in Several N. Y. Streets.

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—An attempt by 4,000 left wing unionists to besiege the NRA headquarters in the Hotel Pennsylvania resulted today in the calling of more than 100 policemen for riot duty and the arrest of fifty-five persons.

Traffic on 7th avenue was blocked for nearly an hour, while mounted policemen edged their horses into crowds on the sidewalks and in the roadway between 30th and 34th streets. The crews of a dozen radio patrol cars, aided by three police emergency squads and by details of the patrolmen assigned to strike duty in the adjacent garment trade area, gradually drove the mob from the neighborhood.

Hotel Guarded.

Subsequently, although the police regarded the occurrence as a demonstration rather than an attempt at violence, patrolmen were posted in front of the hotel to guard against additional disturbances.

Except in one instance, when two patrolmen holding prisoners were set upon by more than fifty demonstrators intent on releasing their comrades, the police did not use their clubs. Then the would-be rescuers dispersed in haste. Thereafter the resistance of the mob was limited to boos and jeers.

Unions Involved.

Members of three unions, a custom tailors' group affiliated with the Needle Trade Workers' Industrial union, a group from the Shoe and Leather Workers' Industrial union, and a group representing the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers' Union of Greater New York, appeared to have participated.

The fifty-five prisoners, including eight women, were arraigned in Jefferson Market court and were discharged by Magistrate Ford following a plea for dismissal on the ground that the police could not identify individuals.

CALIFORNIA GETS 9 MILLION MORE OF EASY MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Temporarily eclipsed by the eight million dollar federal loan to the Chicago sanitary district, California, one of the two states to get the heaviest easy money allotments, was back in the money today.

Of the 16½ million dollars doled out by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes today, 57 per cent, or 9½ millions, went to the Golden state, home of the President's political friend, Senator McAdoo and of Mr. Ickes' friend, Senator Hiram Johnson.

Illinois was given only one allocation, amounting to slightly more than one-tenth of 1 per cent of the day's total. Peoria obtained $23,000 to help in construction of a sewer. The only other allocation in Chicagoland today was $64,000 for a community building in Boscobel, Wis.

In contrast, California, with with New York, has consistently led the easy money lists, fairly wallowed in wealth doled out by Ickes today. The flood of money to the Pacific coast state even forced a dribble into Palo Alto, the home town of former President Hoover, which received $29,000, more than the whole state of Illinois.

2 ARE DEPRIVED OF NRA EAGLES; ONE UNWORRIED

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Two employers of labor—the first to do so in the Metropolitan district—turned in their Blue Eagles today at the orders of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, one eager to regain the privilege of the national recovery emblem, and the other gayly defiant.

Both are in New Rochelle, one, Maurice Rappoport, is manager of the Shop-Town Market, Inc. He was anxious today, and hurried to New York to get his eagle back, if he can.

The other is Miss Betty Wilner, owner of a beauty shop, and, today, besides turning in her insignia, she cut her prices and boasted of the best business she had ever known.

"I'm a free woman again," she said. "All this publicity has brought in business. We're rushed to death today."

Meanwhile, a big sign in her window proclaimed all prices cut by 15 cents, and her nine assistants—those who complained to the New Rochelle compliance board that their pay was $8 or $9 a week instead of $14—seemed to be keeping busy.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR; DIES.

Michael Malone, 58 years old, 2728 Princeton avenue, died yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday when he was struck by a street car at Princeton avenue and 26th street.

NRA WILL SCAN ALL PAY SCALES IN MOVIE WORLD

Johnson Terms Situation "Peculiar" One.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Movie producers and executives will not be permitted to use the national recovery act to force down the fabulous salaries of their stars, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson said today, without taking comparable reductions in their own pay.

The administration's interest in movie salaries, which crystallized several days ago in a statement on the subject from President Roosevelt, does not center solely on the pay checks of Hollywood actors and actresses, the administrator said. It is the intention of the recovery administration, he emphasized, to investigate the entire scale of pay for all branches of the industry.

Picture Code Pending.

Gen. Johnson declared the situation presented by the movie industry was a very "peculiar" one, and one into which he intends to investigate in connection with the pending NRA code for motion pictures. The scale of pay in the industry generally is far higher than that of any comparable business, he said, with the result that even laborers obtain salaries sometimes almost as great, relatively, as those paid to the stars.

The principal problem, as presented to him by various producers, he stated, finds its root in the heated competition between larger producing companies.

One company, he explained, will "discover" a potential star, devote hundreds of thousands of dollars to building him up, until his "box office pull" becomes tremendous.

Others After Stars.

When the star has been established by the original company, according to the story told Gen. Johnson by the producers, some other company, perhaps operating on a shoestring, will seek to have the star break his contract and accept a more favorable one under its own banner.

At the same time, after an actor has been built up to stardom, other large producing companies will offer him a higher salary than he is receiving. His own company is forced to boost his pay. The competing company raises its offer again, and so on, with the result that the salary of the star soon reaches a size which Gen. Johnson today described as "grotesque."

Gen. Johnson pointed out that most of the larger movie producing companies are now in receivership. The interest of stockholders, he indicated, appears to have been overlooked.

Salaries deemed unreasonably in excess of the fair value of personal services are prohibited by a section tentatively inserted in the revised motion picture industry code today.

Under this provision code officials are given power to conduct investigations and if it is found unreasonable salaries are offered, to induce persons to enter a film company's employ, assessments to cover such excess amounts may be levied against the employer.

HOTELS PROMISE JARECKI THEY'LL PAY BACK TAXES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $336,371, making a total of $77,817,991 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Oct. 13	$ 25,672	$ 56,962
Uncollected	17,074,351	45,433,931
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 13	72,665	181,072

Attorneys for several large hotels yesterday informed County Judge Jarecki that substantial payments on delinquent tax bills will be made next week. Among the hotels which have indicated that they will pay most of their back taxes are the Stevens and the La Salle, which owe approximately $1,000,000.

The promise of payments followed Judge Jarecki's threat on Thursday that he would order all tax delinquent hotels into tax receiverships under the Kerner-Skarda act unless they complied with their pledges made early in the summer to pay their taxes after the World's Fair had improved their financial condition.

Judge Jarecki appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver for 49 properties yesterday. The properties owe an aggregate tax bill of $114,000.

Saul Optner, receiver for the Medinah Michigan Avenue club, made a $40,000 payment on the club's 1931 real estate tax bill. The club has paid all its delinquent taxes within the last few months.

TALK TWO HOURS OF BRITISH DEBT; DECLARE RECESS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Limitations which must be taken into consideration in any proposal by Great Britain to the United States for a settlement of the war debt problem were explored today at a two hour conference between the representatives of the two nations.

While it was indicated that all suggestions were of a tentative nature, the atmosphere surrounding the deliberations, when the conferees recessed until early next week, appeared to be more hopeful than at any previous time.

An immediate objective of the negotiations on the part of the British, it is said, is to have the proceedings arrive at some conclusion which at least will avert the charge of default if full payment is not made of the Dec. 15 installment.

Any long range agreement which could be reached could not become effective until after it received the sanction in congress, which assembles in January.

BOY HURT IN FALL DIES.

THE TRIBUNE GRAPHIC.

Some readers of THE DAILY TRIBUNE in Chicago have been given a sample of the new feature which will come with THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. This new feature will make its appearance as a regular part of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE Oct. 15. Experiments have been made for a number of months to produce an interesting new section of feature articles and good fiction, attractively illustrated in color.

It is believed in this newspaper establishment that recovery will come through the endeavor of the producers of all manner of articles to put out a better product, one which will increase the desire of the consumer to buy and have and use. It may be a better radio or automobile, a better Pullman coach, a faster train, better building material, a more attractive hat, a better movie, a better book, or any improvement in a necessity or a luxury.

The Chicago Fair gave the country something which to date nearly twenty million people found they were unwilling to miss. They have made it a prosperous summer for Chicago because they were attracted here and found that they had the money to come, and found also that they got a big return for it. Less enterprise and less ability would have made the Fair a fizzle and it might have been said that hard times were responsible for it. Hard times have not been in evidence at the Fair, although it is, of course, probable that in boom times the success would have been much greater. However, it was proved that new dealing by the government was not needed for this achievement. It was accomplished by men producing a better thing.

THE TRIBUNE has endeavored to apply this principle of the better article by improvements in its plant and in its product. It is installing new presses for improvement in color work, which itself is an innovation in newspaper production. It has improved and enlarged the popular comic section and it now offers the new Graphic with special features attractive to readers. With each improvement, new employment is created, and employment based upon increased production and not upon code regulations unrelated to production needs. Each addition means more pressmen, more composition, more writing and drawing.

The foundation of this country's well-being, in spite of all government intervention, remains private undertaking seeking to supply the articles which the American people need or want. That is the sure way back and no doctor's bill comes with it, nor is a relapse its probability.

MEDDLING IN EUROPE.

Concrete suggestions for the rearmament of German forces have been submitted to the German delegation with the approval of British and American representatives at Geneva, according to a dispatch from Edmond Taylor, TRIBUNE correspondent. What an American delegation has to do with the adjustments of land armament among the nations of Europe we are unable to see. We have read of the visitations of the President's emissary at large, Mr. Davis, to various European foreign offices and we are therefore not unprepared for Mr. Taylor's report. Nevertheless we had clung to the hope that the original intention of our government to restrict our diplomatic efforts to the problem of naval limitation might be revived by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull.

Our concern with naval conditions is practical and immediate, whatever may be argued as to the practicability or expediency of measures of limitation. But our intervention in the adjustment of land armament among the nations of the European continent is, in our opinion, an impertinence which rightly disparages our influence and promises nothing of benefit, but, on the contrary, considerable mischief to all concerned.

Neither Mr. Davis nor any other American diplomat that we know of is in such command of the complicated facts of the European situation that he can contribute much if anything of value to the solution of European military problems. But even if he were an authority in this field his participation in European counsels must imply an authority and an ability to back his advice which the American nation has not conferred upon him. He, therefore, however amiable and enlightened his intentions, is in a position which no sensible man should assume, and, what is more important, can hardly avoid unauthorized implications which must reflect upon the good faith of the United States.

The American people have not authorized Mr. Davis or the state department or the President to involve them in the responsibilities of European military adjustment. They have no stomach for playing the rôle of an international busybody and our delegation at Geneva should be instructed forthwith to limit their activities to matters in which the United States is definitely and immediately concerned. We have had enough and more than enough of attempts to pull other governments' chestnuts out of the fire.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

Monday will be tag day for Chicago's children. It is the 26th annual opportunity for the people of the city to make a contribution to the support of the accredited charities devoted to the care of the ailing, the crippled, the orphaned children of the community. Its sponsor and director is the Chicago Children's Benefit league, and the proceeds will be distributed to fifty charities, every one of which is indorsed as responsible by the Association of Commerce.

It is to be hoped the response of the public will be substantial. The charities have shared the effects of the depression in depleted revenues and unhappily at a time when the need for their service has increased. The donor of five cents or five dollars may feel assured that his or her contribution will be faithfully administered. The cause of the needy child ought to appeal strongly to every one, and every one who has employment can make some contribution. The contribution may be small. It ought to be as large as the contributor's circumstances justify. But, however small, it will help and it will acknowledge a responsibility for our needy children which every right minded person feels.

The public has been protected from unworthy appeals. This tag day represents the conscience and humanity of the community. It should have a generous response.

Tag day is made possible by the unselfish devotion of the women who volunteer to stand for hours with box in hand to receive the donations of the passerby. They are serving the children and the community, without any reward save the sense of duty done. But they have no greater obligation to perform it than any one to whom they make their appeal. They represent the children and the duty of a civilized community.

PENALIZING LOCAL EFFICIENCY.

The communities of Illinois ought to stand stanchly behind Aurora in the controversy with the state relief authorities. The Aurora Associated Relief association has handled its problems with such intelligent care as to have built up a reserve against emergencies out of the funds allotted it by the state agency. Now the latter has announced that Aurora will receive no further funds until its reserve has been used or reduced to proportions approved by the state agency.

Aurora is being penalized for the competency of its local relief. We think this is the worst possible policy. Communities are best able to manage their own relief. The country is now in the grip of a deplorable centralization. The American faith in local responsibility is overruled by theorists and socialist experimenters. It is high time for revolt against this movement, which, as one of its protagonists has called it, truly is a revolution. There is no mandate from the people for this revolution. It is time the principles of local self-government and local responsibility were reasserted. The American people has not bartered its birthright of freedom for a mess of socialist pottage.

THE SCALE OF JUSTICE.

Nine months ago a motorist drove into a number of people in the street and killed one of them. Nearly two years ago another motorist drove over a safety island, killing a man and crippling a woman. The first motorist was tried and convicted of manslaughter last week. The second remains untried by a coroner's jury, but, owing to THE TRIBUNE'S exposure, has been indicted. The first motorist was a meat salesman. The second motorist is Bubs Quinlan, public enemy and beer gangster. A reader of THE TRIBUNE writes: "It seems to make a difference who the offender is."

It does, and that is one of the reasons why crime thrives in this country, although we are supposed to have "a government of laws and not of men." Readers of TRIBUNE editorials find frequent reference to the alliance between crime and corrupt politics.

Editorial of the Day

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Despite the fact that newspapers throughout the country exposed its apparent lack of foundation time and again, people continued year after year to bite on the famous Drake estate story. It's hard to tell how many staked their savings on that will-o'-the-wisp.

Now another racket is making the mouths of the gullible hang open. It is the so-called "taxless town."

There are quite a few of them—these little burgs that operate "without taxes." Perhaps the best known is Chanute, Kas., a thriving city of 10,000 which levied no municipal taxes in 1931, 1932, and 1933. The current issue of the Country Home contains a glowing word picture of the place and the way it won its fame.

Like most of the other tax free towns, Chanute taxes only consumers of heat, light, power, and water, all of which are supplied by municipally owned and operated utility plants. Presumably most of the citizens are satisfied. Their utility rates, taxes to support the city included, are lower than the rates in most Kansas cities of similar size. This is attributed by one of the older inhabitants to the city's good fortune in electing officials of honesty and integrity—also, apparently, of considerable competence. The people of the city evidently are willing to gamble that they will continue to have that good luck in future elections.

Somehow we always resent the boastful claims of these "tax free" towns. They seem to be soliciting applause under false pretenses. Their boasts have a childish ring, like those of the motorist who hooks his car to the rear of a truck and then points out that it runs without gas.

Actually the only tax free persons in Chanute are those who are not in Chanute but who own property there. They use no gas, water, or electricity from the Chanute municipal plants; hence, they pay no taxes for the support of Chanute's municipal government. But their property is protected by the Chanute police and fire departments, and its value is enhanced by the public improvements financed out of the earnings of Chanute public utilities.

The principal credit to which Chanute and other "taxless" towns are entitled is for operating their utilities without the graft and incompetence frequently connected with municipally owned utilities and for conducting their municipal governments so economically that the cost can be buried in heat, light, and water bills without raising a popular protest. One of the lessons other taxing districts might learn from their experience is that people evidently like a system which permits them to pay their taxes in small monthly installments.

Death would be easy in October
With all about to lend a hand
At this poor business

When morning frost

And faint far song of lonely bird
And e'en the very air itself
Doth whisper of an early journeying;
Then would the grace

What is this Death but silence?

"THE USUAL hospital noises," says an item regarding a new hospital, "such as clanging elevator doors and banging room doors will be eliminated." Great! But what about the swishing of the nurses' stiff starched skirts, which sounds in the stilly watches of the night like a cat sliding down a tin roof? And what about the loud speaker doofunny in the hall that shrieks every few minutes, "Dr. Slicer wanted on the telephone," or "Dr. Soothem wanted at his office"? And then there are the dear little children parked out in the hall while their mammas are visiting some of the patients and who play tag up and down the corridors and bump against every door and shriek like Comanche Indians on the warpath. Eliminating noises around a hospital is certainly some job.

SNIPING FROM HOUSETOPS continues in Cuba, but it's regarded down there as just good, clean fun, as it keeps the snipers happy and away from the saloon and the racetracks and puts them outdoors breathing fresh air and getting lots of sunshine. Besides, the disposition that makes a man a sniper would make him a hit and run driver or one of those fellows who is always jumping his machine out of line and over into the traffic going the other way, so it is much better to let 'em stay up on the housetops and snipe. If they started driving automobiles around they would probably hurt somebody.

"THERE IS STILL a prohibition law," says the government prohibition enforcement agency in Chicago. Land's sake! Is that so? Well, if there is, the darned thing must have crawled down a hole in the ground somewhere and gone to sleep. Bootleggers these days go around with their hootch and gin in big baskets on their arms and I expect any day to see them with their wagons, out in the alley where the potato and fresh strawberry venders used to be, cheerily crying their wares: "Fresh, nice Canadian whisky, two dollars a pint; fresh, nice Canadian whisky, two dollars a pint. All right, lady; how much you want?"

BEWARE "A COURSE OF MEDICINE."

ALMOST pernicious habit is that of taking periodically what is called "a course of medicine." By this phrase is meant taking a large dose of calomel followed by an equally large dose [from the medicinal standpoint] of salts. Some vary this technique by taking three compound cathartic pills or a corresponding dose of some other drastic purge.

The reason for taking the course of medicine is usually a set of minor discomforts grouped under the term bilious. The immediate effect is several hours of discomfort, followed by a feeling of well being. The constipation habit and a line of minor ills and maladjustments follow in the wake of this habit and are consequences of it.

A far better plan is to meet the immediate need, if there be any, by a twenty-four hour fasting period, during which nothing is taken except fruit juice, a little sugar or candy, thin soup, water, a cup or two of coffee. An enema can be taken if necessary. If there is reason for taking a laxative it should be the mildest available.

Much more important than immediate treatment is changing one's daily routine so as to bring the amount eaten into relation to the amount of work done, and to change the diet to one that is simple and wholesome.

For forty years prior to 1882 Orville Browning was a prominent citizen of Illinois. During this time he was a senator, a secretary of the interior, and an attorney general. He kept a diary, and this has been published in two large volumes by the Illinois Historical society. Mr. Browning was an able leader of American opinion as well as a great lawyer, but this diary establishes the fact that he was a poor custodian of his own health. Certainly not less often than once a month he took a course of medicine at night and for twenty-four hours thereafter he stayed at home in bed, away from work, and refused all business and social engagements because the medicine was working.

The discomfort that his often recurring "cures" cost him must have been great. Illness did not cost him much time from his work, but the courses of treatment did. His absenteeism from office and work because of the workings of the cure would cause a present day employé to lose his job.

Nothing in the diary indicates that Mr. Browning needed to punish himself with cathartics as he did. But then, such was the custom in his day—a custom that now persists only to the extent that a fair proportion of the population takes "a round of medicine" occasionally.

The Browning diary in reference to his own experiences and those of his family and associates shows that attacks of diarrhea, probably due to spoiled food, were very frequent in that day. He makes many notations of being laid up for a day or two with "cholera morbus," with no reference to having taken medicine. He was an active lawyer on a large circuit and he ate many meals away from home. There was no refrigeration and no commercial canning in that day. People lived largely on supposedly fresh food, supplemented by the products of home canning. The evidence indicated that the food was often not fresh and not in good condition. Improved canning, refrigeration, and better marketing methods have almost eliminated diarrhea in adults.

BLACK PEPPER.

P. S. S. writes: What are the constituent elements of black pepper? What is it that imparts to it its burning taste?

REPLY.

Black pepper is a ground berry which comes from India and other countries in that part of the world. It is about one-third starch. Most of the remainder is water, fiber, and an extract called piperine, which gives to it the flavor for which it is used. About 7 per cent of the berry is this piperine and allied compounds. Pepper has no food value of importance and is used on the table as a condiment.

To whom am I to pay rent and who has authority to collect? E. M. L.

A. J. L. asks: Where can I obtain a booklet from the government on bee culture? I would like to know if the government furnishes free seed for a man who is on the relief list.

Answer: For the booklet write to the department of information, U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. The government does not furnish free seed, but this might be obtained through state and county aid.

H. W. C. asks: Do you think I could find a place on some farm where I could work for my board and room?

Answer: Apply to the Illinois Free Employment bureau, 116 North Dearborn street, Chicago, or one of its nearest branches.

Mrs. F. S. asks: What takes place when the owner of the farm has been unable to pay taxes on said farm and receives a notice from the county collector that on a certain day it will be sold? My aged parents are one year behind on taxes.

Answer: When the county collector has served notice of a foreclosure in a case like that of your parents, it is necessary to either raise the money for the taxes or permit the sale to go through in the hope that the farm could be redeemed within a period of three years. Write immediately to Mr. Henry Morgenthau Jr., care Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C., who has sent out a notice that every effort will be made by the government to help those who are about to lose their farms.

NRA Question Box

Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers as given by the Chicago Recovery council which is aiding President Roosevelt's economic rehabilitation movement here. Other questions and their answers will appear daily in this column.

Question: May automobile repairmen be paid strictly on a commission basis without regard to NRA hours and wages?

Answer: Under an interpretation of the Blue Eagle division of the NRA, automobile repairmen working on commission are regarded as piece workers and as such are subject to maximum hour and minimum wage provisions of the President's reëmployment agreement.

Question: I work for a textile bag manufacturing concern. What are the correct hours for this industry?

Answer: Forty hours per week, but not more than eight hours in any 24 hour period except during peak seasons, which are not to exceed eight weeks in any year, when employés may be worked 48 hours per week.

TO MAKE WORK POSSIBLE.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The legislators have agreed on the passage of a $30,000,000 bond issue for relief purposes. On the face of it, it looks like a worthy cause, and I'll grant that the poor should be properly fed. But let us more than scan the surface; let us dig deep and find the thing that caused the need of all of these bond issues during the last 18 months. Let us consider whether or not the passage of additional bond issues will increase or decrease the intensity of this depression.

At least we will all agree that Cook county cannot go on indefinitely spending $5,000,000 per month for charity. Something is radically wrong with our economic machinery, and in place of merely dusting off the hood, as we do when our legislators vote additional bond issues, let us examine the engine and repair the damage.

If the excessive cost of government slowed down some industries and caused others to stop completely, as it did the building industry, thereby forcing into unemployment hundreds of thousands of people, then increasing government costs by additional bond issues certainly won't revive those industries.

True enough, the poor must be taken care of; but they prefer work rather than charity. Give them work by removing the barrier that was responsible for throwing them out of work, which can be accomplished by reducing government costs at least 50 per cent.

THE FUTURE OF THE FAIR.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Why not continue A Century of Progress Exposition through next summer? Close up the buildings and exhibits Nov. 1 and allow them to remain that way until spring, but open them again June 1 and continue the Fair through the summer of 1934.

There are millions both in this country and abroad who would like to see A Century of Progress, but will not do so this year. Many of those who have seen it would like to see more of it.

All of the large initial expense has been taken care of now, and a rate for next season could be made to exhibitors that would be very enticing. Speaking for one of the best and most popular of the manufacturers' exhibits in the Electrical building, we would be glad of the opportunity to exhibit there again next summer.

Admissions and other revenues, with even reduced rates to exhibitors, should make the second year show a much more satisfactory return to the sponsors.

THE OTHER FIFTEEN PER CENT.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Now that Mr. J. L. Jacobs has very generously decided to give the real estate taxpayers a break by reducing the 1932 bills 25 per cent, what about the 15 per cent reduction on the 1931 bills ordered by Mr. Nixon some time ago and now held up by the red tape methods of the Illinois Supreme court? If this reduction is not granted soon [and a good many people are not paying the second half of their 1931 bills until they see what is going to be done about the mattter] it will be just too bad for the Democratic party at the elections next year with 500,000 Cook county taxpayers voting only for those candidates whose past record shows them to be in favor of such a reduction.

SPECIAL FAVORS.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—I was much interested in one of the statements made by President Roosevelt in his Legion address here which THE TRIBUNE picked out for special display. It was as follows:

"As every day passes the people of this country are less and less willing to tolerate benefits for one group of citizens which must be paid for by others."

Assuming, as is undoubtedly true, that these were the executive's exact words, I find myself involved in much complexity and confusion in the endeavor to make them square with the policies that he is pursuing. As this distance, and after as earnest an effort to comprehend them and their results as I am capable of, it would seem to the innocent bystander that the said results will be tremendous benefits for a few classes of the citizens of this republic, to wit:

1. The agricultural interests.
2. Organized labor.
3. The federal reserve.
4. An organized bureaucracy so strongly entrenched that it will in effect supersede our regular law making and enforcing functions of government in most respects, while at the same time it will exceed everything else of the kind ever known in its expense and absorption of the public revenues for its own especial upkeep.

In comparison with these four classes of citizens all others seem to be in the also ran class. They are to receive vast and immediate benefits for which the rest of the citizenry will be obliged to pay, while those who will foot the bills are to receive, "in some far off divine event," various benefits extremely vague and intangible—"if it works."

Mr. Roosevelt was either absent-minded if he spoke as quoted or else the excitement of the occasion caused him to indulge in glittering generalities apparently foreign to the facts.

TOO MANY MILK WAGONS.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Some years ago we moved out of an otherwise attractive apartment for the reason that early morning was made impossible of rest by the procession of milk wagons. In some instances several apartments were served by one of the larger companies and in some cases just one delivery was made. I venture to say that a truck with driver and distributor could have served the entire block with a great saving in time and cost. The silly little carts are a duplication of service that should be ruled out by popular demand. And in passing it seems as if a householder should be permitted to go to a store and buy and carry home such milk products as he desires, thus saving the heavy delivery charge, but apparently under the bewildering Blue Eagle this is prohibited.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Sitting at the counter in the Merchandise Mart lunchroom, I was asked by the young lady on the next seat what the meaning of inflation was, and I replied that her 30 cent lunch would possibly cost her $2.50 if inflation arrives. She came back to the counter boy and said: "You must have punched the wrong amount on my check." I said: "No, Helen, inflation is here." BEN KALLIS.

INDEPENDENTS READY TO BATTLE MILK PRICE CODE

Lawyers Leave Today for Washington Hearing.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Prepared for a showdown fight over the right of the federal agricultural adjustment administration to deprive a Chicago milk company of the right to sell milk at whatever price it chooses, attorneys for three independent milk distributors will leave Chicago today for Washington.

A hearing is scheduled to be held at the federal treasury offices Monday morning on citations of the AAA against the distributors for violating the Chicago milk code, with the possibility of revoking their licenses within the coming week. Such a revocation, under the farm adjustment act, makes each day's operations by the company affected subject to a fine of $1,000.

The three concerns entering a defensive argument against the attorneys of the federal government and legal counsel of the large Chicago milk companies and the Pure Milk association, are the Edgewater Dairy company, 5348 Ravenswood avenue; the Lakeview Dairy company, 542 Grant place; and the Joseph Wagner dairy, 5407 West 24th street, Cicero.

Attorneys Plan Battle.

Attorneys for the three companies met in the loop yesterday afternoon to plan their defense against the array of lawyers being mustered in Washington to bring about government enforcement of the price fixing schedules put into effect in the Chicago area on Aug. 1 by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. The opposing attorneys declared that the issue was clear cut: whether a dairy company could be put out of business or subjected to criminal prosecution for demanding the right to sell milk at less than the government license required. They said they would offer to pay farmers $2.10 a hundredweight for milk.

The lawyers for the three independent dairies said they expected to prove that the large milk companies in Chicago are overcapitalized.

The Edgewater and Lake View dairies purchase milk from farmers, pasteurize and bottle it, and resell the milk to stores and individual peddlers. The concerns have no retail customers, but require a deposit on bottles taken from the dairies, since they do not belong to the Chicago Milk Bottle exchange. The Edgewater dairy is owned cooperatively by the vendors.

Has U. S. Hospital Account.

The Wagner dairy also sells to vendors, but has a number of wholesale accounts, including several state and national institutions. One of Wagner dairy's customers, the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital at Maywood, recently called for bids on the coming year's business. Eleven concerns submitted bids, the Wagner dairy being the only one to submit a bid based upon the government price fixing schedule.

The Bowman Dairy company's was lower than the Wagner bid by reason of a special ruling on wholesale bidding made by the Chicago dairy industry control board set up to advise the government upon policies in enforcing the milk agreement.

The legal battle in Washington on Monday is expected to draw attention of the nation's food industry and of producers generally, since it is the first trial of the "new deal" in testing its price fixing powers and its right to prosecute violators of agreements or codes.

OPPOSE PRICE INCREASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—An exhaustive federal investigation into every aspect of the Chicago milk situation was promised by Farm Administrator George N. Peek tonight in response to charges by a special committee of aldermen that the city's consumers are being victimized by a gigantic milk trust.

The aldermanic committee told Mr. Peek that the proposed one cent increase in the retail price sought by the Pure Milk association under the Chicago marketing agreement was unnecessary to raise the price to the farmer.

Strong Arm Methods.

Instead, they asserted, the retail price could be lowered and the producer still would receive a higher price if only the cost of distribution was trimmed to a fair level.

The committee, headed by Ald. David Sutton [8th], presented Mr. Peek with evidence collected by it during a two year investigation. The results of this inquiry, they said, showed the milk distribution system to be shot through with union racketeering and strong arm competitive methods. They also attacked the Pure Milk association an the milk council, charging that both are controlled by the same persons and that both are the agencies of a national trust which controls the distribution and marketing of milk.

Offer City Hall for Inquiry.

Their investigation, the aldermen told Mr. Peek, was hampered by their inability to place witnesses under oath, to subpœna records, and to hold the threat of perjury over witnesses.

They requested that the federal government, which enjoys these powers, "blow the lid off" with an investigation in Chicago, and offered the city council room at the city hall for the inquiry.

Ald. Sutton disclosed how the Meadowmoor Dairy company, when it was organized several years ago, was forced to hire gangsters to protect it from strong arm tactics on the part of the milk drivers' unions.

The committee of aldermen consisted of Mr. Sutton, Thomas J. Terrell [29th], chairman of the committee on health of the city council; George W. Robinson [36th], Roger Kiley [37th], and Joseph C. Ross [40th], all members of the health committee.

Mr. Peek declined to promise that the increase proposed in the pending amendment to the Chicago milk marketing agreement will be delayed until after the hearing.

MONGOLIANS DECLARE INDEPENDENCE

INNER MONGOLIA DECLARES ITSELF FREE FROM CHINA

See Jap Plot to Seize More Territory.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 13.—Prince Teh Wang, leader of 2,500,000 Mongolians, today declared his independence from China, according to Japanese reports from Mukden. The report said Mongolian independence would mean lopping off another 1,000,000 square miles of Chinese domain.

Prince Teh Wang, who claims to be a direct descendant of Genghis Khan, is acknowledged leader of the tribesmen of inner Mongolia. This is a vast territory extending westward from Jehol province to Chinese Turkestan in central Asia. It is bordered on the east by Manchukuo and on the north by the soviet Russian controlled Outer Mongolia, while on the southern border it touches and embraces considerable portions of the Chinese provinces of Chahar, Suiyuan, Kansu, and Kokonor.

Nanking Is Worried.

The Mongolian tribesmen are divided into twelve so-called banners, and each has a chieftain, who is a lieutenant of Prince Teh Wang. The organization dates back to Genghis Khan, who ruled most of Asia and eastern Europe in the twelfth century.

Chinese authorities at Nanking, worried over the situation, refuse to admit that it is an independence movement. They claim the Mongolians are only seeking "autonomy" but desire to remain under Chinese suzerainty.

Nanking yesterday dispatched Huang Shao-hsiung, minister of interior, and Chao Pai-lien, vice chairman of the Mongolian committee, to Mongolia to investigate the situation. Premier Wang Ching-wei called a meeting of Mongolian representatives at Nanking today and urged them to reconsider the independence declaration and remain in the Chinese fold.

Chinese papers openly charge that the Mongolian independence movement is fostered by the Japanese and is directed against both China and soviet Russia. They allege the Japanese purpose is ultimately to incorporate Outer Mongolia into a new state which will serve as a further buffer between China and the soviets.

Panchan Lama Backs China.

The Panchan Lama, religious head of Mongolia, who is pro-Chinese, recently was provided with $1,000,000 by the Chinese government. He sent it to Mongolia to be used in conducting agitation against Japanese encroachment. But the Japanese made a counter move. They sent a large group of scientists and army officers to Mongolia and also organized a military school at Hailar, in the Barga district of Manchukuo, for the purpose of training Mongolian officers.

Prince Teh Wang, it is alleged, has an army of 100,000 troops with headquarters at Pangkiang. Nanking has ordered the government troops in Chahar and Suiyuan provinces to watch the situation.

Hubbard Woods Ravine Drive Will Be Widened

Automobile traffic is to be diverted from that section of Sheridan road which passes through the ravine in Hubbard Woods, Kendrick Harger, Chicago district manager for the state highway department, made known last night. He notified William B. Moulton, village president of Winnetka, that U. S. highway 41 and Illinois highway 42 will be detoured west in Tower road to Green Bay road, thence to Scott avenue, and back on the latter street to Sheridan road. The new route will be made into a 40 foot pavement. Paving will be started next spring.

Ends His Life with Gun After Wife Prevents Leap

After being frustrated in an attempted suicide earlier in the day, Walter Appleton, 58 years old, a salesman, made good in a second attempt. His wife, Ruth, stopped him as he was about to leap from a window of their apartment at 536 Arlington place, and then took him to the home of his sister, Mrs. William Fauguier, 4223 Oakenwald avenue, believing he would be safe there. A little later Appleton killed himself in the basement of his sister's home, using a revolver belonging to her husband.

PENNSYLVANIA POLL ON REPEAL FOUGHT IN COURT BY DRYS

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The International Reform federation, of which Dr. Clarence True Wilson is vice president, today sponsored court action here in an attempt to prevent holding a convention to decide Pennsylvania's stand on repeal of prohibition. Election of delegates to this convention is scheduled for Nov. 7.

At the instance of the Rev. Dr. William Sheafe Chase of Washington, superintendent of the reform federation, two taxpayers filed a petition for a temporary injunction against holding of a repeal convention in the Dauphin County court. The court then issued an order calling upon state officials to show cause why the injunction should not be granted. State Secretary Richard J. Beamish and William A. Schnader, attorney general, were ordered to answer by Oct. 23.

In the petition an attack is made upon the constitutionality of the act which was passed to enable a repeal convention to be held in this state. Dr. Wilson of the federation is head of the board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals of the Methodist church.

LEGALITY OF NRA CHALLENGED BY ANDREW BRUCE

Believes Many Phases Unconstitutional.

The constitutionality of the national recovery act was challenged yesterday by Andrew A. Bruce, former chief justice of the North Dakota Supreme court, now professor of constitutional law at Northwestern university and chairman of the Chicago NRA compliance board. He spoke before the joint meeting of the Interfraternity conference and the National Panhellenic congress in the Palmer house.

Prof. Bruce expressed profound hope that the constitutionality of the recovery program would never be brought to test before the United States Supreme court. The court would probably overrule many phases of NRA enforcement in view of established precedent unless it accepted the act as a measure to be used in a period of revolution, he said.

Doubtful of Constitutionality.

"I doubt the constitutionality of the recovery measure now before the public in many of its phases," he declared. "Neither have I any sympathy with those who talk of limiting production. It is wrong to promote the activity of killing off cows and pigs and turning under cotton and wheat. We must produce and produce—the wants of man will never be satisfied.

"Even though the Supreme court might not recognize the NRA, and in many cases it is unwise and unjust, it is a movement which must have the support of all to achieve its end. For we are going through a revolution, in many respects as great as that in Germany.

"Must Face NRA Problems."

"There is a tremendous unrest among the American people and for that reason we must face the constitutional difficulties of the NRA. Much has been said of the 'brain trust' and its activities, but after all they are only human beings. No group of men can build a system that can solve all our problems in three months or even a year."

The end for which all should work, said Prof. Bruce, should be the liberation of man from the machine. Man, he said, has always been enslaved, first by other men and now by the machine. He urged the evolution of a system under which the machine will be made to work for man and not the man for the machine.

WARNS AGAINST DICTATOR FOR ANGLO-SAXONS

A warning against dictatorships in the Anglo-Saxon countries and against the building of high trade barriers by nations was sounded last night at the dinner of the English-Speaking Union of the United States at the Blackstone hotel. The speaker, Sir Willmott Harsant Lewis, correspondent of the London Times in Washington, D. C., since 1920, declared that these trends if carried to conclusion would lead to the disruption of present civilization.

Sir Willmott said that government by "isms" in other countries might work out, but not in the United States and Great Britain. The new deal of President Roosevelt, he asserted, depends on the devotion of the individual to the state rather than on strong arm tactics by the government. There must be free competition in trading among nations, Sir Willmott contended, or disasters will result.

The dinner was the climax of the national meeting of the union in Chicago. Another speaker was Arthur Wiggin, first secretary of the British embassy in Washington, who urged that more contacts be made between people of England and the United States as a means of avoiding or diluting international disturbances. Victor Elting, president of the [illegible] branch of the union, presided.

U. S. MAY DROP PROSECUTION OF LIQUOR CASES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The department of justice is seriously considering a proposal to abandon immediately a large portion of liquor law violation cases in which arrests already have been made, in anticipation of repeal of the prohibition amendment by Dec. 5.

A decision is understood virtually to have been reached to drop the liquor prosecutions as such immediately after the thirty-sixth state has cast its referendum vote for the repeal amendment. That date now is deemed certain to be Nov. 7. But announcement is expected within the next few days of the policy of the justice department in dealing with those cases between now and the time the thirty-sixth state votes.

This and other problems which will be dumped into the lap of the administration with repeal of the 13 year old prohibition amendment were discussed by the President and his cabinet today.

The President announced that Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson had been made chairman of the special committee of experts of the treasury. State, justice, and commerce departments, and a tariff commission are to work out solutions for these prospective difficulties. The committee is to inform the President of the exact status of the laws as they stand now and will stand following repeal on enforcement, taxes, imports and exports, as well as other matters, such as the available supply, probable prices, and the condition of the industries that will be relegalized.

Noted Beauties Keep Charm

'Dancing Debs' Please Large Society Throng

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

IT was hard to remember last night that the sophisticated Service club of 1933 had its beginning in a Victorian Sunday school class of 1890. With all the dash and brilliance of A Century of Progress more than fifty debutantes and post-debs rollicked through the measures of "Dancing Debs," the nineteenth edition of the club's annual revue, on the stage of the Goodman theater.

If there was a New York or Hollywood producer in the audience he will have a difficult time today choosing the stars of the performance. Miss Ethel Dixon, the hit of last year's show, was at her best again this year. Miss Emily Goegst was a perfect comedienne in the ever necessary taxi scene. Mrs. Samuel Carson Pirie, the former Jean Adams, supplied the "blues" to perfection, while Miss Kean Hughes, a debutante of this fall and winter season, produced a superlative bit of pantomime.

Fashionable Audience Applauds 19 Skits

Every skit . . . and they were nineteen in number . . . received its ovation from a fashionable audience that filled the little theater to its last row. On the main floor were mothers and fathers interested in watching their young daughters make their stage debuts, while the balcony had its share of butlers and cooks, fully as much delighted with the footlight success of the debutantes of their households.

"Yes, both the maid and the chauffeur are here this evening," commented Mrs. Frank S. Sims and her father, Frank McNair, before the opening curtain. "They will enjoy the show even more than we will."

Likewise Mrs. John Dern's little maid came to see the revue, but, most of all, to hear Mrs. Dern, stunning in ivory satin with an elaborate corsage of orchids, make a curtain speech during the brief intermission. With delightful poise, Mrs. Dern gave all of the credit for the show on which she herself has worked so hard to the members of the cast and then continued to relate that the net profit was already $5,000. This money, and any more that is realized from last night's and tonight's performances, will go to help the destitute families, the individuals, and the various philanthropic organizations to which the Service club contributes annually.

Thus the group continues, despite the more sophisticated interpretations of its revues, in harmony with the purpose with which it started—"No one is greater than the service he renders in the world."

Sale of Programs Also Helps Cause

In addition to the proceeds from box and ticket sales and advertising already-counted more money was poured into the club's coffers last night by the six attractive young women who sold programs in the theater lobby. There was Miss Mildred Lawrence, stunning in white crêpe with sequin trimming; Miss Jane Lawrence, her sister; Miss Marion McKinley, who has been a star of the revue for the last several years; Miss Jeanne Street, whose debutante sister, Miss Marjorie Street, had a part in the show; Miss Virginia Wiley and her house guest, Miss Virginia Tracy of Toledo.

After the curtain had risen on the "Dancing Debs" from the various parts of the city—the Gold Coast, the north shore, the south shore, Winnetka, and the University of Chicago—Miss Charlotte Hubbart, demure in a white ruffled gown, and Miss Betty Brawley, chic in black velvet, took the audience with their portrayal of "How a Debutante Keeps Him Guessing."

"I have about as much control over my daughter as Hoover over the senate" were the lines of Miss Thelma Jensen, impersonating the 1933 mother reprimanding her daughter, Miss Susan Badgerow, for returning home at 3 o'clock in the morning. This was part of the "Then . . . Now . . . and When" number that brought a second hearty laugh.

South Shore Follies' Stars Win Audience.

Dancing themselves into a round of applause were Virginia Hall Johnson and Marie Hisgen, both of South Shore follies' fame, and Miss Priscilla Sims, who did a lively tap dance before the curtain. The "Germania Melancholia," with Phillip Clark and Miss Jensen as the singers and Miss Helen Gillette as the dancer, was the Service club's interpretation of Mary Wigman.

Miss Dixon danced in the chorus of this skit, but she also received an ovation in the finale of the first act titled "Black Magnolias." Here John Goehst assisted Mr. Clark as the soloist and a large chorus of girls in lace, girls with boas, girls with applique, and girls in black and green, yellow and red, moved through intricate measures with finish and grace.

Miss Ruth Seanor singing to Ben Rawlins' accordion accompaniment was a hit and so were Mrs. Scott J. Dow singing "No Clown, No Cavalier," and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and Louis Tilden doing their "3.2" together. "The Day of a Deb" was enlightening, and Mrs. Henry Sincere's fan dance . . . the fans were small but the costume elaborate . . . a perfect climax to a scintillating evening.

One of the younger parties in the audience included Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Lydia Swift, Miss Elizabeth Bunting, and three beaux. Not far away sat the popular Jeff Currier with Miss Nancy Morse and Miss Patsy Keith. Arthur Barnhart was "beauing" Miss Gwendolyn Childs. Near them sat Miss Eleanor Jerrems, lovely in crimson velvet with a delicate tiara in her hair, and Miss Katharine Dudley, striking in royal blue velvet.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp were there to see their debutante daughter, Miss Pauline Seipp, perform.

Receive Arts Club Members at Institute

THE reception held at the Art institute last night was a memorable occasion for the members of the Arts club. It was in recognition of the great part the club has played in stimulating interest and appreciation in art, not only in Chicago but in the United States, that the Art institute was honoring the club which ever since it was started 17 years ago has displayed courage and foresight in sponsoring what it considered worthy of notice in art, especially modern art.

Many of the most famous paintings today in the Coburn and Birch-Bartlett collections at the Art institute were shown first at the Arts club, either in its own galleries or in its gallery in the institute, established by agreement of the late Mrs. Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, president of the Arts club, and the late Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the Art institute.

The reception was held to give the club members a special view of A Century of Progress art exhibit.

Assemble After Gay Dinner Parties.

The officers of the institute and the club who received the members in the second floor galleries assembled after gay dinner parties, many of which were held at the club on the first floor of the institute. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, president of the club, was escorted upstairs by Potter Palmer, president of the institute. Mrs. Jacob Baur, chairman of the executive committee of the club, went upstairs on the arm of Frank G. Logan, the institute's honorary president; Miss Alice Roullier, the able chairman of the committee on exhibits of the club, was escorted by Charles H. Worcester, vice president of the institute; Mrs. Palmer walked with Arthur Heun, a vice president of the club; another vice president, John Alden Carpenter, escorted Mrs. Logan; and the third vice president, Eames MacVeagh, had Mrs. Worcester on his arm.

Mrs. MacVeagh took the arm of Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the institute, to proceed upstairs and stand in the receiving line; Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mr. Goodspeed were together; and Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the institute and chairman of A Century of Progress exhibit, had Mrs. Carpenter on his arm.

Some of the institute trustees and their wives who also received were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, and

Hoyt Wedding to Be Held in Family Church

Elizabeth to Be Bride of D. A. MacMillan.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MORE sentiment than usual attaches itself to the wedding tonight of Miss Elizabeth Landon Hoyt and Douglas A. MacMillan, for Christ church, the quaint little stone church in Winnetka where the wedding will take place, is almost a Hoyt family church. It was given by the bride's great-grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt, as a memorial to their only daughter, Mrs. Morton Fox, and her three children, who died in the Iroquois theater fire.

There have been several Hoyt brides who have taken their marriage vows in the church, and four generations of Hoyts have worshiped there. Miss Hoyt's bridal veil is of old rose point lace that belonged to her great-grandmother and was on the gowns worn by her to the marriages of her two sons, today's bride's grandfather, N. Landon Hoyt, and the late Phelps B. Hoyt.

The rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, will read the service tonight, after which there will be a reception for relatives and a few friends at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt II. of 490 Cherry street, Winnetka.

Miss Helen English will be the maid of honor, and 10 year old Peggy Hoyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt Jr., will be the flower girl. George Howerton of Cleveland will serve Mr. MacMillan as best man, and ushering will be Charles C. Bunker, Gordon F. Smith, Dr. James P. Turner, Robert English, and William Barlow Cunnyngham, an uncle of the bride. Mr. MacMillan and his bride will live in Winnetka.

Thompson-Lockwood Nuptials Tonight.

Out in sunny Tucson, Ariz., this afternoon a former Chicagoan, William McIlwain Thompson Jr., will take Miss Mary Margaret Lockwood, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Cummins Lockwood of Tucson, as his bride. The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the residence of the bride's parents in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends, after which there will be a large reception.

Mr. Thompson, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William McIlwain Thompson of Benson, Ariz., formerly of Chicago, and his bride will motor to California, and will be at home after Dec. 1 at El Rancho Coronado, Benson.

Of interest here because the young man and his parents used to live here is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Virginia Bowen McNeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McNeil of Chestnut Hill, Mass., to Dudley A. Coonley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Coonley of Milton, Mass., and New York. Miss McNeil went to the Oldfields school and made her debut in 1930. Mr. Coonley went to the Deerfield academy and was graduated from Harvard in 1930.

Tell Engagement of Anne Robinson.

An interesting engagement being announced this morning is that of Miss Anne Robinson, daughter of Mr.

A YOUNG fellow we know swears he heard it in a night club and that it probably is the only funny remark he ever heard from a night club patron despite many years of staying out late.

Retort— A wife was indulging in recriminations and tearfully concluded with the cliche:

"After all, I've given you the best years of my life."

Rose— "Yeah? And who made 'em the best years?"

Pledge—

BY way of report. Music lovers note. Egon Petri will broadcast every Sunday evening for an extended series of broadcasts from New York, beginning a week from Sunday . . . And there is a possibility that Arturo Toscanini, who is going to San Francisco to act as guest conductor in December will be induced to stop off as guest conductor with the Chicago Symphony. . . . Norman Klein, former Chicago newspaper writer, has a new book out called "The Destroying Angel." Also a detective story, as was his first "No! No! The Woman." . . . Mrs. Hervey Allen is coming to Chicago with Mr. Allen, and we report that "Anthony Adverse" has broken all records for books of its size. Sales hit 8,200 copies one day last week and it probably has paid the rent in several rental libraries. The average time the book is on loan is about 19 days. . . . Probably this is the time to report that Mrs. Robert C. Orr has read the lengthy tome three times. . . . Henri Barbusse is coming to Chicago next week and will be entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank's literary committee of the Fair, as will Mr. Allen (on different days), and probably the closing activity of the committee will be a luncheon at which the winner of the Pictorial Review-Dodd Mead First Novel contest prize will be announced. Mr. Dodd and Mr. Von Ziekursch of Pictorial Review to be present.

WE find ourselves puzzling, too, over the problem just put to us via the telephone by an embarrassed male voice that said could we answer a kinda funny question. We said we could try, anyhow, and the lad confided that he had just received a love letter from a girl and she had inclosed a dead rose. What did that mean?

Perhaps you sent her roses, and this was to show she had treasured them, we suggested.

No, he had never sent her any roses.

Was it a red rose? we asked hopefully.

Yes, it was.

Well, red roses are said to signify love, we said, hoping nobody else in the office could hear us.

Probably it was a gesture of deep feeling on her part that she wanted to express with flowers, so she inclosed a red rose in her letter.

But it wasn't just a withered rose. It was an old dead rose—a very old dead rose, sort of falling to pieces, the youth persisted, a little querulously. Why did she send him that?

Possibly it was a reminder to him that she was fresh out of anything except very old dead roses, and he better send some, we replied, hoping to give a lighter tone to matters. It was left at that . . . But it was pleasing to know that there are still people in the world pressing roses and putting them into letters. We had got to the point where the only thing we thought worth while getting in a letter was a wisecrack. A printable one.

"And I give you my word of honor that these girls are absolutely naked," he said.

Mrs. Hutchins Shows Skill in Drawings

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Maude Phelps Hutchins, wife of the president of the University of Chicago, has made for herself an enviable reputation as a sculptress. Now she assumes another rôle and proves her powers as a draftsman in the exhibit that opened yesterday in the Chester Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building.

The exhibit, with the exception of one unusual and brilliant piece of portraiture in bronze, consists of drawings in color. A slender group of silver points keeps alive the many amusing stories that went the round of town last winter when for the first time Mrs. Hutchins disclosed her "diagrammatics."

The portrait associates itself with the silver points for it is of Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, who with Mrs. Hutchins dilated to the extent of a book upon the meaning and significance of the diagrammatics, drawings which, to the untutored eye, look like the most emasculated brothers of a certain type of Greek drawing that was best done by an English artist some hundred years or so ago. Still it is really not these line drawings that detain us longest in the present exhibition. The meat of the show lies in the larger and more substantial drawings in color.

The last drawings exhibited by Mrs. Hutchins included a number of cows of doubtful anatomy and a number of studies of various human physiques apparently meant as sketches to help her in her sculpture. These drawings are complete in themselves. They seem to be neither fragments nor notes. They are interesting, most of them, and very much worth while as proof that all of her skill is not limited to the chisel.

The drawings deal chiefly with the nude female form, and one model seems to have been in most constant use. The poses vary. Several of them are delightful. A few lack surety of touch and here or there a hand is stiffly place or a neck set awkwardly upon the shoulders.

The show is interesting as a one man exhibit; if it smacks a bit of the studio that, at this time of the year, may be overlooked. At all events the drawings prove that Mrs. Hutchins can employ a pencil to as good purpose with her tongue between her teeth as with it in her cheek, as many a year it was when first she exploded "diagrammatics" on the club world last fall.

The exhibit will continue for two weeks.

Opera Heroes Must Possess Civic Virtues

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 13.—Embargoes on romance as an export commodity are the latest developments in this age of rabid nationalisms, Franz Lehar, the famous Hungarian composer, has discovered.

Two European countries have up to now refused to own the hero of his latest work, "Giuditta," soon to be done by the Vienna opera, or to serve as the setting for such lyrical and frivolous goings on.

Exultant over the decision of the great opera house here to do light opera, this composer, whose first great work was "The Merry Widow," sent the score and libretto to Mussolini, according to local press reports. Il Duce, it is said, promptly replied that the character of the Italian officer, which is the tenor rôle, is not in accord with the ideals which the fascist régime brought to Italy.

Lehar then decided to make the soldier lover a Portuguese. The papers reported this decision at noon. The Portuguese minister popped on his high hat at 1 o'clock, called on the maestro, and said that the Portuguese government viewed with alarm the intention reported in the press.

Lehar, interviewed by THE TRIBUNE tonight, refused to confirm all the details, but admitted he was nearly crazy. "It is the limit. In what country any more can one place the libretto. I am working night and day on the score, and if such developments continue I will lose my mind."

The Giuditta romance is launched in north Africa, proceeding later for the big waltz scene to the hero's native land, if he can find one.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, an American working on a Paris newspaper, is her friend and counselor. Bun received a 'phone call from Mrs. Thelma Craymer, a stranger, who mentions a mutual friend. Bun agrees to have luncheon at her apartment. She is admitted by an ominous appearing butler. She takes an immediate dislike to Mrs. Craymer, but is favorably impressed by her uncle, James B. Finlay, a wealthy American. Finlay wants Bun to help find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. She returned annually to visit her family, the Bobianoffs, installed by Finlay in a villa on the Riviera. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. The last time Helene returned she disappeared, and no trace can be found of her or her parents. Bun agrees and accepts 200,000 francs in advance. A recent newspaper picture, showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clew Bun has to go on. That evening Bun has dinner with Fred Crawford and tells him of her strange commission. Fred hears from his paper that Finlay has been found murdered in his hotel room. When Bun returns home she finds the apartment ransacked, her maid Liberte bound, and the money Finlay had given her stolen. A masked man and woman committed the robbery. Mrs. Craymer urges Bun to keep silence to prevent their being involved. The police suspect Finlay was murdered for money. Bun intends to tell all to Finlay's son, Robert, when he arrives from America. Robert's unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy arouses Bun's suspicions.

INSTALLMENT XII.

A HOAX SUSPECTED.

Finlay's keen eyes clouded. When he answered his voice was low and undecided. "I hardly know what to say to that. I have thought of nothing else since I received the cables. Personally, I'd like nothing better than to accept the inevitable and do nothing. What can I—or any one—do to bring my dear father back to me?" He sank in a chair and clasped his hands between his knees. "So far as I have been informed there is no clew whatsoever to the crime. Fanchon is coming this evening to talk with me. I understand that he considers it a simple case of robbery and murder. I am inclined to think he is right. My father always carried a great deal of money about with him. You, yourself, know to what an extent. The mere fact of his having two hundred thousand francs in his pocket—which you say he gave to you—proves that. It was very probably known. Rich men are so continuously in the public eye that almost any of their idiosyncrasies are known. Also, if we went into this case thoroughly"—here Finlay drew a long breath—"I would be forced to make known everything about Helene. I feel that nothing would hurt my father more than that."

"Does her brother feel this way, too?"

For a second Bun thought she caught a new expression in Finlay's eyes—a look almost of fear, but it quickly vanished. "O, Ferenz—he's the salt of the earth. He's been desperately cut up over the whole affair. He wanted to come over here with my father. He insisted he would be of great assistance. I think now my father should have let him come. Perhaps this terrible tragedy might not have happened if he had been protected."

Bun drew the newspaper clipping from her bag. "Would you be interested in seeing this photograph of your father's wife?" She handed the picture to Finlay. "It was our plan for me to go to Biarritz and try to find out who the people—especially the tall woman—are." She watched Finlay closely as he studied the photograph and returned it to her. "You do not know her?"

"I? No."

"Yes—perhaps." There was a note of indifference in his comment that somehow annoyed Bun.

"I think," she said, rising with sudden determination, "that I shall carry out at least that part of my agreement with your father."

He stared at her in frank amazement. "But why—Miss O'Reilly? If it's merely a question of obligation on your part, I beg of you not to give that a thought. Let's consider the matter closed."

"You may. I can't."

"You mean you insist upon going ahead—even," he hesitated, and Bun was sure now that his eyes were anything but friendly, "though I should prefer you not to?"

"I shall assume all responsibility. No one need know anything about it. I shall be careful to report what I find out only to you. Will that not be satisfactory to you?"

"Still—I don't understand."

Bun's chin went out. "I can't accept such a large amount of money and do nothing. And—and there are reasons why I should do what I agreed to do, rather than return the amount to you. In other words, I've got to earn it. Mr. Finlay," she rushed on with an irresistible urge to make a clean breast of the whole matter, "the money your father gave me was stolen from me the same night your father was murdered. To be perfectly frank with you, I couldn't return it—as much as I want to. There is only one thing left me to do—find your father's wife. If I fail—well, at least I shall have done my best. Please try to see what I feel and don't stop me. I shall leave here in the morning, be at Biarritz tomorrow night. From there I will communicate with you—if there is anything to tell. Shall you remain in this hotel?"

At first he seemed on the point of protesting. Then, as if forcing himself to accept something with as much grace as possible, he held out his hands with a deprecatory gesture. "I cannot stop you, Miss O'Reilly—though I repeat I'd rather you did nothing. Yes—for the present, I shall remain in this hotel."

Bun went home in what might have been called a brown study. Her impressions of Finlay were baffling. There were things about him she liked, and things she disliked exceedingly. His manicured nails upset her each time she came to the conclusion that he was not a bad sort. So far as manners went, he was perfect. But the amazing difference between him and his father was inexplicable. She wondered what Crawford would think of him. This desire became so strong that she telephoned him as soon as she was back in her apartment.

"Fred, I want an opinion."

"On what—or whom?"

"Mr. Robert Finlay."

"How can I give that until he arrives?"

"He arrived this afternoon."

"Impossible. He missed the Europa."

"I'll blow in there at once. Good chance to get ahead of the other papers."

"Good. And blow in here immediately and tell me what you think of him."

"I don't like him at all, Bun—and you don't either," Crawford said when he had come in an hour later.

"That's not quite exact.' But, as Liberté says, I am in doubts."

"My advice is—hands off. Did you tell him about the stolen gold?"

Crawford grunted. "That's good—if it is."

"Not good enough for me. I'm going to earn that money."

"How can you—if it's gone?"

"I can give value received. I'm going to Biarritz tomorrow morning—with Liberté as a traveling companion. Don't waste time in protests. I'll keep in touch with you."

"And I'll keep my eye on this Midas heir. There's something about his wanting to hush up the whole thing that I don't like. What does Mrs. Craymer have to say?"

"He has not yet seen her."

"Does she know you have?"

"No."

"Want my advice?"

"Always—even if I don't take it."

"Well—I'd ring up the lady and at least get her reactions."

Bun took his advice. She had practically decided to do the same thing herself. She explained to Mrs. Craymer that she was sorry to have missed her that afternoon and asked if anything important had developed. Mrs. Craymer replied that she only dropped in to ask her the same question.

"Bob. But that's impossible!"

"He did catch the Europa after all."

There was a long pause, then Mrs. Craymer said, with an unmistakable note of anxiety, "I have heard nothing from him. Do you think he expects me to look him up?"

"If I were you, I shouldn't—until you hear from him."

Again a long pause. "Did you tell him everything?"

"Practically—yes."

"What does he intend to do?"

"So far as I found out—nothing."

"And you?"

"I'm leaving Paris for a few days. I'll ring you up when I return."

Bun looked at Crawford, who was standing at the telephone beside her. He was smoking reflectively.

"I wonder," he said slowly, "if both of them aren't putting up some sort of a job on you!"

Here's a Just Right Movie in Every Way

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

You know "that thing called charm"? Well, "Broadway to Hollywood" has it—and charm is every bit as potent in a play as in a person.

Generously plummed with ingredients that appeal tremendously to the general public, this picture should indeed make the heart of the exhibitor rejoice. The story is one of theatrical life that carries you from Tony Pastor's theater, New York, in the late '80s, to Hollywood in th' year of our Lord.

Three generations of Hacketts engage your attention. The first Mr. and Mrs. Hackett are a popular song and dance vaudeville act. You meet them at Pastor's gayly trouping, and, off stage, minding their baby, which holds court in a trunk in their dressing room.

When the baby gets bigger—"The Three Hacketts" are billed—and go over big. The boy, and then the youth, brings new life to the act and the Hacketts are still a drawing card.

Young Ted Hackett meets Annie Ainslee—she of the Dancing Dolls. The two fall in love. Weber and Fields want them—but haven't much to offer the elder Hacketts, without whom Ted refuses to accept an engagement. Hurt and resentful at what they—especially Hackett Sr.—feel to be stupid failure to recognize their ability, father and mother break away from the company and go on the road again in their original act. . . .

Now, the Hackett men are chasers. Not in a vicious way—but they DO find it difficult to pass up a pretty girl.

Mrs. Hackett Sr. has fought for her man through the years—and kept him. Mrs. Ted Jr., a more sensitive and retiring type, prefers death to friction . . .

After her suicide her husband goes to pieces—and to war—and that's the last of the baby who had lived in a trunk.

Ted the Third departs for Hollywood, and, in time, sends for the folks . . . He acquires a big house and a bigger head and is all scheduled for the toboggan when his grandfather, determined that the name of troupers who had never pulled a curtain nor turned a manager down shall not be dragged in the California dust comes ferociously to the rescue . . . For more, see the picture.

"Broadway to Hollywood" is richly humorous, tenderly pathetic. It has music, dancing, atmosphere, simply swell direction and the sort of acting you wish you could witness every day.

Alice Brady as the elder Mrs. Hackett does a job that should land her a long time contract. Frank Morgan is perfection as Hackett Sr. Madge Evans acquits herself magnificently as the young wife, and—but why go through the list? If you can see any flaws in performance you've got sharper eyes than mine.

Just put this in the good old pipe—"Broadway to Hollywood" will stand out in your memory when a world of other movies are sunk deep in the sea of forgetfulness.

Elizabeth to Be Bride of D. A. MacMillan.

and Mrs. Harry Ives Robinson, who live on the Glenview club grounds, to Frank Green Osborne, son of Mrs. W. Irving Osborne of Evanston.

Miss Robinson, who is a member of the Chicago Junior league and the Service club, went to Mount Vernon in Washington and then to Pine Manor at Wellesley. Last year she took part in the Service club revue and tonight she is giving a small dinner party at the residence of her parents, later taking her guests to "Dancing Debs" at the Goodman theater. Mr. Osborne went to Andover and then to Yale, graduating from the latter in 1930. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keith have reserved the evening of Dec. 29 at the Casino for a dinner-dance that they are going to give to introduce their daughter, Leslie, to society. Miss Keith, who is better known to her friends as Patty, is one of the most attractive debutantes of this season, and the dance her parents are giving for her should be a brilliant affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore of New York are expected in town today. They are going to be here a very short time, so after a few hours at the Fair they will drive out to the Arthur G. Cables' home in Winnetka for dinner and to spend the night. Tomorrow the junior Albert Blake Dicks are giving a luncheon for the Moores in their Lake Forest house, and Mr. and Mrs. Moore will leave tomorrow night or Monday for their ranch in Wyoming.

Joseph T. Bowens Entertain Tonight.

One hundred or so of Mr. and Mrs Joseph T. Bowen's friends will be dining and dancing in the Bowens' Lake Forest home tonight at the party that the Bowens always have at this time of the year. The dance was postponed from last Saturday night because of the Pooch ball.

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick and her two daughters, Miss Eleanor and Miss Patty McCormick, will be at home in their Astor street apartment tomorrow. They have spent the summer at their home in Bar Harbor. Miss Patty McCormick is to be one of Miss Virginia Chapman's bridesmaids at the wedding of the John A. Chapmans' youngest daughter to J. Brooks Fenno Jr. of Boston, which will take place Oct. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Bromwell are expecting Mr. Bromwell's mother, Mrs. Charles Bromwell, to arrive in Lake Forest today.

Stuart Logans Will Take Hunting Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan are motoring to the Grand Island club tomorrow so as to be there for the opening of the duck season Monday at noon.

Mrs. Logan, however, is not planning to shoot, for she is going on further south to visit relatives in St. Louis. Her husband has taken the Farley Hopkins lodge near Bath, Ill., for the duck hunting season, and as soon as Mrs. Logan has had a chance to get it in order she and Mr. Logan will be having guests there every week-end during the season.

After the symphony concert yesterday afternoon many of those who had enjoyed the music walked south on Michigan avenue a block to have a cup of tea and to see Maude Phelps Hutchins' new exhibit in the Chester H. Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building.

Smith Alumnae to Entertain Miss Chase.

Alumnae of Smith college are anticipating the arrival this week-end of Miss Mary Ellen Chase, the well known writer and professor of English at Smith. Miss Chase will speak at a joint meeting of the Chicago Smith College club and the Chicago College club at 11:30 Monday at the College club, 196 East Delaware place. Her subject will be "Hopeful Tendencies in Current Literature." After the lecture in the club lounge Miss Chase will be the guest at a luncheon in the club dining room.

On Monday evening the directors of both the Chicago Smith club and the Evanston and North Shore Smith club are giving a dinner for Miss Chase in the Trustees' lounge at A Century of Progress.

Gen. Parkers Will Be Guests at Dinner.

It is difficult for Gen. and Mrs. Frank Parker to find time to pack these days preparatory to their departure for Manila there are so many parties being given for them in farewell. At 6 o'clock tomorrow evening they are to be the special guests of the Dante Alighieri society at a dinner in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Col. Trygve Siqueland is making the arrangements for the affair.

A Japanese fan dance is the attraction the Friends of India are offering their members and guests this evening when they have one of their annual fall dancing parties at the International house at the University of Chicago. The floor show is also to include a pageant by members of the Children's Civic theater.

Among those who are planning to attend the party are the George O. Fairweathers, Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Herbst, the British Consul General and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, the Vice Consul Malcolm Henderson and Mrs. Henderson, the Quincy Wrights, and Edward Warren Everett.

Mrs. Palmer was stunning in an evening gown of a lovely shade of orangy red, and Mrs. McCormick looked lovelier than ever in a gown of pink satin with a design of leaves in gold thread. Mrs. Goodspeed and Mrs. Carpenter both wore black, Mrs. Carpenter favoring black chiffon with a chiffon scarf trimmed with fox. Mrs. Goodspeed's dress was embroidered with small silver polka dots, and she wore a black feather cape with it.

Among those who dined or had dinner parties at the Arts club before going on to the reception were, besides the McCormicks and the Goodspeeds, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mrs. Frank Alexander, Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Miss Abby Talmadge, Miss Harriet Monroe, Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, and Mrs. William S. Monroe.

Arts Club Dinner for Elizabeth Coolidge.

The Arts club is giving a dinner for Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge on Sunday evening, Oct. 22, following the last of the three concerts that Mrs. Coolidge has arranged for the Chicago Friends of Music. The concerts will be given by the Pro Arte string quartet of Brussels next Wednesday and Friday nights and Sunday afternoon at the Goodman theater. Mrs. Coolidge, who has a summer place at Pittsfield, Mass., is now in Detroit and is expected in Chicago some time next week, in time for the first concert on Wednesday. She is a sister of Albert A. State Music Clubs Launch Fall Festival

Events to Be Presented at World's Fair.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mrs. Edward A. MacDowell, head of the MacDowell colony of Peterboro, N. H., and Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley, president of the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs, arrived in Chicago yesterday to attend the autumn festival and conference of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs now taking place at A Century of Progress.

From now until next Thursday night practically twelve hours a day of musical events, lectures, and conferences on musical subjects are being scheduled. The Illinois Host house is accommodating many of the recitals and smaller groups, but there will be organ recitals in the Hall of Religion and many massed events in the courts of the Hall of States and Hall of Science.

Soloists, composers, song groups, high school bands and orchestras, and specialized numbers follow each other with little intermission. As a climax of today's activities Mrs. Kelley is the chairman of a massed chorus of states at 8:30 o'clock in the court of the Hall of Science. The associating choruses come from Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois and other visiting states, and in addition they will be joined by the Lawson Y. M. C. A. chorus directed by Frank Bennett, the Catherine Bennett Women's chorus, the Aeolian and Mosse choruses directed by Stephen Pepich, and the Thyrza Parmenter mixed chorus of Oak Park.

In the great number of scheduled events there are several of the less usual order. Victor Grabel will direct several concerts by massed public school bands in the court of the Hall of Science. The same court on Monday night will be the scene of "A Century of Progress" in Indian music. Princess Tsianina, the Cherokee mezzo soprano, will be in charge of the program, and Miss Frances Densmore, well known authority on Indian lore, will be a guest.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth will lecture on "The Art of Enjoying Music" at the Illinois Host house Tuesday evening. On the following evening a program by allied Negro choruses and artists will be directed by James A. Mundy at the Floating theater. The festival will come to an end Thursday evening with an entertainment at the Hollywood theater.

Dixiana Towed Into River for Stage Run Here

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The showboat Dixiana completed the last stretch of its voyage into Chicago yesterday. It was towed from the Navy pier up the river and warped into a snug berth on the south bank between Clark and Dearborn streets, where it offers no obstruction to navigation.

The trip up the river was made during the noon period, with the showboat's crew of actors on the upper deck in costume and the traditional calliope playing the tune appropriate to such occasions, which is "Happy Days Are Here Again." The event attracted the attention of luncheon hour crowds, many thousands in number.

Before theatrical performances can be given on the Dixiana a number of technical matters must be ironed out in conferences between the city authorities and the owners. The craft must comply with all the ordinances, especially those relating to the protection of its patrons, and must be prepared to indemnify the city against any liabilities that might arise from the granting of a permit to operate as a floating theater.

A conference on these points will be held in the office of Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt this morning.

A test of the boat's stability was made yesterday at her berth. Jacob Weller, an officer of the operating company, stated that the Dixiana had passed the test with flying colors.

"It was shown," he said, "that if the entire capacity audience should line up along the Dixiana's rail the hull would not dip an inch."

The Dixiana consists of a new superstructure on the hull of a lake scow formerly used as a cargo carrier, 200 feet long and 46 feet wide. This structure contains a theater seating one thousand, with a stage 25 feet wide; living and dressing rooms for the players, a large barroom, and a small restaurant which will be used as headquarters of the Robert E. Lee club, now in process of organization.

The boat has been skillfully designed to reproduce the atmosphere of the period during which such floating theaters flourished along the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. Its appointments follow old southern styles with fidelity and striking effect. A heating plant in the hold permits winter operation.

The Dixiana's complement of employés will number forty-seven, including fourteen Thespians of showboat experience. The first old melodrama that its management intends to revive will be "No Mother to Guide Her."

Star Flower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Not really old, but quaintly old fashioned in spirit is the "Star Flower" quilt pattern presented today. It is most effective when bits of print compose the flower and plain material the eight pointed star. It is extremely simple to piece.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Smart Collars Add Swank to Street Frocks

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Most of the wide awake shoppers are tying contrasting bibs around their dark wool street frocks and rejuvenating last year's pet dance dress with a cowl collar or a new bib collar of glittering metallic brocades.

Most of the swankiest street costumes are topped with wide satin or velvet bib effects that are as disarmingly demure as the small scraps they wore when they approached an evening repast of bread and milk.

Sleek satin in chalk white or flesh color and vivid shades of velvet fashion some interesting new collars that will do grand things for simple little one piece dresses that need just such a new contrast to make them smart and high fashion.

Dazzling concoctions of lamé, metallic weaves and some glorified versions of deep swinging cowl collars decorate handsomely and effectively as well as transform any dated evening gowns. Another way to change the appearance of a much too good to be discarded evening gown is a casual ascot tie of fur combined with the fabric of the gown or you can use brown mink tails as a fringe for a creamy white crepe scarf, or snowy white ermine tails against midnight black velvet or colors.

Clever plaid and striped silk waistcoats are being featured in all the newest neckwear collections . . . some of the most unusual are of cravat silk and come in good color contrasts for dark wool street suits.

His lecture will tell the story of the expedition, which visited, among other places, Galapagos, the Marquesas, New Hebrides, Fiji islands, New Guinea, and the Solomon islands. The lecture will be given in the James Simpson theater of the museum. Admission is free.

Tunnels—where do they come from? Why do they act as they do? How can one avoid them? These are questions so many folks are asking constantly that to mention all the folks by initials would take a whole alphabet. So as a starter for today's Question Clinic let's take a look at the whys and wherefores of tunnels, both in cakes and in baking powder breads, and so clean up all the questions in one fell swoop.

First in muffins. You'll notice if you cut an especially tunnelly muffin in two that each tunnel seems to come to a point at the top and at the bottom of the muffin. What happens is simply this: In cake or muffin batter the proportion of flour and water is right to give a sticky and somewhat stretchy gluten (that ingredient in flour which forms the framework of baked foods). The more we beat such a batter the more rubberlike the strands of batter become, or, as we say, the more we "strengthen the gluten." The tunnels we see are formed by expanding steam which forces its way through the weakest part of the dough—the runways between these strands of sticky gluten.

So the moral to all this is—stir muffin batter just as little as possible. Do not even try to stir till entirely smooth, as this is not necessary for a perfect muffin. A stirring motion is less likely to include air and create tunnels than is a beating motion. Finally, if your recipe contains too much flour or too little liquid, even with reduced mixing you will be bothered with tunnels.

As for tunnels in cakes, they often occur for much the same reasons. That is, gas expands in the long weakened sections between the strands of gluten we have stretched out by mixing the batter. Too much flour again tends to increase tunnels. Cake can stand much more mixing than can muffins, because of its increased proportion of sugar and fat. However, it is wise to stir, not beat, the batter.

Then for two recipes sought by Miss M. E. and Mrs. C. F. T. The first is for a dish to be served as dessert, whether its main ingredient is used for that course or not:

SPICED SQUASH CUSTARD.

2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup medium brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon lemon extract
1½ cups mashed Hubbard squash
1½ cups scalded milk
2 tablespoons butter
Grating of nutmeg

Combine the eggs, sugar, flavorings, and the squash. Melt the butter in the milk and add to the first mixture. Strain into a baking dish and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for thirty minutes or until set.

CHICKENBURGER.

1½ cups finely rolled cracker crumbs
¾ cup chicken stock or milk
¼ teaspoon minced onion
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons butter

Combine all the ingredients, adding more milk or cracker crumbs if necessary to make packable. Form into small cakes and fry in butter in a hot frying pan until brown on both sides. These, served up with spanking hot mushroom sauce, make excellent eating.

Jilted Woman Makes No Secret of Her Sorrows

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An incident of recent occurence in which I happened to be a bystander furnishes another illustration of how women take their disappointments today in comparison with the "silent, blighted" hearts of yesterday.

It was high noon, to make the incident even more incongruous. A woman came running down the street crying hysterically and loudly enough to bring rescuers out of nearby apartments. I thought there must have been a murder, at least. The young woman's final recovery of her voice disclosed that her suitor had just announced to her his intention of marrying another girl. There was a luncheon engagement to break the news; a postponement until they got in the car, and it was out of the car the girl came running to proclaim her broken heart to the world.

Well, she loved the man and she had been going about steadily with him for three years. Perhaps had no inkling that there was another girl in the offing. Then came the sudden disclosure. We know no more of the story than that.

We have no opinion to offer. It may be a healthy sign that emotions can be dismissed in loud wails, talk, and court action.

We heard a noted doctor of philosophy not long ago advocate tantrums and tears as a release, provided they're not overindulged, of course. But better, he said, to get your grievance out of the system than to go around nursing it quietly.

Wirt Morton Marries Mrs. Margaret Osborne at Dubuque Ceremony

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Wirt Morton, vice president of the Morton Salt company and one of 13 charter members of the Anti-Superstition society, was married here this morning at 8:30 o'clock to Mrs. Margaret Budd Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph I. Budd of St. Paul.

The ceremony was performed by Judge P. J. Nelson of the District court at the home of Mr. Morton's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Lattner. A wedding breakfast, also at the Lattner home, followed.

Mrs. Morton wore a fall suit of gray and biege tweed, trimmed in lynx. Her small hat and accessories were brown and gardenias were pinned on her shoulder.

This is the third marriage of the bride, who is 29 years old. Mr. Morton is 43 and this is his second marriage. He was divorced about a month ago.

Smartly Coiffed Give Extra Care to Rear Locks

Unkempt Neckline Belies Front Grooming.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Advice to women today should read: "Don't worry about the front effect. Look to the back of your head." Here's where the real test in hair grooming lies. You have your eyes and your charming facial expression to help you in front, but the back view of the head has nothing to recommend it but smartly turned hair.

By turned we mean thinned, shaped, and a developed neckline that speaks intelligent hair craftsmanship. The neckline, indeed, may be a fringe of curls, or it may present a picture of curls, tier upon tier, or it may have no curls at all, but no matter what it presents, it must be clever, or you're just one of thousands of women who put their all on the front view.

I sat in the other day with one of Chicago's cleverest artists with the thinning scissors, a man noted for the beautiful shape he gives to heads, and saw a first hand demonstration of what back hair treatment really means, what a clever line back there does to distinguish one. A lovely black haired girl was under experimentation and the artistry with which the swirled line met the soft, nat waves over her ears indicated just how much back haired beauty may be obtained.

It's interesting to note the general flatness, staleness, we might call it, of back of the head views.

The season is on now for rear head exposure without benefit of hat! Better get the hand mirror habit and ask more of the operator who does your hair. Demand more style for the back of the head, a better line, a shapelier structure. Don't be content with the front view merely. If you demand you may be sure the coiffure operators will get next to themselves quickly, since their business depends upon ability to please.

It's woman's own fault this part of her coiffure has been a neglected art. She hasn't asked that it be otherwise. She doesn't pick up her hand mirror and study the possibilities there. And if there is a pleasing sight in any line of heads it is the outstanding head that's been arranged with the hand of an artist.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CLASS DAY.

"Willie Jones was arraigned before Judge Charles Moore Jr. on a charge of stealing five chickens," Prof. Fordney said to his students.

"'Well, Willie, why did you commit the theft?' demanded the judge. 'You're liable for a jail sentence you know.'

"'Yes, your honor,' was the reply, 'but I have such a large family to feed and in these here hard times it's powerful tough to get along. Only three of us are working, and as Mr. Henshaw has so many chickens I didn't think he'd miss five.'

"Willie scratched his head and slowly replied, 'Well, there's two grandfathers, one son-in-law, two uncles, one niece, three fathers, one mother, one daughter-in-law, two brothers, one nephew, two cousins and one grandchild.'

"Judge Moore pondered a moment then said, 'Because of your large family I'm going to let you off this time, but if you come up before me again I'll give you the limit. Understand?'

"'Yes, your honor, and I thanks you.'

"A few days later," continued the professor, "an enemy of Willie's, learning of Jones' acquittal, proved to the judge that his family consisted of only five people. Angry that he had been so easily taken in, Moore summoned him to court again and demanded an explanation. After he had given it Willie again left court a free man, having convinced the judge that he had told the truth the first time. Quickly now!"

HOW DID WILLIE CONVINCE THE JUDGE HIS FIRST STATEMENT WAS TRUE EVEN THOUGH THERE WERE BUT FIVE MEMBERS IN HIS FAMILY?

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 13.—It's fashionable among phrase coiners to refer to any football team which hasn't done anything and possibly doesn't intend to as a mystery eleven. For that reason tomorrow's game between Illinois and Wisconsin in Memorial stadium has all the indications of resembling nothing quite so much as a Wallace detective thriller, in which mysteries follow upon each other with confusing rapidity.

Just about the time the reader has decided it was the master mind, old Lord Hoppenschmitt, who hid the corpse in the grand piano, a second body tucked away in the works of the grandfather clock reveals that after all it was that old master mind, the apple woman of Charing Cross, who was doing the devilment all the time.

What Say, Hawkshaw?

Something like that probably will take place tomorrow. Just when you have become firmly convinced it was the old master mind, Dr. Clarence Wiley Spears of the Badgers, who had a pretty good or great football team hidden away under his once capacious vest, you may discover it was really that old master mind, Coach Bob Zuppke of the Illini, who was practicing those nefarious tricks down on the goal line, or vice versa.

On the dope Wisconsin appears to be the more likely of the two to come up with a winner. The Badgers, if not a great team, were pretty consistent last year and finished in third place in the Western conference race. Of the 11 names appearing in the starting lineup for tomorrow's game, eight are veterans. They functioned in efficient fashion last Saturday against Marquette, and, while Marquette may not be especially good, Wisconsin showed just enough to indicate it has suffered no material decline from its strength of 1932.

Illini May Come by Air.

Illinois, while it showed signs of life along toward the close of the season, has demonstrated no astonishing power this season. In its two early season victories over Drake and Washington, it relied almost entirely upon an open passing game which met with just enough success to score a few touchdowns when needed. Wisconsin depended chiefly upon its back field driving power to push over three touchdowns against Marquette.

With Capt. Hal Smith of Madison in good condition and apparently plunging in his best style, it seemingly would be safe to predict that the Badgers will rely on him and Bobbie Schiller, who was out of the game part of last season, for a hard driving attack. With Frank Froschauer, Les Lindberg, and Jack Beynon, three capable passers and runners in the Illinois back field, Illinois might be expected to throw the ball with the same recklessness as in its first two games.

They Can Run, Too.

A little substitute quarter back from Mattoon, Cliff Gano, showed considerable passing ability last week and gives the Illini four men who can throw far and accurately. In expecting that, however, an observer might be deceived. Illinois' blocking has improved greatly within the last week and if the lighter Illini line can hold long enough to get Froschauer or Lindberg into the open, they may be depended on to go places with considerable celerity.

This will be the second meeting between teams coached by Spears and Zuppke. They met for the first time last year at Madison and Wisconsin and emerged with a 20 to 12 victory after one of the most stirring games of the Big Ten season. At that time the Illinois team, which is practically unchanged this year except for the addition of Les Lindberg at right half back in place of Gil Berry, was just beginning to develop. Illinois partisans think it has continued its development since that point.

Expect 20,000 Crowd.

Wisconsin's team being largely the same, it may be assumed that the Badgers also have improved. The presence of three sophomores, John Golemgeske and John Ferguson at the tackles and Leonard Lovshin at end, apparently hasn't hurt them any.

With fair weather forecast for tomorrow, a crowd of 20,000, including Gov. Horner, is expected to see the contest, about the same as that which saw last year's homecoming game with Northwestern.

MINNESOTA PITS GREEN ELEVEN AGAINST PURDUE

Gophers Have High Hopes of Victory.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13. — Two Pullman loads of football players, which Purdue believes will prove to be the best in the western conference, arrived here this morning. Tomorrow afternoon these players will meet a confident band of Minnesota boys in Memorial stadium and if Purdue wins, which is more suppositional now than a month ago, the Boilermakers will be on the way to matching their 1931 title and last season's undefeated record.

Under the command of Coach Noble Kizer, Purdue's squad went about its routine without delay or confusion. Shortly after the boys had been assigned hotel quarters they met in secret lecture session.

Practice in Secret.

At 2:30 p. m. Purdue's players, spic and span in their silk pants and traditional gold jerseys, held a dress rehearsal on stadium sod. There were enough Old Gold players to form three elevens with a couple of extra men following along behind. The workout was secret except for the huddle of newspaper men on the sidelines.

There was no need for secrecy, however. Nothing was exhibited which Minnesota scouts had not seen in other years.

Any new wrinkle in offense Purdue will use tomorrow to confound the opposition has been shown only on the banks of the Wabash far, far away.

Purdue, it would seem, has been grossly libeled by critics who said its schedule was a trifle soft. Since the September Ides, Iowa has risen to smack Northwestern and Chicago has evidenced some ability as well as desire to stand up and trade wallops with the Boilermakers. Wisconsin, always a difficult opponent, and a 2,000 pound Indiana varsity are other worthy foes. Then there's Notre Dame.

Purdue Loses Stars.

These conjectures may be thrown into the wastepaper basket tomorrow night if the brawny Gophers do what their home town partisans believe they will—defeat Purdue.

Purdue, if we may remind, is not as strong as last year. The disability of Fred Hecker, who will be replaced at full back by Butch Keegan, doesn't help the situation by any means. For that matter, Hecker, an excellent half back, has yet to show his worth as successor to Roy Horstmann, Purdue's 1932 full back. An inexperienced center, Arthur Lawrence, holds the key to the smooth working of the backs, for a misdirected pass may be the difference between defeat and victory. At ends Purdue will miss its veterans.

Paul Pardonner, at quarter back, not only because of his drop kicking, but through tested judgment in team direction, is an ace in Purdue's hand. Pardonner should outthink his sophomore opponents, Glenn Seidel and Babe Levoir.

Passes Are Important.

The game may be decided in the air. In Duane Purvis, Purdue has the best long distance thrower in the conference. Minnesota coaches fear their sophomore secondary may be the weak spot in the defensive armor.

It may be Minnesota's sophomores, or the desire to watch Purdue, but at any rate, there is a right smart interest in tomorrow's game. Advance sales today reached 20,000 with the promise that if tomorrow dawns bright and crisp, 25,000 will be on hand, some 30 per cent increase in business over 1932.

Building Huge Stadia Is a Thing of Past

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—It is hardly likely that any more large stadia will be built in this country within the life of persons now living. The customer capacity of the 50 foremost existing plants is about 3,000,000, and this figure does not include any of the thousands of highly optimistic high school football arenas or indoor athletic theaters, collegiate or high school, which were built in the time of the boom. Many of these plants were built with public funds or by the abuse of public credit.

The figure excludes also about half of the major league ball parks, all of the horse plants, the Indianapolis motor speedway, all minor league ball yards, and Madison Square Garden and all its branch stores, subsidiaries and independent imitations in various cities.

There's No Demand Now.

Probably an accurate count of the seating capacities of all outdoor and indoor arenas suitable for athletic or sporting spectacles which now exist would disclose that there are facilities for parking as much as one-tenth of the entire population of the continental United States of America. Box office statistics of the last few years give a clear and rather mournful indication that these facilities are much more than sufficient for the demand. The stadium promoters, including in many cases local public officials and in many other cases predatory high pressure promoters and in some cases a combination of both, have built far into the future.

Two of the most embarrassing monuments to goofy civic ambition and pride which rear their high walls against the sky as the winds moan through their tunnels and ironwork these autumn days are the sesquicentennial stadium in Philadelphia and the Cleveland Municipal stadium, seating 125,000 and 110,000 respectively, for a prize fight.

The Philadelphia stadium was filled once, in 1926, when Gene Tunney took the heavyweight championship of the world from Jack Dempsey. Otherwise it has been a grand example of the dumb enthusiasm of the go-getter. It was built in defiance of the fact that the University of Pennsylvania at that very time had a huge and growing arena, much more accessible to the customers and otherwise more suitable, whose seating capacity finally has reached 76,000.

It's Almost Useless.

The Cleveland Municipal stadium was imposed upon the mass of the taxpayers largely by the influence of a group of aggressive business men who desired to increase the value of much real estate which they owned in the vicinity of the site. It has been a flop even for major league baseball and the Cleveland ball club, which had a part in the promotion of this public undertaking, may yet abandon its right to use the park and move back to the old fashioned baseball quarters at Dunn field.

The Cleveland Municipal plant is so

Indiana Expects to Take Irish in Stride.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 13.—Coach E. C. Hayes of Indiana university today asked the bonfire and pep session committee would they please not hold high carnival tonight but just let his lads take Notre Dame in stride, come tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The committee acquiesced.

The fact that there was no red fire and general heel kicking did not squelch enthusiasm hereabouts and there are many in this county tonight who are downright certain the Crimson may be able to upset the power boys from upstate.

22,000 to See Game.

It is figured that the reason the coach asked for no hi-jinks was that he calculated there will be no disappointing reaction from the celebration in case the I. U. players lose and that if they should happen to slip one over on Hunk Anderson's men there will be plenty of time to burn every small wooden structure in town with attendant enthusiastic shouting and snake dances and the like.

A capacity crowd of 22,000 is expected tomorrow, and football fans who do not actually attend shouldn't have to do much ferreting to discover what happened. Reservations have been made by 150 newspapers and a large crew of broadcasters is on hand. No game here ever has had nearly the coverage.

Coach Hayes took his protégés to Memorial stadium for a light drill this afternoon, a welcome contrast after the arduous workouts under floodlights earlier in the week. Coach Anderson has his charges housed at Home Lawn sanitorium at Martinsville and gave them a routine of exercises after their arrival from Indianapolis early this afternoon.

Here's the Record.

It says in the Indiana football book that up till 1919 the series between Indiana U. and Notre Dame in football was even up. This is true, but there is a mite of trickery in the statement, we suspect. As a matter of fact, Indiana hasn't licked Notre Dame in 27 years and has scored only once in the last half dozen games. Here's the history:

Year.	N. D.	I. U.	Year.	N.D.	I.U.
1899	17	0	1920	13	10
1900	0	6	1921	28	7
1901	18	5	1922	27	0
1902	11	5	1926	26	0
1905	5	22	1928	19	6

Indiana followers, while reticent about actually predicting victory, are putting great stock in the hope that the Notre Dame defense will be unable to stop certain of the Indiana sophomore backs, notably Louis Sutherland of Jackson, Miss., who has been timed under ten seconds in the 100 yard dash despite his 190 pounds of brawn, and Vernon Huffman, Newcastle flash, who was yanked out of basketball to star in the Minnesota game. Robert Keck, who will start at full back, also is a sophomore for whom great things are predicted.

Ends Are Strong.

The Bloomington constituency also is feeling pretty encouraged about the Crimson ends. At left end will be Ettore Antonini, a 200 pound sophomore, who is 6 feet 3 inches tall and a good pass receiver. At right end will be Fitzhugh Lyons, giant Negro pass snarer who is well known to followers of Big Ten football.

THREE FOR STANFORD—IF IT WORKS

Expect 45,000 to See Cornell Play Michigan

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13.—Michigan and Cornell, which have been playing football since the medieval period of the game, when it was not much more than a restrained version of manslaughter and when the well dressed snapper-back sported a wind blown bob and handle bar mustachios, will engage each other in the big 'way back when game tomorrow at Michigan stadium.

Michigan authorities, after having had the weather man do them wrong at their opening game last week with an irritating drizzle which trimmed the attendance to less than 30,000, have been trying to make a deal with the gentleman for a consignment of blue sky and sunshine. Thus far this week he has evinced a disposition to go along, but promises increased cloudiness and warmer weather tomorrow, in which event the crowd of 45,000 indicated by advance business at the gate will not come to pass.

Mr. Dobie Doesn't Care.

Probably the least interested party in the matter of climate or crowd today was Gloomy Gil Dobie, the Cornell coach, who came over from his Ypsilanti bivouac to inspect the field where his Reds will meet the Wolverines tomorrow. The lean and lugubrious Mr. Dobie, who has held the nonsmiling championship among American coaches for 25 years, didn't seem to care whether there were 45 or 45,000 present for the kickoff. The only item which might have made Mr. Dobie's

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Northwestern university's Wildcats, who were considerably domesticated two weeks ago by Iowa, will have a chance to recover their jungle manners at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Soldiers' field. But the chance is considered slim. The obstacle in the path is a heavy, speedy, experienced Leland Stanford eleven which came east determined to show that climate isn't the only thing that grows in California.

The boys from Palo Alto have whetted their 1933 appetites by three consecutive victories—San Jose State, University of California of Los Angeles, and Santa Clara—being taken on in turn. The three triumphs were registered by a team so finished that no alterations, except for injuries, have been needed. Against this the Purple will pit an experimental aggregation, badly shaken up as the result of the defects revealed in the one touchdown loss to Iowa.

Stanford Has Defensive Power.

Stanford boasts a line that, defensively, is reputed to be the best the school ever has placed on a chalk ribbed field. None of the three teams against which it has appeared to date was able to ferret out a consistently weak spot. But there isn't so much optimism about the power of attack. It probably was doubt about the latter that induced the Cardinals' head coach, Tiny Thornhill, to remark in the course of a squad warmup yesterday on Soldiers' field that he didn't think the Californians had anything better than an even chance for victory.

Dick Hanley, the Purple strategist, wouldn't even stir himself up to the point where he could picture anything short of a rout for his felines. Hanley began tolling the funeral bells as soon as the Iowa brand had been burned into the hides of the Purple, and he was still tolling them last evening. But the Evanston campus habitues, possibly because the wish was father to the thought, were inclined to believe that Hanley had a purpose in playing the underdog psychology to the limit. The impression was that Hanley must have seen a vast improvement in the two weeks since he revised his eleven.

Six Changes in Lineup.

Hanley's overhauling process since the Iowa flop was so extensive that six positions became involved before he definitely decided on his layout for this afternoon. Kopecky and Chambers, heavy sophomore tackles, have supplanted Capt. Huess and Riley. Kawal, former quarter, has moved in at left guard as replacement for Tangora. Cruice is the only back in his original position—right half. Duvall has taken over the full back job in place of Olson, who has been shifted to quarter, which was Auguston's position. Left Half Sullivan has lost his starting rôle to Leeper.

If the Cardinals' line is as good as advertised, the Purple attack undoubtedly will develop into an aerial affair. This mode of assault also is probable because of the doubt about Northwestern's running attack. Some improvement in this particular is expected from Leeper, whose speed was his chief recommendation for regular employment. The possibilities of a persistent pass attack also are strengthened by the fact that in Ends Manske and Jens the Wildcats own two men highly skilled as receivers.

Cardinals Can Throw 'Em.

The same passing threat can be expected from the Cardinals if their running game doesn't make progress. All four of Stanford's starting backs are passers, thus demanding double caution from the Purple on defense. And when or if the Cardinals' coach tires of seeing his first string quartet perform, he has four more to run in, either singly or in a group. The understudies for the regular backs are Hoos at quarter, Reisner at left half, White at right half, and two full backs—Hillman and Alustiza.

The Purple squad, so as to be close to the scene of battle, pitched its tents at the Sherry hotel, 53d street and the lake, last night.

DETROIT BEATS WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON, 14-0

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—The University of Detroit's aerial attack defeated Washington and Jefferson, 14 to 0, tonight. The Detroit eleven scored in the second and fourth periods, Doug Nott and Dick Lutz, half backs, making the touchdowns. A crowd of 15,000 attended the game.

WATCH TOWER IS 7-5 FAVORITE IN CUP RACE TODAY

Seven Named for 2¼ Mile Closing Feature.

BY FRENCH LANE.

They indicated it last night when they made him the 7 to 5 favorite to win the first running of the Washington Park cup, a race at two miles and a quarter, the most gruelling test thoroughbreds have been asked to engage in here in many seasons. The cup is one of the features of the closing program at Washington Park today.

Watch Tower will sport the red and white jacket of A. A. Baroni of Reno, Nev., and will be ridden by Jockey Wayne Wright. According to the betting, Sidney Grant, from the stable of Abraham Bartlestein, has the best chance of taking the measure of Watch Tower in the turf marathon. His backers were so numerous that he was a red hot second choice at 2 to 1.

Seven Named for Test.

Seven were named overnight for the cup. Others with considerable backing were Excellency, Happy Fellow, and Rowdy Boy. The extreme outsiders in the field were Blue Law and Elcidio. Both were held at 30 to 1.

The cup race, arranged to stimulate interest in endurance racing, will share the post of honor with the Lakeside handicap, a dash at six furlongs, and worth $2,500, which will engage all the leading 2 year olds left on the Chicago circuit.

The Audley farm entry of Trey and Wacoche ruled as the short priced favorite in this event at 6 to 5. Speedy Skippy, a son of Paicines which races for Mrs. Jack Howard of Kentucky, was mustering considerable support. He was the second choice at around 3 to 5 and 2 to 1. Eight were named for the 2 year old stake. They are among the most fashionable juveniles in the west. Some of them are to figure prominently in the big 3 year old stakes of next season.

Stakes End Major Season.

The running of the two stake races will close the major racing season for the year in Chicago. On Monday the Sportsmans Park half mile track opens for a run of 14 days. Then the horses and the horsemen move to other parts. The Sportsmans Park meeting will wind up six months of continuous racing in the Chicago district.

The owners of eligibles to the Lakeside handicap no doubt consider themselves lucky that the filly Giggling is not included in the Audley farm entry which will strive for the $2,500 prize this afternoon.

Giggling, making the second start of her career, stepped out with a stylish hand in the Desaible Cabin purse at 6 furlongs yesterday and made a show of her field. She had done the same thing in her first start at Hawthorne more than a month ago.

Giggling Wins Pulled Up.

Running the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5, Giggling won pulled up by two lengths from Pomparagon and Broadcaster. Giggling is a daughter of Pompey. Pomparagon is a son of the same horse.

Made the odds-on favorite near post time Giggling never gave her backers much worry after she dashed to the front nearing the lower bend. She drew away so far that all her rivals were whipped by the time the field had reached midstretch. Then Jockey Lewis took her in hand and she coasted home.

In the mutuels Giggling paid $3.96 to win, $4.92 to place and $3.68 to show. She looks like one of the fleetest 2 year olds which has raced in Chicago all year. Her next engagement is in the Breeders' Futurity at Latonia in which contest she will be up against a number of the best 2 year olds in the country. She is a big, long striding filly, so powerful that it appears weight will not stop her. She carried 105 pounds yesterday.

Berwanger, Nyquist Lead Drive on Washington U.

Coach Clark Shaughnessy, dropping a few farewell misgivings as he left, yesterday led the University of Chicago football team out of the Midway practice field and down to St. Louis, where they will meet Washington university today. Shaughnessy seemed genuinely perturbed about the game, but his flock of young men ran through an early morning practice yesterday full of cheer and eager for the fray.

The Maroons will be forced to show what they have, and yesterday's signal drill indicated that the Chicago attack will have far more variety than it did last Saturday. Berwanger and Nyquist, the sophomore ball carrying boys, will get a real test. In reply the Maroons expect Washington to unloose a lot of passes, with Hardin to Hobbs, Washington's scoring combination last week, as the aerial duet.

Washington Punter Best.

Both teams have new coaches, both will start six sophomores, and both are reputed to be on the upgrade in the football world. Chicago will have an edge in weight and a superior running attack, but Washington has a punter in Hobbs who is consistently better than anything the Maroons can produce. Three of the Washington players—Hobbs, Erspamer, and Hafeli—are from coal mining towns in Illinois, and Hafeli, a 190 pound sophomore full back, is reputed to be a real plunger.

Defensively the Maroons have not been tested. Washington held Illinois on equal terms in yardage gained during the first half last week, but wilted in the final quarter under the rush of Illinois' reserve strength.

Rapp Displaces Perretz.

Wayne Rapp, senior guard, displaced Bob Perretz during yesterday's brief practice, but otherwise no changes are anticipated in the Chicago lineup. Having ordered practically no practice scrimmage, Shaughnessy had little basis for making changes in his varsity. Merritt Bush, sophomore tackle, was taken with the team, but is not expected to play.

Army Finds New Gun Will Speed Up Fire

BY BOB BECKER.

The United States army allows a soldier 60 seconds for the firing of 10 shots from the regulation Springfield rifle. That is, the soldier starts with five shells in his magazine. When these are used he must slip in another clip of five, get this second burst of fire in the target, and be finished before 60 seconds has elapsed. Approximately five seconds are required to reload. This gives an average of one accurate shot in five seconds in the bolt action gun.

For several months the United States army has been testing a semi-automatic rifle which takes a clip of 20 cartridges, automatically ejects a fired shell, and reloads itself. An eastern ordnance officer states that this new weapon which, it is believed, will supplant the old Springfield as the shoulder arm of the infantry, can be fired at the rate of 30 to 40 shots per minute with much greater accuracy than one can shoot five shots from the old Springfield.

Change Would Be Significant.

The officer's rating of the Springfield is 8 to 10 shots per minute. In view of these comparisons little imagination is needed to figure the immense advantage of placing a light weight, rapid firing rifle capable of literally pouring lead at the enemy in the hands of the infantry. The change, as certain army officers point out, would be of the highest military significance.

In order to make stop watch and target comparisons of the bolt action and autoloading rifle we fired many rounds of ammunition at Fort Sheridan a few days ago. It required only a few tests to demonstrate that the autoloading gun is vastly superior to the bolt action on two counts. First, the semi-automatic [the type which the army has been testing] has greater accuracy in sustained fire. With a bolt action gun it is impossible for the shooter to maintain what is known as continuous aim. That is, keeping one's eyes on the target from the start of the shooting to the finish.

Fires More Rapidly.

Secondly, the autoloader is far ahead of the bolt action gun when rapidity is demanded. Shooting at 50 yard targets with small bore automatics it was possible to make a good score while firing 15 shots in 11.5 seconds. On three different targets the semi-automatic was clocked as follows: 11.6, 16.1 and 11.5 seconds for 15 shots. The same shooter, using a bolt action rifle on three targets, took 9.7, 10.2 and 9.1 seconds to score his five shots.

It will be seen upon comparing these figures that it took almost as long for the shooter of a bolt action gun to fire five shots as the semi-automatic or autoloader required for 15 shots.

In view of the marked superiority of the semi-automatic over the old fashioned bolt action rifle on the points of speed and accuracy, it is not surprising that an eastern ordnance officer has pointed out this important fact in relation to the individual soldier and volume of fire on a battlefront. With the semi-automatic rifle in the hands of troops and a certain volume of fire needed in any front line, it would be delivered by one-fourth to one-third the number of men required by the older arm.

De Paul Leaves Tonight for St. Ambrose Game

Thirty-three De Paul university football players will entrain tonight for Davenport, Ia., where the team meets St. Ambrose tomorrow afternoon. Judging from the combinations used in yesterday's practice, Johnny Cella will start at quarter back, with Eddie O'Brien and Capt. Marty Stadler half backs, and Wally Covington at full back.

Expect 45,000 to See Cornell Play Michigan

blues number a complete success would have been to play the game today, Friday the 13th, instead of tomorrow.

Mr. Dobie brought his 27 players over with him, but didn't bother to put them into uniform for a workout. There was reason for many of the lines in Mr. Dobie's dirge today, for he lost four of his 1932 regulars via graduation, including the great Bart Viviano and José Martinez-Zorilla. Then, to make his woe complete, his 1933 captain elect and tackle, Frank Murdock, was thrown for a classroom loss which he has yet to make up. The Cornell coach plans to use the same lineup announced two days ago, with the possible replacement of Jack Terry for Jake Goldbas at right half.

Borgmann Replaces Kowalik.

Coach Kipke of Michigan, still attempting to solve the jigsaw puzzle of the Michigan squad, will content himself also with practically the same cast which scored a so-so decision over Michigan State last Saturday. Bill Borgmann is expected to start at right guard in place of John Kowalik, the former Schurz High star from Chicago.

The backfield will include Capt. Stan Fay at quarter, still a dubious quantity in that rôle. The halves will be taken over by Pa Heston's boy, Johnny, who seems to be as reckless a workman as his old man was for Michigan in the point a minute era, and Herm Everhardus, who, with Heston, has enabled Kipke to solve part of the 1933 puzzle. The Michigan coaches are not worrying about the kicking chore either, with John Regeczi, one of the best in the conference, at full back.

Don't Know What to Expect.

The Wolverines went through a light drill on their practice field this afternoon, still bearing down in defense, particularly on passes, for they are still in the dark as to Mr. Dobie's intentions, a report on his first two games being nothing more than a chart of orthodox football. Michigan coaches are wary of the Cornell attack and even though they have a decided advantage in weight and experience over the Reds, they are still figuring that Dobie, now in his 14th year at Ithaca, may have something fresh up his sleeve.

While Kipke and the students here appear more concerned over the imminence of the Ohio State game next Saturday, at least one party on the campus is worked up over tomorrow's intersectional contest. He is a lean, graying gentleman named Fielding H. Yost, who would know a mite about styles in football, having been at Ann Arbor as coach and athletic director since 1901. He has a personal interest in the matter, having directed Michigan teams in seven of the fifteen games played against Cornell.

Cornell Wins 10 of 15.

In order to review the series, it is necessary to remember there were two separate cycles. From 1889 to 1894, eight games were played, with Michigan winning only one. The Wolverines fared better under Yost's régime, taking three of seven games played from 1911 to 1917. The total thus gives Cornell ten out of fifteen.

2 PLAYERS QUIT AT SPRINGFIELD; CAN'T EARN WAY

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Capt. Ray Morey and Carmin Henderson of the Springfield Teachers' college football team withdrew from school today. The pair, reported yesterday to have been dropped from the squad because they demanded free tuition, explained that they withdrew because they could not earn enough money to continue in school.

President Roy Ellis of the college said the players had not been dropped or disciplined. Morey and Henderson said they would hitch-hike to Minneapolis, where they will seek positions on semi-pro football teams.

McMillen to Train with Bears for Stecher Bout

Jim McMillen, who will wrestle Joe Stecher Oct. 25 at the Chicago Stadium, yesterday made arrangements to work out with the Chicago Bears for several afternoons in advance of the bout. This was a simple matter for Jim, who is a stockholder in the north side pro football team for which he once played guard.

Fumble Beats Preps, 6-0, After 61 Victories in Row

Eskridge, Kas., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Seaman High school football team of Topeka, with a winning streak of 61 consecutive games, was finally defeated today when a fumble permitted Eskridge High school to win, 6 to 0. Seaman's last defeat was in 1925.

Big Ten Faculty Vetoes Michigan Charity Game

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13.—Faculty representatives of the Western conference have ruled against a proposed postseason charity football game between the Universities of Michigan and Detroit, according to an announcement today by Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, chairman of the board in control of athletics at Michigan.

The game was proposed by State Representative William G. Buckley of Detroit, who asked the conference to waive its rule in regard to post-season games.

Prof. Aigler added that the verdict was merely another reiteration of the Big Ten stand on scheduling such games, stating that the only departure from the rule, which occurred two years ago in response to a request from Washington, had proved that such games fall far short in raising large sums of money for charity.

VANDERBILT TO TEST OHIO STATE ELEVEN TODAY

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Ohio State will get its first real test of the season tomorrow when it meets the Vanderbilt eleven here. Coach Sam Willaman was unable to draw many conclusions from the 75 to 0 defeat of Virginia last Saturday.

The Commodores arrived this afternoon and, after a drill in the stadium, retired to the Athletic club for the night. The Buckeyes went through a much longer offensive workout on the stadium practice field and went to the Columbus Country club for the night.

The game will be the fifth between the two schools, each having won two. The southerners took the last in 1931, running up 26 points in the first half to win, 26 to 21.

ILLINOIS CADETS WIN, 13-6, OVER LAKE FOREST

Illinois Military academy of Aledo, Ill., defeated Lake Forest academy football team, 13 to 6, yesterday at Lake Forest. It was Lake Forest's first beating on its home field in 11 years.

Lake Forest scored in the first period when Murphy advanced the ball into Illinois territory and Driver threw a 25 yard pass to Krell for a touchdown.

In the next quarter Illinois got the ball on a bad kick on the Lake Forest 30 yard line and Ross climaxed a series of line plays by plunging over from the five yard line. The winning touchdown came in the fourth period when Gleason crashed off tackle 10 yards.

large that a crowd of 3,000 or 5,000 customers, which would be a pay crowd at the old ball yard, is lost and looks lonesome within its vast spaces. The customers do not like to feel lonesome. Customer psychology is very strange and the best minds of the sport industry recognize that a patron who finds himself gazing around at great expanses of unoccupied seats is likely to conclude that he is devoting his time and enthusiasm to a dead one and quit coming. In Dunn field a small crowd looks much larger and crowds draw crowds.

Home Run Appeal Needed.

Moreover, in the Municipal stadium of Cleveland many long flies which would be home runs in conventional major league surroundings are just flies and putouts. The customer appeal of the home run is substantially proven by the existence of the Yankee stadium in New York which was built on the proceeds of Babe Ruth's home runs. In building this arena, which can hold about 70,000 for a baseball game, Col. Jake Ruppert's architects tactfully arranged their layout so that the Babe, a right field hitter, would not see any long flies of the familiar Ruth home run type converted into putouts. They gave the Babe a moderately nigh right field barrier to shoot at, and his home run production proceeded and the customers continued to attend in large bodies.

Dunn field in Cleveland is much smaller and less modern than the magnificent Municipal liability which was built on the lake front but it was home run appeal. The Municipal stadium in Baltimore is another unfortunate mistake of the same kind. It was filled once when the Army and Navy played there with a crowd of about 75,000. Knute Rockne's Notre Dame football teams also drew several pay crowds but never were able to fill the place, possibly because the customers realized that the Navy was not strong enough to put up a thorough contest.

The Los Angeles stadium, or arena, where the Olympic games were held last year, can hold 105,000 inmates and did hold that many, or almost that many, on two days of the Olympic program. This amphitheater seems to have been a more fortunate undertaking than most structures of its kind, but I doubt that it will ever be necessary to enlarge it and also that it will be found necessary to build another big one anywhere near Los Angeles.

Fugazy Leads 'Em All.

The shrewdest and most successful promoter of gigantic arenas that the area of the boom produced in this country was Humbert J. Fugazy, the prize fight producer of New York. Mr. Fugazy, in his time, has constructed some arenas for which the Philadelphia sesqui plant would have been nothing but a very diminutive scale model.

But he always built his arenas on the top of a table in the back room of some little beer store along toward the small hours of the morning. He would draw beautiful turrets and portals on the table top with a finger moistened in a puddle of beer, and when he had his stadium done the waiter would come along with his bar rag and with one big, ruthless swipe wipe it out again.

It never cost Mr. Fugazy more than the price of a few dozen scoops of beer to build an arena, and even this was not a loss by any means. He always got his beer.

Plays that made Football History

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—Last minute forward passes have won many football games, but the number of important games that have been won on the final play of the game are very few. However, when a championship is involved in the success or failure of the last play, and the play succeeds, it's something to talk about for a long time.

Such was the Ohio State-Illinois game in 1920 at Urbana. Ohio State scored on a forward pass, the final play of the game, winning from the Illini, 7 to 0, and clinching the Western conference championship.

The Buckeyes had come from behind in three of their preceding Big Ten games. Ohio started the year by besting Purdue. Their forward pass combination, famed throughout the country, Harry Workman to Pete Stinchcomb, was Ohio's best offensive weapon.

With a clear record Ohio journeyed to Urbana for the championship game. Twenty thousand, the largest crowd in Illinois history up to that time, overflowed old Illinois field. For nearly an hour each team battered away unsuccessfully. Ohio State not only wanted the title but it remembered the game the year before when Illinois had won the championship on a last minute field goal by Bob Fletcher.

With a minute to play Ohio had the ball on its own 15 yard line. Stinchcomb made 23 yards. Three line plays added 11 more yards and then Workman passed to Stinchcomb for a first down in Illinois territory. Two passes by Workman were incomplete. With seconds only left to play, Stinchcomb again ran down field and to his left, but Workman, faking a throw to him, turned and tossed the ball to Truck Meyers, who received on Illinois' 10 yard line and continued to the goal. The game ended while the ball was in the air. The kick for the point was made and Ohio won, 7 to 0.

Wallace Beats Froebel for First Time, 12 to 7

Gary, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Wallace of Gary tonight achieved its first football victory over Froebel of Gary, scoring a touchdown in the last few minutes of play for a 12 to 7 triumph. Hammond and Roosevelt of East Chicago played a 7 to 7 tie in a Northern Indiana High school conference game at Hammond.

25 to Start Today in Fair Distance Run

Twenty-five distance runners will compete today at the World's Fair in a 30 kilometer [approximately 19 miles] run. Juan Zabala of Argentina, 1932 Olympic marathon champion, is one of the favorites.

Regardless of the time made, a new American record will be established, because it will be the first time metric measurements have been used in such an event under the sponsorship of the National Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. The winner will be recognized as the national amateur champion for the distance.

The present world record is held by Zabala's countryman, José Reibos of Buenos Aires, who stepped the distance in one hour 40 minutes and 57.6 seconds.

Many of America's foremost marathon stars will compete with Zabala. Among them are Anthony Massey, Pittsburgh; George Roland, New York; Joseph Wiley, Wilmington, Del.; Allen Stalnaker, Chicago; August Fsloboda, Chicago; Emmett Crosbie, Baltimore, and Frank Jerry and Alfred W. Snyder of Newcastle, Pa.

YPSILANTI BEATS ST. VIATOR, 13-8, IN 4TH PERIOD

Ypsilanti, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A scoring flurry in the last five minutes of play gave the Michigan Normal eleven a 13 to 8 victory over St. Viator's of Bourbonnais, Ill., this afternoon.

Normal was trailing, 2 to 0, when Noonan of St. Viator got off a bad kick in midfield. A pass and a 6 yard plunge gave Normal a touchdown. A few minutes later Dirkse took a St. Viator punt on his own 24 yard line and ran 76 yards for a touchdown.

With seconds to go Marik intercepted a Normal pass and raced 60 yards for St. Viator's only touchdown. Harding was the principal ground gainer for the invaders. St. Viator's safety came in the third period.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Quincy college football team failed to make a single first down tonight as the Millikin university eleven ran up a 65 to 0 score. Johnny Heinlein's 64 yard sprint featured the many long runs by Millikin players. The victors rolled up 23 first downs.

BEARS SEEK FOURTH VICTORY AGAINST CARDS

Doehring, Star Passer, to Be Out Tomorrow.

The Chicago Bears will be seeking their fourth National Professional Football league victory of the season and their 15th triumph over their city rivals, the Cardinals, when they meet in the 26th game of their series at Wrigley field tomorrow afternoon. It began in 1920.

Johnny Doehring, the Bears' star forward passer, will be unable to play. The Milwaukee player suffered serious injuries in an exhibition game at Washington, D. C., Wednesday night. Two others, Brumbaugh and Sisk, also were hurt in the contest, but Coach Halas yesterday said they would be in the starting lineup.

The game also will mark the first Chicago appearance of Paul Schissler, the Cardinals' new coach. Several Cardinals' players will be making their debut before a Chicago crowd. They include Tommy Yarr, former Notre Dame center, and Dave Nesbit, University of Washington end.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Temple university's football team, far more impressive than it was a week ago, triumphed over the Haskell Indians, 31 to 0, before 20,000 fans in Temple stadium tonight.

SEC'Y PERKINS SPEAKS TODAY TO WOMEN VOTERS

Will Be Heard Tonight at U. of Chicago.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

The grand ballroom of the Palmer House is expected to be crowded this afternoon when Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins addresses a luncheon gathering of women. The event closes the thirteenth annual convention of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and opens the fall season of the Cook County Forum of the organization. Mrs. Quincy Wright, chairman of the forum, will preside.

Miss Perkins is due to arrive in Chicago over the Big Four lines from Indianapolis at 7:35 o'clock this morning, and will be met by an old friend, Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge, widely known sociologist of the University of Chicago. Miss Breckenridge will introduce the speaker at the luncheon.

At the close of the luncheon the cabinet member will be escorted to A Century of Progress grounds by Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mrs. Wright, Miss Breckenridge, and others. A salute of nineteen guns will be given her at the entrance, and a tea will be held in her honor in the trustees' lounge of the Hall of Science at 3:30 o'clock.

Speaks at U. of C. Tonight.

This evening at 8:30 o'clock she will speak again at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago campus, under the auspices of the Students' Lecture service.

Yesterday's session of the convention included a review of the legislative victories of the organization.

Former State Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer, discussing the present superiority of Illinois legislation for child welfare over many other states, mentioned the bill providing that juvenile inmates of the St. Charles School for Boys and the institution for girls at Geneva, may be boarded out in private homes at the discretion of the board of public welfare.

This provision spells the beginning of the end for those corrective homes, she declared, and inaugurates an era when the state will recognize that the way to deal with a delinquent boy is not to lock him up with hundreds of other wayward youths, but to give him individualized attention.

Urges Enforcement Fund.

Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Chicago Women's Trade Union league, reported that the adoption of the minimum wage law for women in Illinois, which had the support of Gov. Horner, has not been effective because no appropriation has been made for its administration. She recommended that the governor be urged to include in the call for the next legislature a request for sufficient funds to enforce the law, which is limited to two years.

Cook county's government may be termed that of an ox cart era, preserved in the period of the automobile and the hard road, Walter F. Dodd, Chicago constitutional lawyer, told the league. Our government, he asserted, has become the slave of a past generation, because of the unwieldy character of the constitution of 1870, which its makers rendered extremely difficult to change. None of the seven constitutional amendments adopted since 1870, he added, has made any material changes in the restrictions imposed, and only a constitutional convention can reform the document.

SWAPPED MATES' ALIMONY TANGLE PUZZLES JUDGES

In 1931, by virtue of two divorces, Florence, wife of George, and Gladys, wife of William, obtained their freedom and straightway married again, switching husbands. Two weeks ago, both husbands were haled into court charged with being in arrears in alimony. The case of Schwarz came up yesterday before Judge Walter La Buy.

"Why should Schwarz p[ay] $1,500 back alimony when Schmoll owes $1,700 in back alimony?" inquired Schwarz's attorney, Norman Becker. Judge La Buy considered the problem, shook his head sadly and continued the case until Monday.

Then Attorney Becker had Schmoll arraigned before Judge Joseph Sabath and convinced the judge that Schmoll should be sentenced to jail for six months for non-payment of the alimony. The judge later suspended the sentence for ten days on condition that Schmoll pay up $100 and find another $100 each ten days thereafter.

Charles P. Taylor, 58 years old, former Chicagoan and retired divisional sales director for the California Packing company, died Thursday at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., it was learned last night. He and his wife had been living in Florida since February. Mr. Taylor had been with the California company for nearly thirty years. He was active in Masonic affairs in Chicago, having been a 32d degree Mason, a Shriner, and a past commander of Union Park lodge. Surviving him are his widow, Janet; two sons, Charles Taylor of Fernwood, N. J., and Ralph Taylor of Omaha, and a daughter, Mrs. Roland A. Jacobson, 5518 Ohio street, Chicago. Funeral services will be held Monday. Burial will be at Forest Home cemetery.

WINS $100,000 IN SUIT AGAINST FORD COMPANY

Distributor Is Victor in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—After deliberating for three hours a jury in the Common Pleas court of Philadelphia county today returned a verdict of $100,000 against the Ford Motor company.

The Detroit concern, whose principal owner, Henry Ford, was branded by opposing counsel yesterday as a "trickster" who had "shabbiness and wickedness in his heart" in his dealings with the original Lincoln Motor company, is ordered to pay this amount to the receivers of the Sweeten Automobile company, which was a Lincoln distributor in 1920 and 1921.

The Ford interests, represented in the case by Benjamin O. Frick, a Philadelphia lawyer, have four days in which to file a motion for a new trial or a "judgment nov," a reversal of the jury's findings by the court.

The bankrupt Sweeten concern, whose president, James Sweeten Jr., was the chief defense witness, had been sued for $6,800 in unpaid notes, but through its receiver, Charles Edwin Fox, former district attorney, a counter suit was brought, claiming total losses of $144,339 suffered by Sweeten through the Lincoln company's alleged breach of contract in not delivering the specified number of cars to him.

MAKES UP WITH MATE 13TH TIME ON FRIDAY, 13TH

"I've left him twelve times and been reconciled to him twelve times," testified Mrs. Bernice Skirmont, 4150 South Maplewood avenue, in her divorce suit against John Skirmont yesterday in Judge Joseph Sabath's court.

"Well, this is Friday, the 13th; why not defy superstition and become reconciled for the thirteenth time?" inquired the judge.

When her attorney, Harry X. Cole, indorsed this suggestion, Mrs. Skirmont acceded and agreed to give her husband, whom she accused of intoxication and cruelty, another chance.

The other outstanding incident of the traditionally unlucky day occurred at 23d street and Calumet avenue. A Negro youth snatched the purse of Mrs. Alice McGreevy, who was walking with her husband, Policeman Thomas McGreevy, who was in plain clothes. Policeman McGreevy drew his gun to fire at the fleeing thief, but his foot slipped on a banana peel. He fired nevertheless. The fugitive dropped the purse as a bullet whistled over his head and Policeman McGreevy limped to the Stanton avenue station, where he wrote out a complaint.

DAVIS ACQUITTAL IS CELEBRATED AT MOOSEHEART

Employés and children at Mooseheart, the home and school center near Aurora maintained by the Loyal Order of Moose, enjoyed a half day holiday yesterday in celebration of the acquittal of United States Senator James J. Davis and Theodore G. Miller in New York Thursday night.

The senator, who is head of the Moose, and Mr. Miller, who is head of the propagation department, were charged with violating the federal lottery laws while raising money for the organization.

Interest was high at Mooseheart in the outcome of the trial and happiness was apparent on every one's face when news of the acquittal came. There was no open celebration, however, until official notification was received from New York, supposedly from Davis. Then the half day holiday was declared, in celebration, according to an official, "of the glad tidings." Offices were closed and children gave a program at Roosevelt auditorium.

C. H. SABIN BURIED; FINANCIAL CHIEFS ATTEND FUNERAL

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Leaders in finance, industry and fashionable society today attended the funeral services for Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the Guaranty Trust company, which were held at St. George's Episcopal church, with the rector, the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, officiating. All of the large banks were represented by their principal officers, as were also many national corporations.

The simple burial service of the church was said, with readings from the eighth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans and from the fourteenth chapter of the gospel according to St. John.

There were hundreds of floral offerings, which entirely filled all of the available space in the chancel.

ATLANTA PIGEON IS CHOSEN GRAND CHAMPION OF U. S.

A new national grand champion in the pure bred pigeon world was named in Chicago yesterday, when a neatly plumaged, pure bred Modena pigeon owned by E. L. Winn of Atlanta, Ga., was the victor over 2,000 of his kind entered in the 25th annual Chicago Coliseum poultry show. The show, which includes blueblooods in the realm of chickens, turkeys, ducks, rabbits, bantams, pigeons, rabbits, cavies, and fur bearing animals, will close Sunday night.

Commenting upon the new grand champion, Judge George Blackwell of Epsom Downs, Surrey, England, declared him to be the equal of the best pigeons to be found in England, where the Modena is a leading breed. Blackwell said he had judged pigeons all over Europe, but had never seen "such great quality" as is exhibited at the Chicago show.

Today nine teams of three college students each will compete for national honors in poultry judging. A team from Kansas State college, winner last year, will compete for a trophy against teams from the state agricultural schools of Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Texas, and Missouri. It is the colleges' fourteenth annual contest.

CHARGE SUPPLIES FOR NEEDY ARE SOLD AT PROFIT

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Don B. Smith, who was executive secretary to Gov. Wilber M. Brucker of Michigan in 1931 and 1932, testified today in federal court at the trial of Robert J. Byers, department adjutant and welfare commissioner of the American Legion, Department of Michigan, and George S. Krieger, New York merchant.

The trial is before Federal Judge John Knight and a jury on an indictment charging Byers and Krieger with conspiracy to obtain from the government war supplies which had been set aside for charitable organizations and to sell them at a profit.

Smith testified that Byers had persuaded Gov. Brucker to send a telegram to President Hoover Feb. 1, 1929, urging that surplus war department supplies be sold to Byers, for free distribution, at the lowest possible cost.

As a result of representations that gloves, underwear, coats, and sundries which Byers asked for were to be given to the poor, Smith testified, the state of Michigan advanced more than $6,000 to pay for army goods in 1931 and about $34,000 more in 1932.

JOKES WITH CAB DRIVER, THEN ENDS HER LIFE IN LAKE

Girl Suicide Victim Is Unidentified.

A good looking young girl about 18 years old who drowned herself in the lake off the Navy pier early yesterday morning remained unidentified last night in an undertaker's morgue at 716 North State street. She had dark brown hair, gray eyes and wore a blue dress.

At an inquest yesterday afternoon, Harry E. Harmon, 4355 Greenwood avenue, a cab driver, described the girl's leap into the lake. He testified that she hailed his cab at 26th street and South Park way and asked to be taken to the Navy pier.

"She was apparently cheerful," said Harmon. "She talked with me on the trip and I kidded with her about taking the trip alone at such an early hour.

"'What are you going to do at the pier?' I asked her. She said she was going to make it her permanent home."

When the cab arrived at the pier, the girl handed Harmon a dollar bill, he said, and he remarked jokingly:

"Now don't jump into the lake."

"That's just what I'm going to do," the girl replied, according to Harmon.

Harmon testified that he still believed the girl was joking. He stood looking after her as she walked quickly to the side of the pier and jumped in.

"I ran after her and threw her a life preserver, but she pushed it away," he declared. "I can't swim, so I ran for help."

Herbert A. Andreen, 2917 Marmora avenue, responded to Harmon's shouts and dived in after the girl. He recovered her body and an inhalator squad worked vainly for an hour in an effort to revive her.

COURT AWARDS FAMILY'S AUTO TO THE HUSBAND

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—(AP)—A district court jury decided today that a husband has the right to possess the family automobile when he demands it. The jury gave him a judgment for $85 against his wife for use of the car she refused to surrender.

Testimony showed that last year Potek left his wife and wanted to take the automobile with him. She refused and he filed action to gain possession of the car.

A divorce action brought by Mrs. Potek is pending. Potek started similar suit previously but it was dismissed after a reconciliation.

CONTINENTAL BANK WILL SELL STOCK TO RFC

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday voted to lead the way in President Roosevelt's bank credit expansion drive by selling $50,000,000 of preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Announcement of this step was made at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by James R. Leavell, president of the bank, after the directors had adjourned. The announcement was contained in a letter to shareholders placed in the mail last night.

The Continental Illinois thereby became the first large metropolitan bank to accede to the demands of President Roosevelt and Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation that banks throughout the country increase their capital structures.

Vote Common Stock Cut.

The directors at the same time voted to recommend to stockholders a reduction of the common stock from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000, the amount of the reduction to be credited to surplus, undivided profits and reserves, "after proper provision to be made from such accounts for unsatisfactory assets."

The revised capital setup of the bank after these adjustments will consist of $50,000,000 of preferred stock, $25,000,000 of common stock, and $25,000,000 of surplus, undivided profits and reserves.

A special stockholders' meeting will be called later to act upon the directors' recommendations.

The recapitalization program must also be taken up with the controller of the currency and the federal reserve board for their consideration and approval, Mr. Leavell stated. It is assumed, however, that such consideration will be entirely routine inasmuch as the administration's stamp of approval was automatically placed upon the plan when Chairman Jones of the RFC made the arrangements with the directors and officers of the bank.

Method of Cut in Doubt.

The manner in which the common stock will be scaled down was not definitely announced. This and other details, such as the offering of preferred stock to present holders of common, will be worked out before the special stockholders' meeting, it is understood. Under the law the preferred stock must be offered to the present common share holders before it can be offered to the RFC.

The reduction in the amount of outstanding common from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000, however, would create an exchange of one new share of common for each three old shares.

Even after the sale of $50,000,000 of preferred stock and the accompanying writedown of the common stock the present outstanding 750,000 shares of common still have an indicated book value of about $66 per share.

The stock has been selling recently at prices between $24 and $31 per share. It closed yesterday at $30 to $31.

The Continental bank's action is expected to set the pace for similar action by large banks in New York City and elsewhere. New York bankers have been holding meetings for two weeks in an attempt to agree on a common policy with respect to sale of preferred stock or capital notes to the RFC.

President's Statement.

Mr. Leavell's statement to the stockholders follows:

"The directors and officers of the bank have been considering the authorization and sale of an issue of preferred stock and at the directors' meeting held today it was determined to accept the proposal of Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, that such corporation purchase $50,000,000 of preferred stock of the bank.

"Consideration has also been given to the matter of the proper capital structure for the bank. It is the judgment of the directors that the common capital stock of the bank should be reduced to $25,000,000, the amount of the reduction to be credited to surplus, undivided profits and reserves and proper provision to be made from such accounts for unsatisfactory assets. After these adjustments it is anticipated that the capital strucure of the bank will be $50,000,000 of preferred stock, $25,000,000 of common stock, and $25,000,000 surplus, undivided profits, and reserves.

These matters must be submitted to the controller of the currency and federal reserve board for their consideration and approval and are now under discussion with them. When we have worked out our definite plan, with detailed terms of the preferred stock, the offering of that stock to shareholders and the par value of the new shares to be issued, we will present the plan to you with a call for a special meeting of the shareholders to consider and act upon it."

Purchase Authorized by RFC.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Purchase of $50,000,000 of preferred stock in the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago was authorized today by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

LEADS NRA PLAN

Reserve Banks Keep Up Credit Inflation Drive

Continuing their "credit inflation" drive at approximately the same rate of speed as in preceding weeks the twelve federal reserve banks combined bought an additional 35 million dollars worth of United States government securities in the week ended Wednesday, Oct. 11, according to the weekly reserve figures released last night.

Except for this continued expansion of reserve bank credit for the government the bank figures for the week show no substantial change in the nation's bank credit picture, despite the administration's insistence on bank credit expansion to finance industries under the NRA.

New York Loans Expand.

An encouraging item in the report of member banks in New York City was an increase for the week of 40 million dollars in commercial loans. This was partically offset by a further decline of 9 million in brokers' loans, reflecting the week's dullness in the stock market.

The New York member banks continued to unload government bonds while the reserve banks kept on buying them, holdings of "governments" by the member banks dropping 35 millions for the week. The New York banks showed an indicated increase of 18 millions in gross deposits for the week.

Chicago member banks last week showed an indicated increase of $21,000,000 in gross deposits. They reported a drop of $7,000,000 in commercial loans, but an increase of $4,000,000 in their holdings of government bonds.

Chicago "Fed" Quits Buying.

One unusual development noted in the reserve bank figures was the stopping of purchases of government bonds by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. In preceding weeks the Chicago reserve bank had been carrying the brunt of the bond buying burden, acquiring each week about one-third of the total for the twelve banks combined.

Figures for the system as a whole showed an increase of $9,000,000 in the circulation of federal reserve notes [40 per cent gold backing] and an increase of $10,000,000 in "asset" money [no gold backing].

Despite the renewed drive against gold hoarders the gold holdings of the reserve system declined about a half million for the week.

First Englewood to Pay 10 Per Cent of Deposits

A 10 per cent dividend will be paid to depositors of the First Englewood State bank in a day or two, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett announced yesterday. It will be the first payment since the bank closed in July, 1932. The distribution will total $61,000.

'SOUND MONEY' STARTS SELLING WAVE IN STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—Publication of the new federal financing program, with its implications of "sound money," had a bearish effect on the stock market today. Traders who had been banking strongly on inflation, even since the White House spokesman began to let it be known that the administration was against the proposal "at the present time," convinced themselves finally that inflation had really been junked for the time being at least, and made haste to lighten their holdings at whatever they could get. The rallying dollar helped to cement their convictions.

The selling extended to every department of the market and cut the list down anywhere from 1 to more than 6 points. Metal, repeal, chemical, and other stocks which have been marching in the van of the inflation procession were the chief sufferers.

Homestake Down 17 Points.

Homestake, the gold mine leader, tumbled 17 points, and Alaska Juneau, International Silver, McIntyre, and Dome trailed it down with net losses of 1 to 4 points or more. U. S. Smelting declined 6¾.

In the alcohol division National Distillers was set back nearly 5 points, and American Commercial Alcohol, United States Industrial Alcohol, Schenley Distillers, Commercial Solvents, and others dropped 2 to more than 3 points.

Some of the outstanding losses of the day were scored in the chemical department, where Allied Chemical went down 6 points and Mathiesen nearly 2.

The new boom in building shares collapsed. Johns-Manville gave up about 3½ points of its newly won gains. Air Reduction dropped 2.

Leading Rails Sold Freely.

Most of the leading rails were sold freely, declines of 2 to 4 points being suffered by such notables as New York Central, Union Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Atchison, and Lackawanna. The equipments sagged with the carriers, as usual. The weekly carloadings figures, which were on the whole satisfactory in spite of a disappointing drop in the coal movement, had no appreciable effect on trading in this department, the group being under the influence of the rightabout in inflationary sentiment.

Farm stocks were under pressure most of the session. Oils had some resistance and the utilities did better than most other groups. The motors were weak, Chrysler, long a speculative favorite, receding sharply.

There was little or no bullish sentiment among floor professionals, who were sellers on all slight bulges. Virtually all the trading favorites registered new lows for the movement or longer.

U. S. BUYING DRIVE HELPING TRADE, REVIEWS ASSERT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—The government's "buy now" campaign has proven to be a powerful stimulant in retail distribution and, although the heavy industries are still below the summer levels, improvement is noted even there, according to the trade reviews of the week.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., says in part:

"The first full week of seasonable weather brought reports from all parts of the country of sharp increases in retail distribution, particularly pronounced in rural communities.

"The reports were accompanied by advices of labor difficulties being straightened out completely in some industries and partially in others, removing one of the most serious handicaps to progress during the last few weeks.

"Financial conditions have become noticeably easier, with work already under way to remove the last lingering traces of the almost complete cessation of banking facilities last March."

CLOSED BANKS TO PAY RATABLY ON FULL CLAIMS

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Appellate court today ruled that creditors of closed banks are entitled to share in proportion to their full claims regardless of whether they received funds from the sale of collateral.

The opinion was given in two cases involving the defunct John B. Colegrove bank at Taylorville, but held that no creditor should receive more than his total claim. The rule was held to apply to all insolvent estates.

The amount due the First National bank at Chicago was raised from $36,254 to $135,677 because the latter amount was due when proof of claim was made. The bank later collected the difference from liquidation of collateral. The claim of the Bank of Commerce Liquidating company was reduced from $35,000 to $13,364 on the ground that collateral had been sold before the claim was filed.

Silver Futures at New Low on Current Decline

Silver futures dropped 41 to 55 points yesterday to a new low on the current downturn and closed more than 2½ cents under the recent high. A break of ½ cent in spot silver and the break in commodities in general started longs to liquidating. Total sales were 7,225,000 ounces. October closed at 37.48 cents; December, 37.65 @37.74 cents; January, 37.95 cents; February, 38.09 cents; March, 38.20@38.25 cents; May, 38.70 cents; July, 39.10 cents; September, 39.50 cents.

Decline in Coal Loadings Cuts Rails' Freight

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—A drop of 19,219 cars in coal shipments last week was largely responsible for the decline in carloadings from the preceding week. Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Oct. 7 totaled 654,428 cars, down 7,399 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 29,339 over the corresponding week of 1932. This increase was the smallest since carloadings in 1933 first exceeded those in 1932 last May.

Strikes in the east were instrumental in cutting down coal shipments. They will probably also make their effect shown in carloading reports covering this week. In addition some of the western roads are reporting drops in traffic for this week, and it is not altogether improbable that the report covering the seven days ending Oct. 14 will show a decrease from the corresponding 1932 week.

Miscellaneous Freight Gains.

Miscellaneous freight, the largest classification, made use of 248,146 cars last week, a rise of 12,607 over the preceding week and an increase of 23,928 over its corresponding 1932 week. Merchandise carloadings, second largest classification, held fairly stable at 174,311, down 1,093 cars from the Sept. 30 week and 4,986 cars under its corresponding 1932 week.

At this time last year the report showed a total of 650,578 cars, an increase of 3,561 over its corresponding seven day period in 1931, establishing a peak for the year. In the three preceding years, however, decreases of 400 to 18,000 cars were reported.

DOLLAR JUMPS OVER 2½ CENTS TO 68.98 IN GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—Interpreting the announcement of the treasury's offer for partial conversion of the fourth 4¼ Liberty loan as marking an official renunciation of currency inflation, the dollar responded sharply today with a rise of 2½ cents to 68.98 cents in gold value at the close. At the close Wednesday it was 66.40 cents.

The movement in the dollar was the widest since the gold standard was suspended here on April 19. The pound sterling broke 3⅞ cents to $4.53, the cheapest price since Sept. 11, and the franc dropped 25¾ points to 5.66⅝ cents, the lowest price since Sept. 13. As the franc fell the dollar rose to 69.13 per cent of its par value, a gain of 3.01 cents over Wednesday's closing valuation.

Closing quotations of the foreign exchanges were slightly above the day's lows, but showed substantial net declines in dollar valuation. The pound sterling finished at $4.54, off 12½ cents and the franc at 5.68 cents, off 22 points.

In conformity with the increased value of the dollar, the price of gold, as quoted daily by the treasury, fell 29 cents to $30.62 an ounce. This was still nearly 50 per cent over the statutory price of $20.67 an ounce.

PRICES OF BUTTER RISE ON BUYING BY GOVERNMENT

Government buying of butter for distribution to the idle became a factor in advancing prices on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Futures closed at net gains of ⅝ to ⅞ cents. According to trade advices agents of the AAA purchased 300,000 pounds of butter in New York yesterday, and the buying was said to have continued until late in the afternoon.

The buying was in line with the recent announcement the government would seek to purchase surplus agricultural products providing necessities for relief purposes.

WESTERN ROADS MAKE DRASTIC RAIL FARE CUTS

Apply to Lines from Chicago to Coast.

Sweeping reductions in the passenger fares on the western railroads, supplemental to the cut in the basic rate voted last week, were announced yesterday by the Western Passenger association.

The rates were agreed upon yesterday at a meeting of the passenger officers of the western railways at which H. W. Siddall, chairman of the Transcontinental Passenger and Western Passenger associations, presided.

At the same time word was received from New York that the eastern railway presidents failed to reach an agreement on a reduction in the basic fare.

East to Continue Survey.

The eastern subcommittee, headed by F. E. Williamson of the New York Central, will continue its survey and report to the president when definite conclusions are reached, it was reported.

The schedule adopted here will apply on all roads west of Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans.

The cuts authorized last week by the presidents reduced the basic fare of 3.6 cents a mile to 3 cents for one-way tickets, and to 2½ cents for round trip tickets, with a time limit of more than ten days. In addition, a 2 cent per mile rate was made discretionary with individual roads for round trip tickets with a ten day limit.

Application of Cuts.

1. For round trip tickets with ten day limit a straight 2 cents per mile rate will be applied in both directions. Slightly higher fares for longer limits.

2. Drastic cuts in the all year excursions. The round trip rate to California will be cut from $144 to $111 and will be good on all equipment.

3. For the Thanksgiving holiday period 2 cent fare tickets in each direction with a ten day limit were authorized to go on from Nov. 23 to 30.

4. Special Christmas and New Year holiday tickets of 2 cents a mile in each direction were authorized. The tickets will be on sale from Dec. 14 to Jan. 1 with Jan 15 set as the return limit. This is the lowest holiday rate ever authorized on the western roads.

5. Twenty per cent reductions were voted on all winter excursion rates to the southwest territory such as Texas and Mexico points.

Take Effect Dec. 1.

Mr. Siddall said that passenger representatives are now working on special summer rates which will be announced later.

The cut in the basic rate was made on an experimental basis for a six month period and is designed to recapture some of the passenger business which has been lost in recent years to other forms of transportation. It is believed that the eastern roads will eventually follow the western roads in these cuts.

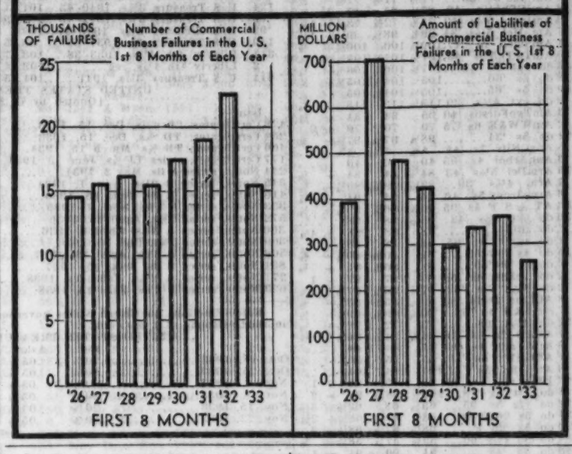
RFC CHIEF HERE WILL HEAD BANK IN GRAND RAPIDS

Ira Moore, head of the Chicago agency of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, has been elected president of the Peoples National bank, Grand Rapids, Mich., according to yesterday's announcements.

Mr. Moore succeeded Howard P. Preston as head of the Chicago office of the RFC when the latter was made deputy governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

The Peoples National bank was formed to succeed the closed Grand Rapids Savings bank. Recent reports were to the effect that stock subscriptions of $500,000 of the new bank were made and that the RFC, in addition, holds $500,000 of preferred stock. It was expected that a receiver would be appointed to liquidate the Grand Rapids Savings bank.

Business Failure Record Shows Marked Improvement



Rules Are Told for 'Ads' Under Securities Act

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—In an effort to clarify the permissibility of newspaper advertising under the new securities act, the federal trade commission today prescribed 25 specific requirements, many calling for long statements, which an advertisement must contain.

In the view of the commission, however, the new regulation has been drawn "to afford a practical method of advertising securities, while at the same time safeguarding the investor from erroneous impressions."

The new rule, the commission explained, "applies only to advertising of securities which are or should be registered under the act. Those securities which were sold or offered before July 27 of this year may, therefore, continue to be advertised in any form, subject only to certain minor restrictions."

Lengthy Statements Required.

Although the commission insists in its formal announcement that it has paid due attention to the space limitations of advertising, many of the facts required are, in fact, long statements. Among the statements required are a description of the capital structure of the company offering the security, a description of the issue, a statement of the purposes for which the money is to be used, a condensed balance sheet, and a summary of the latest profit and loss sheets.

Another section of the regulation calls for "a full statement as to the nature and extent of the interest [including cost, if possible of determination], if any, of every director, principal executive officer, underwriter and of every stockholder owning 13 per cent or more of any class of stock of the issuer in any property acquired within two years preceding the date of the offering of the issue now being offered for sale or proposed to be acquired by the issuer not in the ordinary course of business, together with the sale price of such property."

Must State All Prices.

Although this is probably the most elaborate requirement, still another calls for a statement of the blocks of stock sold at other prices than that now being offered together with the name or class of purchasers. This requirement, it is hoped, will help to block sales to preferred lists at below market prices.

In addition each advertisement must carry at the top a prescribed statement saying: "Registration of these securities with the federal trade commission does not mean approval by the government of these securities or any statement made in literature pertaining to them." At the bottom must appear another saying: "Before buying examine the prospectus containing additional important information. Prospectus obtainable from —— on request."

BREWERY STOCK INQUIRY PUSHED BY PROSECUTOR

A repercussion of the Pfeiffer Brewing fiasco was noticeable in the states attorney's office. Mr. James Cherry of that department announced yesterday that the investigation of all promotional brewery companies, started last spring, has been given a decided impetus by the developments of the last few days.

A meeting between the state's attorney's bureau and the officials of the Chicago Curb exchange will be held next week, probably not later than next Wednesday, according to Mr. Cherry, in order to go into this and other promotions more thoroughly.

The department has been largely instrumental in forestalling stock sales of companies of the "wildcat" type in Illinois and, according to Mr. Cherry, intends to keep close tab on the so-called "legitimate" promotions.

Profit by Johns-Manville Compares with 1932 Loss

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Johns-Manville corporation and subsidiaries report net profit for the quarter ended Sept. 30 of $444,454, compared with a loss of $277,693 in this quarter of 1932. For nine months the company reported a net loss of $417,140, compared with a loss of $1,792,571 in 1932.

Alton September Income Shows Gain Over Year Ago

New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—The Alton railroad, first to report earnings for September, had net operating income of $172,965, compared with $130,885 for September, 1932. The nine months' net was $1,209,814, compared with $177,490 last year.

Fire Agents Elect Chicagoan; Urge Prompt Claims Payments

Prompt payment of fire insurance losses when there is no question of the validity of the claim was recommended in a resolution unanimously adopted yesterday at the final session of the convention of the National Association of Insurance Agents at the Drake hotel.

As a result of the association's action the "60 day payment clause," which has been in general use since the bank moratorium, will be suspended, it was indicated. The 60 day period during which fire companies are legally entitled to hold up payment of claims had been invoked because of the wave of the incendiary fires which swept the country as a result of the depression.

Delay an Emergency Measure.

Delay in payment of claims was designed to act as a deterrent to such fires. It was invoked as an emergency measure during the moratorium, but one faction urged its indefinite continuance, arguing that it would have a longtime beneficial effect. Another faction argued that the emergency had passed and the need for it had been removed.

The association's membership is made up of marine, fire, casualty and surety underwriters. While working in close relationship with the insurance companies, the members are agents of firms rather than company executives. Their recommendations, however, are expected to be accepted by the companies themselves.

Cite Reasons for Prompt Payment.

The resolution pointed out that the stock companies have built up prestige over a century through the prompt payment of claims and should resume that practice. The clause invoked on claims at the time of the moratorium has worked hardships on the public, the resolution asserted, and should be discarded.

Allan I. Wolff, of Chicago, was elected president of the association for the coming year. E. J. Cole, Fall River, Mass., was chosen as chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. Wolff is a former president of the Chicago Board of Underwriters. He served last year as chairman of the association's executive committee and was active in formulating the policies for operation under the NRA.

MOUNTING SALES GIVE MARSHALL FIELD A PROFIT

Third Quarter Trade 51% Above 1932.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Marshall Field & Co. last night reported that its third quarter business, covering the three months ended on Sept. 30, showed a gain of 51 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

While the retail business, which gained substantial impetus from A Century of Progress, showed a large gain, the biggest increase was shown in the wholesale division, which was up 70 per cent from the year ago volume. As a result of these material increases the company earned a profit of $955,000 for the three months, which compares with a net loss of $1,709,000 in the corresponding period last year and a loss of $301,900 in the preceding quarter.

Report Covers All Branches.

These figures cover the operations of the company's retail stores, the wholesale division, the Davis company, and a number of smaller stores, as well as mills and factories and the Merchandise Mart.

The big increase in the wholesale division was interpreted by officials as showing the increase in the business of retail stores throughout the country.

"Much of the credit for the better showing in the third quarter is due to the impetus given sales in our main stores and the Davis company by A Century of Progress," John McKinlay, president, said in his report to stockholders. "However, contrary to general opinion, we have experienced an even greater sales increase in our wholesaling activities, which alone have shown a gain of 70 per cent compared with the third quarter of 1932.

Discusses Effects of NRA.

"Just before our last quarterly report was mailed to you we entered what might be termed the NRA era. We have coöperated to the fullest extent with the President's program; we believe we were the first Chicago firm to sign the so-called 'blanket code.'

"Many inquiries have been made concerning the results of our operating under the President's reëmployment and certain of the codes. It is exceedingly difficult to determine how much of our increased labor expense is due to NRA, and conversely, how much credit is due NRA for our increased volume of sales. However, at the time of the last quarterly report, our corporation, including all subsidiaries, employed 20,973 people, whereas as of Sept. 30, 1933, there were 23,862 on the payrolls.

Third quarter net sales amounted to $24,745,600, or 51 per cent ahead of the $16,357,000 reported in the same period last year. Sales in the second quarter this year amounted to $20,561,300.

Sales of the company's main store were not listed separately, but Mr. McKinley said that the store served more customers in August than in any similar month in the company's history.

"We might temper the rather startling sales increase of 51 per cent for the third quarter, as compared with 1932, by adding that if this year's third quarter is compared with 1931 the increase is only 5 per cent," Mr. McKinlay said. "Our totals for the first nine months are now, of course, ahead of those for the same period of 1932. The accumulated increase amounted to 12 per cent for the nine months."

VINCENT ASTOR IS BARRED AS D. & H. DIRECTOR

I.C.C. Objects to Other Rail Connections.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—In denying William Vincent Astor of New York permission to serve as a director of the Delaware and Hudson, the Interstate commerce commission today by a 6 to 4 vote set a precedent which is expected to lead to rearrangements of railroad directorates. Mr. Astor is a personal friend of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Astor asked for permission to serve as a director of the Delaware and Hudson while at the same time holding similar positions with the Great Northern and Illinois Central railroads. Congress in 1920 gave the commission authority to say whether a person could serve as an officer of more than one railroad.

Insist They Do Not Compete.

In support of the Astor application it was urged that the three rail systems involved did not compete with each other, that the Delaware and Hudson did not connect with either of the other two railroads.

Interlocking directorates of railroads, the majority of the commission said, have an important bearing on consolidation plans.

"Negotiations regarding consolidations have been proceeding without interruption and it is difficult to foresee just when the properties here concerned will again reach a critical stage in some consolidation plan," it said. "When that time comes it is important that a director shall not be asked or permitted to sit on both sides of the table. In fact, the preliminary negotiations leading up to the presentation of a plan may be the most important."

May Be Exceptions.

Though saying it did not necessarily follow that every existing board of directors, perhaps of long standing, which violated the principle stated, "must forthwith be brought into conformity with it," the commission added that corrections should be made as and when shown to be in the public interest and that when new applications were presented "conformity should be observed."

Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie, former chief of the bureau of finance of the commission, wrote the dissenting opinion in which he branded the action of the majority as "unwarranted." If the test applied to Mr. Astor were applied in all cases, he asserted, no applicant could obtain permission to hold more than one carrier position.

SEARS-ROEBUCK REPORTS SALES UP 8% IN 4 WEEKS

Sales of Sears Roebuck & Co. for the ninth period of the fiscal year, Sept. 11 to Oct. 8, 1933, gained 8 per cent to $26,311,738 from $24,353,522 for the comparable period of 1932.

Attributable largely to the seasonal impulse, the total was the highest for any similar period since that ending Dec. 31, 1932, when sales aggregated $27,454,971. The percentage increase, however, was less than that in the eighth period, when sales gained 18 per cent to $22,584,264.

For the nine periods, Jan. 30 to Oct. 8, 1933, sales amounted to $177,066,524, against $187,336,594 for the corresponding period of last year, representing a decrease of 5.5 per cent.

Sale of Mortgage Firm to Be Decided Next Week

A decision will be reached early next week in the negotiations for the acquisition by the Chicago corporation of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, it was stated yesterday. A final settlement has not been made, but prospects for an early conclusion of the deal are promising.

Simmons September Sales 40 Per Cent Over Year Ago

Sales of Simmons company, excluding subsidiaries, for September were $2,130,801, against $1,522,261 in September, 1932, an increase of 40 per per cent. For the first nine months of this year sales were up 24 per cent at $13,548,228.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 13.—The bond market received the treasury's Liberty bond refunding offer with all around enthusiasm today and prices of both speculative and high grade issues rose fractions to 4 points on heavy demand.

In the government list interest naturally centered in the Fourth Liberty 4¼s. Since the advent of the redemption feature it has been customary for these bonds to sell on a pure investment basis. They have ordinarily advanced on the expiration of the time for issuance of a redemption call and today's rise in the uncalled bonds was expected. The called bonds underwent an automatic decline until they had reached what was generally accepted as their new investment position.

New Issue Valued About 102.

While there was no market for the new bonds it was the consensus of traders that they were worth slightly more than 102.

Institutional buyers and the general run of investors and speculators welcomed the move as certain to foster business improvement, thereby not only aiding speculative issues, but ushering in a period of rising prices for investment obligations.

On well sustained demand gains of fractions to more than a point were registered for a number of standard investment issues in the corporate list, carrying some of them close to their highs for the year.

Foreign Gold Loans Weak.

Foreign gold payment issues were subjected to considerable pressure. With French francs down 24 points on the day, French government 7s lost 5-14 points and the 7s 2¾ points; city of Bordeaux 6s lost 4 points, and city of Lyons 6s, 2½ points.

United Kingdom bonds were easier. Japanese loans closed lower, the government 6½s due 1954 breaking 2¾ points.

Liberty Bond Conversion.

Investors' Guide: I see in the papers that the government wants the Liberty bonds turned in. Will you please tell me how I should go about it?—N. S.

Answer: The United States government has called for payment the fourth Liberty 4¼s, due 1963-1938, effective April 15, 1934. The bonds that were called either begin with the letter A and end with the number 1, begin with J and end in 9, or begin with K and end in 0, or merely end in the numbers, 9 or 0. Interest on these bonds stops April 15, 1934.

If you hold bonds which have been called you have the option of holding your bonds until April 15, 1934, and turning them in for cash to the amount of par value and interest due on that date, or exchanging your holdings for new bonds now. The new bonds will mature in 12 years. They bear interest of 4¼ per cent for the first year and 3¼ per cent a year thereafter.

If you want to exchange your bond for the new bond, about the easiest method of doing it is to let your banker handle the transaction for you. You can, if you wish, take the bond to any federal reserve bank or branch or to the United States treasury and make the exchange there.

Holders of the fourth Liberty loan bonds not listed in the first paragraph above have the opportunity during the next few days to exchange them for the new bonds by following the procedure already outlined. Those not converting uncalled bonds will not, however, be entitled to cash on April 15, 1934.

If you wish to convert your bonds into the new bonds you should take care of it immediately, as the offer will be held open only a few days, according to official announcements.

GRAINS SLUMP; WHEAT BREAKS 5 CENTS LIMIT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices dropped 5 cents on the leading American exchanges yesterday and oats fell 3 cents, the maximum permitted for one day under the regulations. Liquidation by speculators who bought when prices were much higher found support lacking. December wheat dropped to 78⅞ cents and closed there, while May was 82¾ cents at the last, with sellers at these figures. The market is now back to the level which prevailed early in June.

Corn was off 2⅜ to 3 cents at the close, with the December option finishing at 39⅜ to 40 cents after selling at 39¼ cents at the extreme. Buying of corn against sales of wheat had some effect on the former. Oats closed with sellers at 30⅝ cents for December delivery and 34 cents for May. Rye was 4⅜ to 4¼ cents lower, with December at 58⅛ cents. Barley lost 3¼ to 3⅜ cents. December closed at 47⅜ cents.

Traders Lack Confidence.

At no time were wheat prices as high as Wednesday's finish. Weakness in Liverpool and the continued lack of constructive news from Washington started longs to selling in small amounts, and it continued until the close. As viewed by trade leaders, the weakness was psychological, expressing a general absence of confidence in the future. Factors which normally would be effective in determining price movements are totally lost sight of on that account. As traders see it, a change in public psychology would be quickly reflected in the grain markets.

Durum wheat at Duluth led the decline, being the first market to sell 5 cents below Wednesday's finish, the maximum recession permitted for one day.

While there was the same class of aggressive buying of wheat at Winnipeg early as has been in evidence lately the support was apparently withdrawn later and the Canadian market dropped sharply, closing 2⅜ to 2½ cents lower than Wednesday, with hedging pressure a factor.

Corn Receives Support.

While corn dropped around 3¾ cents from Wednesday's finish at the extreme yesterday the price failed to get lower than it did late last week. Good support developed on the decline from commission houses and professionals. Official reports showed yields in western Illinois, which has the best prospect in the state, were running below expectations, and private reports indicated Indiana and Ohio returns were also lighter than farmers had anticipated.

Country offerings of cash corn to arrive were fairly good, despite the break, and around 170,000 bushels were booked to arrive, while shipping sales aggregated 250,000 bushels.

Rye developed pronounced weakness, due to scattered liquidation. The clearance of 331,000 bushels from Danubian ports during the last week for the United States also had a depressing effect on the market.

GRAIN MEN ASK HIGHER TARIFF ON FOREIGN RYE

Flood of Imports Causes Crash in Prices.

Rye continues to pour into the United States to the detriment of the American farmer despite the import duty of 15 cents per bushel. Strong representations have been made by grain interests to the administration asking that immediate steps be taken to raise the duty 50 per cent by executive decree, as is permitted under the tariff act of 1930.

Exports of 331,000 bushels from Black sea ports of the Danube river in Europe were announced yesterday, and had considerable influence in depressing the Chicago market. It is estimated between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 bushels of rye have either been imported or are afloat for the United States, including the grain from the Danube which soon will be received at Atlantic ports.

Canada Sends Rye to U. S.

The bulk of the grain has come from Canada despite the short crop harvested there this year, around 1,000,000 bushels of this grain has been received at Chicago, while unknown quantities were shipped in car lots from the prairie provinces direct to American northwestern markets owing to the high price which prevailed this side of the international line. Another million bushels was shipped from Argentina and is now said to be held in bond at Albany, N. Y.

Recent trade reports indicated that Germany was hoping to sell rye to the United States, finding the demand in Europe to be unusually slow, and Hungarian rye was said to have been offered recently at New York duty paid at a price below what it could have been shipped from Chicago.

Crop Short in U. S.

Owing to the extremely short crop in the United States this year, which is estimated at 23,000,000 bushels, or about 7,000,000 bushels below the average annual domestic disappearance, many speculators had bought rye futures in the hope of higher prices. The December option sold up to $1.11⅛ in July, only to break sharply in sympathy with wheat when the debacle started in the latter grain. A rally followed, but the market crashed to 58 cents for the December delivery yesterday, having dropped 19 cents since Oct. 2, when the trade began to take notice of the unusually heavy import business.

Normally the United States' milling requirements of rye are around 12,000,000 bushels, while distillers used around 4,500,000 bushels during the pre-war days. Seed requirements are 5,000,000 bushels, and around 12,000,000 bushels have been used for feed and other needs.

According to trade estimates the total crop of 23,000,000 bushels harvested this year and the carryover of around 10,000,000 bushels might have been disposed of during the current season, but the imports from other countries have changed the statistical position and shattered the confidence of buyers.

What Marinello Training Means

We regard our graduates as personal representatives of the Marinello System. Therefore every girl is trained to the highest degree of efficiency before receiving her certificate. Each girl is graduated with the equivalent of at least a year's practical experience and ready to earn big money at once. That's good economy—good sense.
